What do pugs look like?

Pugs come in two different colors: black or fawn. Their hair is short and silky.
They are pretty easy to recognize by their curly tails and their wrinkled faces.
At 8 weeks old, pug puppies usually weigh 2 to 4 pounds.

Healthy adult pugs typically weigh between 14 and 18 pounds, although there are many chubby pugs!
How do you take care of a pug?

Pugs do not tolerate heat well due to their short, square-shaped muzzles, so be sure to keep them cool.

(Pugs pant to help cool off)
Pugs often overeat, so watch how much you feed them.

Adult pugs should be fed 1½ to 2 cups of food every day. This may be split up into two meals.
Pugs also need exercise to stay fit, so be sure to take them for a walk once a day.
What are pugs like?

Pugs make great family pets due to their loving temperament and desire to please people.

(A lot of pugs will even let you dress them up!)
They love to sleep and can be very cuddly.
Each pug has his or her own unique personality that is guaranteed to make you laugh.
