
BY R. G. ADAMS

At the April meeting in 1909, the Board of Regents of the University created a new college in the University of Idaho. That college was the first professional one established in this institution. It was the College of Law, thus increasing the number of colleges from three to four. The organic act of establishing the Idaho Law School, as was entered on the minutes of the Board, is as follows:

"Mr. McEwen moved that the following recommendation be adopted: That a Law School be established in connection with the University: that a resident Professor of Law be appointed to begin his duties July 1, 1909; that the first year of the course offered in the college year 1909-10; that the tuition fees of the Law School be $65.00 per annum; and that Judges H. R. Frank, Dr. McEwen, Prof. Lane, and the Professor of Law act as a Law School committee to prepare a course of study, select books for the Law library, and perfect the details of organization. Motion carried unanimously."

Mr. John F. MacLane, assistant attorney-general of Idaho, was appointed professor of Law and acting Dean. In selecting Mr. MacLane, the Board of Regents were fortunate in securing a man able to lay the foundation of Idaho's new college. He is a man able and learned in the law, of the highest integrity, and possessed of the greatest of constructive ability, as shown by the successful manner in which he founded the College of Law.

Mr. MacLane graduated with honors from Yale University in 1900, with the degree of Bachelor of Arts; in 1902 he graduated from the University of Minnesota with the degree of D. B. L. He was a member of the Minnesota Bar and editor of the National Reporter System from 1902 till 1906. In 1906 he was admitted to the Idaho Bar and appointed Code Commissioner of the State of Idaho in 1907, and served until 1908. In 1909 he was the assistant attorney-general of Idaho; from 1909 until 1910 he was Professor of Law and acting Dean of the Law School; but in 1910, owing to the condition of his wife's health, he moved to Boise, Idaho, leaving the entire teaching in the hands of others. In 1911 he was appointed Judge of the District Court of the Third Judicial District, which position he resigned in 1912 to become a permanent resident of Boise.

Mr. MacLane was requested by the Regents of the University of Idaho to prepare the initial course in Law for the College of Law.

James Harris, '12; Roy Johnson, '12; C. H. Buffington, '12; F. H. Rehberg, '12; Grover Duffey, '13; R. C. Adams, '14;

That a College of Law be and the same is hereby established, as one of the colleges of the University of Idaho; that a President of the University and such Professors and Associate or Assistant Professors of Law as have been or may be appointed, shall constitute the faculty of such College of Law, that the Board of Regents may appoint one of such Professors as Dean of such Faculty, and in the absence of such appointments the President of the University shall designate such a Professor as acting Dean; that said Faculty shall have general jurisdiction and control of the said college and the students therein, subject to power of review in the University Faculty in matters involving University policies, conduct and discipline; that the Dean or acting Dean of said college shall, under the

C. H. Wilber

President of the executive head thereof, and shall direct the conduct of said college and the expenditure of funds therein, or appropriated thereto; he may appoint from the faculty a secretary, who shall keep the records of the said Faculty and College; all fees accruing from tuition charged to the students in said college are hereby appropriated to the support thereof, and are subject to expenditure by the Dean under the approval of the President.

From the number of applicants, Mr. E. N. Durfee, on the recommendation of Mr. McCutcheon, was appointed Assistant Professor of Law. Mr. MacLane then being desirous of leaving the Law School, arrangements were made whereby Mr. C. H. Wilber was appointed Assistant Professor of Law. In securing Mr. Durfee and Mr. C. H. Wilber was appointed Assistant Professor of Law.
Our Supreme Court.

The seven successful law students who took the examination before the Supreme Court of the state, and who were admitted to practice, did so in the course of the state before that high tribunal on Monday, April 8, returned to Moscow from Lewiston praising the Supreme Judges for the treatment accorded them. The seven men, instead of waiting until the court had adjourned at Lewiston and until they had returned to Boise in order to grade the papers, the Justices worked overtime in order to pass judgment upon the results of the examination and to notify the men Monday morning. This meant a decision two or three weeks earlier than could have been reasonably looked for, and also saved a trip to Boise to be sworn in and to sign the register.

In other ways, too, the Justices extended courtesy to the young men appearing before them. They impressed the latter to such an extent that the seven men from the University were firmly convinced that no other tribunal in the United States would have shown them the same consideration and fair treatment as that which manifested before and after the examination. The Judges were already working to the limit with court business; yet they gladly gave in many extra hours of labor to correct the papers in order to notify the anxious aspirants as soon as possible.

It is undoubtedly this same degree of courtesy and fair treatment on the part of Chief Justice Stewart and his associates, Justices Allred and Hollenbeck, that has made the Idaho Supreme Court so popular with the citizens of the state, and won for them the respect and confidence of all.

A Valuable Friend.

A friend is the most valuable asset a person or an institution can have. A friend should be raised because of the fact that he is such, aside from any questions of personality, ability or power. And when one can count as a friend a person who has had the desirable qualities of friendship with those of unusual ability and influence in his profession and as a citizen—when one can count on the friendship of such a person he is indeed fortunate.

The University of Idaho, and especially the College of Law, is fortunate in having a friend of this type and in having a friend in one of the highest positions of the state. His interest in his department was clearly demonstrated during the past few weeks, when the westward looked toward Lewiston and taking and passing the state bar examination. Busy as he was, with his own practice, he gladly took time to examine the men as a preliminary step to the examination and gave them valuable assistance throughout the period of preparation. He did not stop there; but when the time came for the men to go to Lewiston, he was on hand and accompanied his class for the day. At that place he had many courtesies and kindness for them that otherwise would not have been shown.

Much of the success and high standard attained in the bar examination was due to the training received in the Practition course by the men under the direction of Mr. Moore, and to his methods in teaching them the Idaho Codes.

Standing with the leaders of his profession in the state, and being recognized as such, the College of Law is indeed fortunate in having Mr. Moore on the faculty. Especially is this true when he took such a deep interest in the welfare of the department and of the students. The seven men who took the bar examination appreciate the fact that he went to Lewiston with them, and that the result of the sort that nothing is too good for him or too big for him—even the Governor's chair.

Still Plotting.

The attempt to have third-year law students classified as juniors is an example of the extreme foolishness into which a young, naive sometimes wander. Of course it was evident even to the most dense that the clique merely wanted to shut out the possibility of any law student becoming eligible for A. B. U. I. president who might run against their man. The proposition was so rank that no one outside of the manipulators would vote for it.

But the idea seems to have lived longer. Carrying out the suggestion of the political move of some weeks ago, it is apparent that those who attended the separate the graduates of the law department from the graduates of the other departments in the annual to be published in a few weeks. In fact the whole law college is to be separated from the other university departments. Why this distinction? Does the editor of the Monitor this year mean to maintain that a diploma from the college of law of the University of Idaho is not of equal rank with a degree from the college of engineering—or from the college of agriculture? Can he point out any logical reason for his action? Why did this distinction not been made between other departments in previous years? Why does he set himself up as a judge of the value of the student from a particular department and decide that the law students should be relegated to the back portion of the annual? The only reason we can give to him for this action is that he must not use the Romans do, when in Rome, and now that he is associated with those who attempt to use the law department as a means of revenge the defeat administered by the student body at assemblv.

Is It Fair?

One of the alleged advantages in the Commission system is that when something is wrong you can find the "troubles man" at once without being pressed by one official on to another until you remonstrate as hard as the devil. This feature at least appears to be true of the first year law exam at Idaho.
The 1910-11 University catalog states in plain and unequivocal words that law students are not required to drill. Students were invited to come upon this representation; they were allowed to register and their enrollment was received with smilingly received, and then in due time they were informed that they were required to drill the same as other students. Yet explanation was demanded and given. That a mere freshman should challenge any regulation handed out to him was evidently thought of as heresy. Indeed, he should kick or even ask the reason was enough to brand him as an unloyal to his school; that anything stronger than a mild protest would be an odium to the imperative degree. Nevertheless the men felt as though they had not been fairly treated; that they had come under certain representations, and that they had been received on these same grounds, and that the arbittrary ruling that drill would be required was "unconstitutional," as it were. They protested individually and jointly, to no avail. They protested as a unit with equally grave results. They are still expected to drill the same as other men.

Mr. W. P. Connolly who has put before the people of this Nation in past few weeks some startling facts about our Co. beyond a doubt trending on dangerous ground. When the law student these protest against the arbitrary ruling made for them, they only need to say "ditch." And while it can not be questioned that they decently worship at the feet of the "High and mighty" (Faculty) and the administration, the ranks of the back bench, the back, and cold, still in the small way (small in the estimation of the faculty) they would suggest that the following directions be printed on the front page of the next catalogue: "To be taken with a grain of salt at the beginning of the fall division," or that the demands made therein be lived up to and that the present first year law students be given double pay by the state—time spent in drill and the $20.00 spent on uniform be refunded.

First Year Law Men.

A Suggestion.

Can you think of a good reason why Idaho should not have a student co-operative book store? A store where books, stationary and the like could be sold to our students. Give them a better price than they can get in the "Ae" buildings. There are a score or more of reasons why we should have one—yes, and right away too, so that it will be in shape next September.

Idaho is large enough to support such an organization, and it is up to the student body to express themselves if they want it established.

The faculty and the Regents should be asked to allow the organization of such a store and to furnish a room in the "Ae" buildings for it. The organization should then be perfomed and our suggestion would be that the managing board be under joint supervision of faculty and students that it be best out of politics; and that up-to-date business methods, regular audits, etc., be pursued. The combination would have the small margin of profit, and the net profits at the end of each year could be put into working capital or donated to the Library fund or whatever other purpose the student body would see fit.

Submitted.

Be Prepared For It.

After the examinations are fully arranged for, Lewiston trip with "Arms and the Man," was quietly taken by a group charged with taking over. is an example of "indiscipline" in the first act, the law students about gave up hope of putting on their spring play. This was because the circumstances would require characters both male and female to be filled by stages. It is to be hoped however that the university faculty have recovered sufficiently from the excellent "Prep's" in the form of the "Prep's" in this direction, so that they may have the courage to attend the Law School play and that they may bring their small sailing sails along in order that they may immediately recover from any infamous scenes.

Harmful Methods.

If there is one thing more than all others which is today exerting a marked influence upon the college spirit, it is the presence of unsavory methods in politics in; petty class elections and affairs there is a lack of unity and spirit, and most of this evil results from the way in which the class elections are run, from the uncollegial strife in trying to be placed on some petty committee; or from the rancor felt by the candidate which is not the fault.

What will it matter ten or twenty years from now whether you got to be secretary to the class man or a general-in-arms of the homecoming class? You will probably look back and wonder "What
THE EXCELLENT SHOWING MADE BY THE IDAHO STATE BAR EXAMINATION SHOULD BE INCREASED.

The excellent showing made by the Idaho students at the recent state bar examination should be increased. The College of the Idaho bar examination is held in the fall of each year. The department is young, the faculty is strong in all branches, and the equipment and facilities are new.

No instruction either ecclesiastical in religion or parochial in politics shall ever be allowed in any department of the University. Revised Codes of Idaho, section 490.

The foregoing extract from the laws of this state shows perfectly clear and explicit. Yet it is surprising to learn that at least one member of the University faculty has misunderstood its import. Either that or the faculty is in favor of going back to the days of theocracy.

The College of Law is fortunate in being able to have members of the local bar take interest in the department to such an extent that they take pride in having their own members.

Young man. If you reside in Idaho, you do not have to study law. You can if you wish. The advice of those who teach, speak on experience and elect the Idaho Law School, you will make no mistake. This statement may be well supported by the excellent showing made by the students who took the bar examination in Lewiston on April 6. All passed with high marks, and the students, faculty and school were highly complimented by the Court for the excellent showing made.

Did you know that there is a law in Idaho forbidding the use of the public drinking cups and public toasts? It is a fact that such a law exists and it is also a fact that the law is not very wisely and favorably viewed here in the University. Railroads, hotels and municipalities are almost inevitably very careful to observe the provisions of the law but not the University. The law is not merely seen, it is been observed by their ministers.

Local legal circuses are an exchange of good will, and the legal community is not likely to enthusiastically and warmly receive it.

Early Cockret, putting in, "Mr.
Armstrong, would you like to have my law help?"
Perhaps this advice could be taken with greatest profit by some of our innovative lawyers.

The following question was asked in a recent examination in the course in property. The answer quoted herein was given by Chamberlain:
"If you rented your farm to ten of your uncles and they committed waste upon the same, and after that you commenced suit for damages, what would that attorney probably advise?" Answer: "He would advise them to demur on the ground of mis-judger of

Willing to Take the Blame.

The other day a prisoner was brought before Judge Wilber of the University of Idaho Moct Club, but was not rep-resented by a lawyer.

"Where is your lawyer?" inquired
the judge.

"I have none," replied the prisoner.

"Why not?"

"I have no money."

"Would you like to have me appoint one for you?"

"If you would, your honor."

"Well, let's see," answered the judge.

"There's Nuffice, Woods, Hoebler, Griner, Petenson, Parker and Whitten, pointing to a group of anxious young lophics who were in the court room at the time waiting for something to turn up, "and Mr. Rice is out in the corridor. You may have your pick of any of them."

The prisoner, knowing any of the gentlemen named, carefully eyed the budding attorneys pointed out to him,
and after a hasty but careful survey, scowled his head and with a sip of the Judge, "Well, I guess I will take Mr. Rice."

stop all such proceedings. If they come up with new methods, some day there is the possibility that we will have

Law Dictionary Published by New Authors

The first volume of a badly needed publication—a comprehensive dictionary—has made its appearance: "The new work is from the pens of Messrs. Mason and Lucas, who have made their debut in the field of legal literature. Volume I shows a most careful compilation of legal definitions, and the new work will undoubtedly receive a most hearty welcome among the legal profession.

The authors infer that the Arogran that they are de depth indebted, among others, to Messrs. John and Parker for the kindness of these last named gentlemen in furnishing the authors much valuable information during the 1 o'clock class periods while the gentlemen named were taking their daily after-dinner nap.

Excerpts of legal terms from the new publication follow:
Abandonment—When she sends him the writ; sometimes results in breach of promise suits.
Abstract of title—A marriage certificate.
Accession—When one fellow acquires title by cutting another out of his girl.
Accord and satisfaction—Where one fellow agrees to tick another for an insult, and then goes ahead and performs his part of the agreement.
Attachment—A serious thing to have happen to one in college. Try to avoid these, and if she still persists consult an attorney. He may be able to save you.
Agency—Getting her sorority sister to find out whether or not BHS has a date.
Bankruptcy—The financial status of law students.
Bill of exchange—Pawn tickets.
Bailment—When she lets you hold her hand. Letting her wear your frat pin is another example, but this denotes a most serious state of mind, and requires the greatest of care.
Chary—Sitting quietly in a class while some inarticulate member tells what he thinks the case stands for.
Contracts—Something to be made ambiguous (this makes business for the lawyer.)
Costs—Tipping your hat to Frexie, Unknown to some.
Commercial paper—Something seldom seen by students.
Crimes—Cutting across the campus; still has for freshmen seeking on the campus (capital punishment); being in the law department—it is a virtue in the other departments making in the law drill; being C. H. W.; attendance record; volunteering information in classes when all others members have got their cases; expelling revelations on Monday mornings; letting some of the faceless talk in assembly.

Compeleging felony—When you call does not go down well who reads from another's

Compassion—Something that the lawyer expects hereafter.

Compromise—A matrimonial arrangement which students sport around the campus, Composition with creditors—Telling the bill collector that you will pay him when you can.

Conspiracy—When Professors Witham and Wilson get together and spend half the night grunting out an "exem" hard enough to Contempt—When you really can't pay attention to the "Choral notes" that are handed out some time.

Conversion—Forgetting to return a library book.

Coven—Letting the seniors recite when possible—seldom shows.

Defeats—"No! But I am so sorry.
I had a date made two weeks ago. You know how awfully sorry I am, don't you?"

Disorderly house—A rough house by college students.

desires—Militar
d for the Holons.

Elections—Where you can get en
even by nominating your rival.

Estoppel—That principle of the law that forbids an explanation of the long hair found on your shoulder.

Evidence—That long hair and a touch of powder on your shoulder; some of the fellows introduce it frequently.

False imprisonment—Keeping classes over time (C. W. R. tax notice.)

Figures—Roberts's stiff bat.
A decision of the faculty (they never change their minds).

Franchise for years—A proceded courtship.

Fraud—Abstractly defined as "cheating," cannot be found in the College of Law.

Gift—A note to any law student.

Judgement—50%—your note book won't help you out.

Judge—McIntoshes.

Jury—The most thankless thing on earth, nothing excep-Label and slander—Calling a student a "book worm."

Lis pendens—A pending suit, a courtship.

Negligence—A clumsy break of an object.

Nonfeasance—The guy that takes your girl out.

Oath—"By dana.

Paw brother—The student friend in time of need.
Pleadings—The important part of a "suit"; should be well pre-careful and carefully rehearsed on back of lecture cards.

Public nuisance—Attendance and reading records. The usual ac-nouncement, "Ain't the weather rotten."

"A Thing Done Right Is Done Forever.

Burley, Idaho
“Casey Jones” was a rounder, with Charley Hendley’s sidekick, Little Red Rose, big, “Wistful Eyes.” One evening when the “Indian Summer” was at its best, and while the band was playing the “Twilight Serenade,” Casey stole away for a little stroll “By the Light of the Silvery Moon.” He wore a large “Red, Red Rose” in his buttonhole, and with it a little more diversion, something possibly along the line of “The Girl Question.”

Now Casey was a married man, but he was happy, nevertheless. He was glibly whistling “My Wife’s Gone to the Country,” for he had left that morning for a week’s visit with her. Casey had heard of the saying “Be a Bachelor While You Can,” and he was going to take advantage of the situation.

As he was strolling along in this happy mood, he espied “Two Little Maids” executing “The Dance of the Grizzly Bear” with artistic skill on the shady side of “Mobile Bay” and singing “I Want to be a Fairy.” One of these “Angel Eyes” appealed especially to Casey, and he determined to make a bit. She had “Laughing Dolls,” and was a regular “Baby Doll.” She wore a bunch of “Dandelions” in her hair, and her “Eyes of Irish Blue” completely captured Casey. In fact she was “Just a Bird.”

“Every Little Movement” increased Casey’s interest, and made him determined to make an acquaintance “In the Same Old Way.”

Ignoring her second dance, Casey broke into the game with the following line of “Baby Talk” addressed to the one he had singled out: “Lady Lou, if that’s your name, ‘You Look Good to Me’; ‘Kid, You’ve Made a Hit With Me,’ Oh, You Dream, ‘You’re the Sweetest Bunch of Violas’ I have ever seen. ‘There’s Something Nice About You.’ ‘I’m a Law- yer,’ and also ‘I’m the Only Son of a Multi-Millionaire.’ ‘I Want Some One’ to Call Me Dearie; Won’t You Be My Honey ’ ’ ‘You’ve Blinded Me, ’ ‘I Wonder If It’s True’; ’Who, Me? I’m Not the Man,’ ” replied Casey, but his heart beat rapidly “Under the Tropical Moon.” Pretending to be deeply hurt by this accusation, it took some time to coax Casey back to his normal state of mind; but after the little hint of “Here Comes the Sun,” “How Much Would You Pay for a運用 the thought that Casey had been his own joy as long as he was

ANNOUNCEMENT!
This space, which is usually given over for my professional card, will be used between this date and April 19, 1918, in announcing my candidacy for the office of Mayor of Coeur d’Alene, Idaho, on the heart-bursting and soul-binding principles as laid down by the Socialist platform.

You have seen the results of the present socialist administration. It is positively the best that the present population can comprehend, and really better than they deserve. It will be my policy to continue the wise and broad way laid down by the present administration, and I earnestly solicit your support.

Signed: GEORGE CAMPBELL,

Last Saturday evening the Delta Gamma girls gave a dance in the Grandstand at the Union. A large number of students and guests attended. The gym was the scene of a social gathering of considerable proportions.

TWO BASEBALL LEAGUES OPENED LAST SATURDAY

The plan of inter-class and inter-fraternity baseball games was ushered into existence last Saturday without ceremony or manifestation. Two games were played, one between the Seniors and the Juniors and the other between the Zeta Delta and the Non-Fraternity team. Although the day was rather cold, there was considerable interest taken in the games, and quite a number turned out.

The Juniors got another run in the sixth, making a total of 10 runs.

The second game of the day was between the Non-Fraternity team and the Zeta Deltas. This resulted in a non-score for the Non-Fraternity team and the score of 6 to 5. It was called immediately after the Senior-Junior game. The batteries were: Non-Frat, Hayden and Favre; Zeta Deltas, Dunning and Robinson.

The Zeta Deltas secured two runs in the first inning, one in the fourth and two in the sixth inning. The Non-Fraternity team secured their first run in the fourth and by a rally in the fifth, made three more runs and took the lead. In the first half of the seventh inning they annexed two more runs, winning the game thereby.

THE PIRATES OF PENZANCE

Seats for the first performance of The Pirates of Penzance will be placed on sale at the Boxer's office the Monday evening that school reopens after spring vacation. Manager Watts intends that the first night of the engagement shall be for the students and the interscholastic visitors and that the people of Moscow shall be catered to the second evening.

In all probability, the medals will be awarded the winners of the various events of the meet at the Friday evening performance. The members of the visiting teams will be the guests of honor and the night will be practically given over to them.

Special scenery is being made in Spokane for the production and it will be staged in the most elaborate manner of any thing of the sort ever given at the university. The piece is to be advertised in Pullman and other Pahouise towns and many old of town spectators are expected.

Hon. O. E. McCutcheon, Dean of the College of Law.

LAW GRAD'S PICTURE OF HEAVEN.
W. H. MASON, '12.
1 When the last senior class is attended, and the case books are all put aside, When the final exam has been written, and All of the faculty have died, We can halt in the march of our progress, Unhampered with care, for two or two And let behope that the Master of workmen, In Heaven won't set us to working anew.
2 Up there there will be no cramming for Torts, And Evidence will give us no pain. And all of the lectures on Bills and Notes Will be replaced by old college games, And Truce and Probate Law and stud.
3 No Domestic Relations or Partnership, or much, Nor any of the Rules of Insurance, Nor a subject of Bankruptcy, nor any Examina- tion, Nothing to cause us impatience. But Criminal Law, Peddling and that from the Codes, Will still be in force—but not equity, And the Penal Procedure will yet be the law, To deal with all crimes and the law faculty.
4 Also remember, there'll be no assembly, And just when we wish we may cut the gym. And all of the fellows go "hissing," Or with voices in tune sing an old college hymn. The students who think will be spared the cone line. Or at least, that's the news we are told, And the Course of Law will be out, And all will be blissful: but hold—
5 Will profs. we know as mere mortals, Greet us near the bright pearly gate? Will Wilber, in dread Corporations, Reproach us for coming up late? Will Wilson grow cautious in Contracts, Because a few questions we miss? Will Moore have his Seniors in Practice? But, no, let us love this never.
6 Will Prede. be there to advise us, To conduct that important registr- ation, To see that our courses are proper, And subscribe to our matriculation? Will McCoombe be there with his talent, To see that we do things up right, To insure us a trial, both speedy and fair, And to urge us to plead with our might?
7 But to them, after all, for their labors and care, To the venerable faculty, a debt do we owe, And while we all wish for their pres- ence up there, And that they'll escape from the wrath of below, Deep down in our hearts, we utter a prayer, That if they precede us in getting up there, They'll cut out their lectures and leave off advising.

First Supreme Court Decision. The first supreme court decision of the Practice Supreme Court of the Law School was handed down last Monday afternoon, the per- sonnel of the Court being Chief Justice Harris and associate Justices McCann and Buffington. The action arose upon a suit brought by a promissory note given in pay- ment for a harvester. The defend- ant set forth in his answer as a defense a contemporaneous oral agreement whereby the note sued on was to be released if the bar, which the note was payable to, did not run efficiency. Plaintiff moved for judgment on the pleadings, upon the ground that the answer of the defendant did not set forth a defense to the action. The District Court allowed the motion and ordered judgment for the face of the note, interest thereon, and costs, in favor of the plaintiff.

The defendant appealed from the judgment of the district court. After argument in the supreme court by counsel for the plaintiff and the defendant the cause was taken under advisement. The extre- me court reversed the decision of the district court, holding that the answer of the defendant was insufficient; and remanding the case to the district court with instruction to set aside the judgment of the plaintiff, and to proceed with the trial of the case in conformity to the decision of the supreme court. Attorney Beilger said Hoehler represented the plaintiff, and the defendant was represented by attorneys Bond and Nuffer.

Bleachers Moved. The field manager of the athletic field had a number of students under his charge last Thursday evening moving a part of the bleachers back to the south side of the track. As soon as the grounds dry out the diamond and track will be thoroughly scrubbed and gone over with rakes and shovels. The recent rains have delayed this work, and the games last Saturday had to be played on a rough diamond.

Oh, You Leap Year! E.—Me too. —J. —B. at F reshmen Glee.
E. —"Say Jim have you a date for the Senior Ball yet?" Jim.—"No, not yet," E. —"Well, how a—?" J. —(hinting wise suddenly) "Why I'd like to have you go with me." E.—"Why how nice of you to think of it. Certainly I'll go.

FRESHMAN GLEE.
The Freshman Class gave their an- nual "Glee" last Friday evening. Pursuant to an established custom, the hall was very informal, but the beauty of the decorations and the exquisite quality and arrangement of the music, made it one of the most enjoyable of the year. The Glee was held in the Gym which was decorated with blue and white bunting, the colors of the class. A booth placed in the cen- ter and decorated with Idaho colors, was occupied by theorchestra, and Crazy corners and nooks were provided which made the hall quite homelike. In one corner, a holiday decorated booth was erected and from which punch and wafers were served to the dancers. A goodly number of college students and friends of the University were in atten- dance, and there was an air of per- fect enjoyment about the hall throughout the whole evening. Miss French, Mrs. Caruth and Mrs. J. A. MacLean were the patrons and constituted the receiving line.

Miners to Take Trip. The junior and senior miners will leave Friday or Saturday for a two week's trip to mines in Brit- ish Columbia. They will visit the mines and learn something of the methods employed at Rossland. They will also make an examina- tion of the equipment and methods of smelting on Trail.

This will be their first practical experience as a class in field geol- ogy and mine surveying.

NOTICE.—The Bulletin Board in the Administration Building will hereafter be cleared weekly.

Men's hats can be had here for less. The regular $2.50 but for only $2.25. Why pay more? Come to the Hub and get use.

A Law class Recitation.

Parker had not been gathered to the arms of Morphants But Nuffer had not even taken a chew.
Rico was not sitting on the back of his neck. Chamberlain had just commenced to shine his shoe on Horkin’s back. Judge McGarry was to classe on time. A strange, still silence reigned. The dean, with 15 Cy under his arm, walked gingerly to his chair, carefully adjusted his spectacles, and in his usual, energetic manner called the roll. Peterson pointed his right hand heavenward and said, “That is correct because it is just what I was going to say.”

All being present or accounted for, active hostilities began, “Mr. Duffey, did you read Barrelle v. Bottes?”

“I did.”

“Will you recite on it?”

“Yes, sir.”

Thereupon, with much gusto
Mr. Duffey did so in a very finished manner.

“What was the judge’s name?”

“I don’t know.”

“Where and when was he born?”

“Can’t say.”

“Did he ever practice law in the state of Michigan?”

“That is a very poor recitation, Mr. Duffey, you should get the important points in a case.”

Mr. McGarry severely criticized the judgment of the supreme court, citing as authority in support of his contention the opinion of one Fleuret, the “talented and distinguished legal light of his home town, Cornell, and the Handbok of Universal Human Knowledge and Compendium of Ready information, including among num-eros and divers other things of interest, the language of flowers.
Mr. Collier B. Bulington rejoined that the opinion of the supreme court should not be questioned and its dignity as an informational document must be respected as the only one which has been published. These are the words of Mr. Duffey, the recitation of which is the subject of this class.”

Mr. Duffey answered, “Yes.”

Wood, in order that the dean would notice his presence, read the law with respect to naming wild bees.

The discussion with respect to waste waters was settled by Mr.
Harris’s concise statement of the law on that subject which was as follows:

“It is clearly the rule that waste waters are not waste waters until usefully wasted.”

Hepher stated in this connection that he preferred antipodes
in predation of prospectus evidence under the express rule of retro-rective effect concerning hauxus corparum and actions ex delict contrary to public policy.

Silence was golden.

Peterson’s hand had perempted.

With a feeling of sadness, the dean dismissed the class, assigning for the next recitation three chapters in Mills, 23 pages in Oyo, and Request to Limit Number to 11

Unavailing—Selections of Positions Given.

Now that the 1911 1912 collegiate season and intellectual training period is coming to a close, the Law Edition staff of the Argonaut is being besieged with inquiries as to the make-up of an all-Northwest Star Faculty. We have referred all such communications to our greatest educator of all times Experience, and as a result are able to make public this week the selection.

We were requested to limit the number to 11—the same as a football all-star selection—but have been unable to do so: The teams to be chosen from the universities and colleges of Oregon, Washington and Idaho; but we could find none outside of Idaho to qualify.

Here is the selection which Experience dictates:

Maclean—Athletic coach; Captain of the team, deserves the position of captain because of his all-round character.

Eldridge—Mechanical Engineering; this peerless leader is a good steady player, and is always in on the team work; his smile has helped to turn defeat into victory for his team mates on many occasions.

Little—Domestic Science; does not make much noise, but is always there with the goods.

Holmes—Wood Working; his diplomatic methods have induced many high school graduates to seek the fountain of higher education.

Axtell—Animal Husbandry; rather light, but hearty; like the roses that waste their fragrance upon the desert air, he labors daily with the B. A.'s on his brain.

McCall—Library Science; deliberate and uses good judgment; always in the game.

Cary—Civil Engineering; can always be depended upon for good gains; makes a splendid advance agent and advertising member.

Shattuck—Dairying; calm and selfpossessed; never gets rattled, and is the first to see through the maneuvers of the enemy.

Nicholson—Romance Languages; has a great eye for small things.

McCutcheon—Purge Week; looks twice before leaping or bucking the line, and is always right when he acts.

Stefan—Horticulture and Greek; a rare combination of brains and modesty.

Wilber—Astronomy; the reincarnation of Abe Lincoln; always in the game to the last moment.

Palermo—Veterinary Science; plays a good, clean game.

Wilson—Military Science; has lots of pep; and plays a remarkably offensive game, and defensive, too.

Aldrich—Voice Culture and Choral Work; has played the game longer than any of his associates at Idaho, and shows no signs of going stale.

Jenkins—Maroon and Financial Agent; a very faithful member, popular with the fans.

Encampment and Vacation.

The annual encampment of the University cadets will take place next week, and during that period college classes will be suspended.

The cadets will go to Oregon d’Aleene this year, according to the plans formulated. They will leave Moscow Monday morning at 8:30 in a special train over the Spokane & Island railway.

The heavy baggage will be loaded into a baggage car Saturday under the directions of Quartermaster Captains B. E. Davis and Quartermaster Sergeant Horling and Anderson. The light baggage will be put aboard Monday morning.

The cannon will be taken also by the installation.

Many of the University students who reside in North Idaho and places comparatively close to Moscow will spend the spring vacation thus afforded at home.

President Eagleson of Phi Gamma Delta visited the Phi Delta Theta boys for a short time last week.

The work done by Griffith as empire was of a high order, and there was no squabbling over his decisions.

Seniors Ride to Mountains.

Last Wednesday about twenty-five of our Seniors dropped for the day the arduous pursuit of knowledge and took themselves to Idlers Rest on Moscow Mountain. The day, a short one for the Seniors, was happily spent in shooting, baseball and strolling. Then around a big camp fire provided by the Senior Gold Dust Twins, Jordan and Ellis, they had a sumptuous lunch which had been prepared by the Senior girls.

Then it rained.

Shelter, however, was found in a cozy cabin, and around a bright fire the seniors told stories and sang songs until the last crumbs of the lunch were gone.

Tennis Tournament.

A challenge has been received from the Lewiston High School for a tennis tournament to be held in Moscow in conjunction with the Inter-Scholastic Track meet. The challenge has not yet been accepted, but has been turned over to the Athletic Board, for their action. The Board will probably appoint a manager soon.

No definite plans have been made, but Mr. Vander Veer thinks that the tournament will be held. The prospective players are Hoobler, Ruffington, Kennedy, Jordan, and Humphries.

The Theta Mu Epsilon fraternity entertained at a Sunday evening luncheon the Misses Brown, the Delta Gamma officers who visited the local chapter of that society, Dean Eldridge, Mrs. Eldridge, and Elizabeth Redway, Eva McFaul, General Hague and Margaret Neuman.

Vernon Fansett of the department of Botany will be in Southern Idaho for about three weeks to inspect the seed houses and to see whether they are complying with the laws of the state.

Prof. L. F. Childers of the Agronomy department has accepted the management of the Paul Clagstone ranch consisting of about 1500 acres of which 1000 are under cultivation. This ranch is located 3/4 miles from Clagstone Junction in Bonner county, Idaho. Mr. Childers will leave with his family to begin his new duties Wednesday of this week.

have to wait to see H. O. tack the "M. C." sign to the other end of his cognomen and assume the role of law maker, or law interloper.

Bond was admitted to practice in the state of Idaho at the current examination held in Lewiston.

James Harris, '12.

James Harris, '12, expounds jurisprudence to his upper constituents in Washington County. Jim takes keen delight in playing the great college games in which he has represented the University for one season, but the grandest times of his life are the days in which an election is pending. His jovial conformance actually radiates the pleasures of a good political party—fair and square, but hard to beat. He is another member of the Idaho Bar, and is President of the Athletic Board.

Roy Johnson, '12.

Roy Johnson, '12, peer for that reason has elected to pursue the farm and fireside life. His only moments of inoculation were when he was contemplating the embalming business. It was hard to decide but Coatye finally made arrangements for an office with a prominent Moscow merchant and his future is assured, as far as his happiness is concerned. Johnson has always been prominent in student affairs; he was a member of the Athletic Board, and manager of the 1911 football team.

L. E. O'Neil tried engineering

until he got old enough to know his own mind and of course, changed to law. The said O'Neil has two ambitions, not necessarily complimentary, one is to become a lawyer and the other is to become a family man. From present indications he is working straight for his goal. Larry comes of lawyer stock. His father, Eugene

O'Neil of Lewiston is one of the leading attorneys of North Idaho.

from "Bill" to do an unscrupulous act. His sole ambition, one of them, is to dispose Clarence

Darrow, and for this latter purpose he is practicing his profession as "kid catcher" i.e. a juvenile officer for Laah county, and may be found almost any day

applying his methods of detection,

or detention, on youthful offenders. His methods do not exactly coincide with those of Ben Lindsley, but they serve the same purpose. At present his most important "case," however, seems to be in another county—outside of his local jurisdiction. "Bill" is now

a full-fledged lawyer, having captured a certificate upon his recent visit to Lewiston. In his more youthful days, and while a student in the B. A. course from 1905 to 1907, he was on three winning inter-collegiate debate teams, and took part in other collegiate activities.

Herbert W. Whitton, Sp., when not overwhelmed with work has a bright and genial disposition.

However honestly bits us add that

Herb is unusually sociable at all times. He is of stock and the most regular caller at a certain sorority home near Dr. Morley's.

He is a member of the Varsity track team and sings on the Glee Club.

Legal Right—Judge Fremont

Wood of Boise, born with a profession appended, to some would be an injustice, but not so with Carlton. He has taken into his stride set for him with consumma-ted ease, and one could not find a man in a days walk who expects to progress faster. Youth, ambition, opportunity are all his and no doubt be will make the best of each. He is a member of the College Orchestra.

Remarks from the layman and profession, often appear impertinet and even injudicious to the layman's ear. So that he shall be given an apology for any thoughts that seem to carry little or no deference to other and

The object of this article is to trace in a historical manner the popularity regard in which the legal profession has always been held,
the causes and its effects, and, if possible, to determine a method by which it may be changed, for that regard has never been complimentary. Beginning in Biblical times, a law, as in Enki IX, 45, a such a sentiment: "Woe unto you, ye lawyers! for ye have mourned, ye have taken the key of knowledge, ye have entered not in yourselves, and them that were entering in ye hindered.

Besides the reasons
given here for such reproach
the same Saint declared in Chap. VI, 20. The Pharisees and lawyers rejected the counsel of God against themselves.

It is apparent that lawyers occupied a position similar to the modern lawyer. Even in the meanest of his livelihood, he was discouraged in Cor. VI, 7: "Now therefore there is utterly a fault among you, because ye go to law one with another." Other writers of the same period could be quoted who have quite generally depicted the lawyer, as, in the words of Milton, "Living in litigious times, especially of "The law as it is,"
when it was, and of "The law as it was, when it was," and of "The

AS OTHERS MIGHT SEE US

What is the lawyer that he should anticipate himself into believing that he is the big note? The lawyer, conciliated and important, is small doughnuts and few in a tissue paper baglet, all for a nickel.

When he is born, his parents point with pride to his budding bump of knowledge, and predict that he will be the president some day, as he grows older they tell him he will make a bright lawyer, and he is deluded with the idea that he has brains and forensic ability, and gets up after all the school and with ridiculous attempt at impressiveness speaks a verse with a noble sentiment like the following: "Let love and be upon Dear Old Hart for my fate, Still He's a man, still persevering, learn to label Aunty Wate," and sits down in sweet, childish confusion, while enthusiastic schoolmarmies applaud, the teacher compliments and parents praise.

He grows from a precocious youngster into a balloon-headed man and enters College and the Law School with the idea that he is going to be a second Abraham Lincoln. Before he is graduated he thinks the whole world is waiting breathlessly for his advent, and after he is graduated he falls without so much as a splash or the caustion of a ripple into the bottomless sea of obscurity, and at the age of fifty consents himself successful if he has a collection business and a justice court calendar of three cases, with funds enough to keep up a $2,000 life insurance policy, and to buy a plug of Piper Heidrick twice a week.

He springs up today and flourishes like a bootlegger in a dusty town and tomorrow or the day after, the undertaker comes with his tape-line and takes his measure.

He weds, mayhap, a wealthy girl with a job lot of freckles, and the next day her pa fails with many liabilities and no assets, and comes to abide thenceforth with his startled son-in-law.

He makes much ado at the front door of the house while the world goes on admiringly, while at the back door his wife, armed with broom and poker, stands off the furniture man and the grocer's collector.

The cellar of life for him is full of penurious splinters, but he slides down it with utter disregard of the speed limit. In the midst of life he runs into debts, but he crawls out at a snail's pace, if at all.

He goes forth in the early morning to conquer the world, but the world resists to be conquered, and so he comes home an ambulance man.

He prepares for his profession by reading Blackstone and other truck, and compiling cases for his keep in the back office of some house-plate firm of established reputation, or else he enters a law school and learns it all in three years.

He rubs his nose in the dust of dead centuries accumulated between the mortar-saves, and grawns leaves of dusty volumes piled on the shake shelves of some dingy law office and then he imitates the dust on his nose is real earthworm of the century, and he belts himself a progressed—and talks about "modern ideas.

The dead arm of the past, extending from the shoulder of the "time when the memory of man runneth not to the contrary," holds him fast by the coat-tail, but he seizes the banner of leadership in politics and calling "forward march," bids the world follow him, and he makes motions like unto a man walking ahead, but moves not.

He cites precedent on his side of the case when precedent favors his case, and he quotes precedent and pleads a consideration of equity and justice when precedent is unfavorable to his contentions.

He runs for office, preferably county attorney, to get himself before the people, and he puts the public on the back during the campaign and afterward squeezes the voter who comes to him with a case for his last cent.

He sits up until 3:00 a.m. to hear the election returns, is at the back townhall, and learns in the end that the other fellow has chopped his bet.

He labors long and late at the cases and has a face array of authorities and a beautiful bald prepared to go in to court next day, and next day the court flatters his authorities in his face, knocks the underpinning out of his brief and hands the decision to the other fellow.

He reminisces late at the office chasing a legal proposition to its bir, the goes home to encounter a rocking-chair in a dimly lighted hall. The rocker rises in its might and puts him on the milkman's course.

In the early spring he discards his flannel, and a breeze from Medicine Hat comes his way and he is filled to overflowing with rheumatism.

With the advent of summer he goes off "on a frolic of his own," camps in the mountains and gorges himself with vegetables fresh from the dusty cans of the village grocer, and a multitude of creeping things hold nightly carnival on his person.

In the fall begins the winter of his discontent, the perennial trial of his existence. The furnace camps on his trail and he is filled with wood, scot, ashes and profanity.

And this is the lawyer man, whose remaining conclusion is that the law is at least a noble profession.—University of Montana "Weekly Rainyin.'

You will find good workmen and a clean shop at the Hotel Moscow Bar near shop.

Make Tradition of Campus Day

Idaho lacks traditions. She has but few, and the season therefore probably lies in the fact of her youth. A tradition to be born dies come down from the time when the memory of man runneth not to the contrary. At any rate, we have a few, and also a few in the process of evolution.

One of the most beautiful of these latter traditions is Campus Day. From its inception it has had a large place in the hearts of Idaho's students. Three years ago, Miss French, Dean of Women, proposed the plan and it was immediately accepted by faculty and students alike.

The arrangements for this year have not been made as yet, but they will follow the lines laid down last year, though they will probably have more of interest than the previous Campus Day.

There will be music, speeches and dances, and it is probable that "As You Like It" will be presented, Miss Wold has under preparation several dancing features, and it is hoped that she will this year surpass the beautiful double Maypole dance of last year.

The date will be in the latter part of May.

To Miss French and to those who assisted her the hearty thanks of the students of this University are due. They have given to Idaho a tradition which will live as long as the institution, and which will become in time a real tradition.

Good Exercise for Pop.

Teacher received the following note:

"Dear Mum—Please increase little Abbe's allowance today. He is setting as timekeeper for his father. Last night you gave him this example: If a field is four miles square how long will it take a MAN, walking 3 miles an hour, to go 24 miles around it? Asher ain't no man so we had to lose his daddy. They left early and John said they should be back tonight but it would be hard going. Dear mum, please make the next problem about ladies, as John can't afford to lose the days sleep.

The Lord knows I don't have no time to waste, but I can spare the time better than John can.

SHORT SKETCHES OF THE LAWYERS.

John R. Wheeler is another man who came to his right mind after studying engineering for a year. After remaining out of college for three years working and observing—so to speak—the law—Jack returned to the University but in the College of Law instead of the College of Engineering. He a "legume athlete" having won an "I" in baseball and track. In the former branch he was elected captain for the present year. Wheeler left college at the beginning of the second semester, but intends to come back and graduate with his class.

Geo. C. Campbell, '14, is another ex-Idaho student. He re-registered the present semester and since he has studied law independently will graduate in two years. His home is in Coeur d'Alene and it is there he expects to practice.

Parker V. Lucas, '13, leading forensic battier came out of Central Idaho last fall to enroll in the College of Law. He has several distinctive qualities, i.e. he has won both the Ridenhour and the Dewey debate prizes and has led of the Argument. After graduation "Lake" intends to go back to Meadows for a few years and then to the U.S. Senate or some diplomatic station in Europe—and they might get worse men in either place.

P. B. Rheingold, '12, came to the University of Idaho from Wisconsin where he was both popular and did exceptional work. He is a Wisconsin debater of note and his oratorial work there was rewarded with several medals. While taking law he was also employed by the Agricultural Department as instructor in a couple of their courses.

But say! Did you ever notice anything about the name of Ver. kins? Not an unusual name you say? No, but Prentis R. Perkins of the Idaho Law School is an unusual man. From 1906 to 1908 he was enrolled in B. A. work where he did things with his usual efficiency. In 1910 he came back and entered for a full law course from which he will graduate in 1913 with both B. A. and B. L. degrees. In 1908 he was manager of the Idaho track team and his name is noted as Captain of Co. B of the University Cadets. He is one of the defenders of Idaho's fair reputation on the gridiron where he has smiled while fighting for three football seasons. He was captain elect for 1913 and under his leadership the "Varsity eleven" is expected to clean up the Northwest. Yes, and in baseball too. "Preck" is a good player. He was a member of the "Varsity" baseball team in 1911 and is captain of the Junior class team this season. In basketball he is always willing to help cut out the "seab" in one or two games in 1912. Taken all around he is a mighty popular man of whom the Law School is proud. His popularity is easily accounted for he is everybody's friend, he is a good winner, a splendid looker, an optimist and an inveterate Idaho hooper.

Hugh Parker, '12, for a suitable office in that city. It is to be hoped that clients will not bury him so deeply with work that he will be obliged to neglect social duties for he is also strong there.

Verne L. Taylor, the man who never know when he is whipped in a "grieve and take" argument, is a member of the Publicity Committee of the Twin Falls Country Association. While his classmates cannot agree with him as to whether Idaho should follow Texas (his, and baseball tournaments are keen and he always keeps his eye on the ball.

Horace L. Chamberlin, '13, is an honor student in Law. His studies, however, do not prevent him taking interest in athletics. He helped the Law School football in 1911, and many out this year and enjoys a good game of baseball from any part of the ground.

Frank B. Doxon entered the Law School as a freshman in 1911 from the Albion State Normal. His extemporaneous speaking made him a hobby and he was strong a star on the Idaho team that defeated Whitman College in debate, March 29, 1912.

"Lengthy:" (R. D.) Leeper, one of the hardest working students in the College of Law and it is not only there that he works but he leaves his mark all along the line. He is vice-president of the Junior class, Field Manager in athletics and president of the Coeur d'Alene Club, in athletics he believes in giving the other fellows a chance to win, but just the same he is "there with the goods" when it comes to all kinds of class business.

He is a debater whom Idaho can look for strong debate material. Practically his only vice is his occasional interest in newspaper ventures and for this edition he is the faithful business manager to ye editor.

Harry Moadams is one of your cordial "ball follow well met" sort of a chap, and while he entered the Law School only a few months ago, has already a large circle of friends and as a member of one of the important committees of the Twin Falls Country association he is doing good boosting for Idaho.

He is an active member of the Victor Price Debating society and is managing President Taft's interest in the Republican National Convention which is to be held to night.

J. Irvin Griner is popular with the ladies but that does not interfere with his interest in other lines. He represented Idaho in the half-mile race in the track meet when he was a "prepp." His interest in the class basketball tournament is keen and he always keeps his eye on the ball.

Lester Algernon Hohler, when he is not specializing with a bulky gasoline engine or some sort of farm machinery is usually to be found cultivating his voice, for he is a member of theinsertion committee, while his classmates cannot agree with him as to whether Idaho should follow Texas (his, and baseball tournaments are keen and he always keeps his eye on the ball.

L. G. Peterson is always good natured and while his smile is not exactly a duplicate of Bill Tafts, still it never comes off. He is "An Old Redtail" in the Y. M. C. A. work and has charge of one of their regular instruction classes. During all his college career he has been interested in debate work and is a member of the Victor Price Debating society.
