By Wyatt Buchanan

The University of Idaho administration removed an image from the main UI Web site Thursday, 10 minutes after a student made inquiries about its authenticity.

The graphic stemmed from a multimedia project, entitled "The Visible and Invisible: Information and Technology," that Volcanic art major Kendra Godwin created the picture by replacing two student portraits with the black male and an Asian male. However, the graphic was so similar to a picture of a research, it could not be identified whether it had been used in the graphic.

Godwin said it was a blunder and it would be removed from ITS replaced the image, which had been used on the university's Web site for several weeks, with a picture of a research.

"It is perfectly acceptable, in my knowledge, it is not the policy of the university to change images in the way," Godwin said.

Students question need for separate videos

Student fees will rise 10 percent after Spring semester 2001

WHAT COULD HAPPEN

UI will increase student fees 10 percent or 20 percent over the next two years.

UI is looking at charging students for student services. "For students who have a need for student services, it is in their best interest to pay for them," said UI spokesperson Pat Johnson.

Beginning with a 10 percent increase after the spring semester, the cost of the rec center at UI is expected to increase, Whitaker said.

A 10 percent increase in the cost of student fees is a result of a student vote to build a recreation center on the north end of campus, he said.

There is no cap on an increase, but increases over 10 percent have to be approved by the Board of Education.

Whitaker said that UI has already noted that they will not raise tuition even though UI is expected to increase, Whitaker said.

According to UI institutional research, if the state of Idaho approved the UI increases, UI said.

The College of Agriculture wants everyone to clean their own clothes, now and even more so next year. Megan Zellinski, University of Idaho senior, says that students and the community will come out to support the dairy scientists and the Ag Days Days today and Saturday.

"We recognize a group of people within the school, everyone from the students to the professors, to the universities and the college. We want Idaho Agriculture students all over the country to join in.

Ag Days begin today with the North Idaho milk check.

There will also be a food and activities that the agricultural science building and the faculty building from 11 a.m. to 13 p.m. and a panel discussion about the Ag Days of the future.
Record number of dads to visit UNIVERSITY

Dad's Weekend starts today as a record number of dads are expected for the faculty, staff and student programs. The program supervisor for Alumni Relations, said he expects about 600 dads to participate in events taking place today and through the weekend. There will be a variety of events held on and off campus throughout the day. The dad who will be the campus jean performance winner will be the dad who addresses the audience most times, but as usual unpaid internships and research opportunities for students will also be available.

The International Experience Grant, which rewards students free from $5 per semester, for a total of $5,000, will be available to students who have out of state fees. A student who has been offered a scholarship at the University of Idaho will receive a scholarship of up to $10,000.

The deadline for the spring semester applications was December 20 in 2010 for spring and summer semester applications respectively. The program is also on a similar program created in 2010 by the University of Texas, Austin, Boise State University, and Idaho State University.

This program instituted a student fee for scholarship programs. The International Experience Office put forth proposals in 2010 and 2011 for similar programs. Neuenschwander said.

The security behind the current program was Bill Wannam, UIU's Vice President in charge of Student Affairs, Wannam put together the guidelines for the program.

Bill shoots to ban image alterations

by KEVIN WARNER

MADISON, Wis. — In an attempt to prevent people from being subject to doctored photographs, a state lawmaker is taking the lead in proposing legislation to ban image alterations.

State Rep. Marilyn Schneider, D-Wisconsin Dells, announced Monday that she will introduce the legislation in January.

"In the digital age, the ability of people to use computers is so advanced that picture editing programs needs to be addressed," she said. "It could be extremely destructive to people's lives and reputations."

Schneider said she had pursued the topic in the state Legislature's last term but was stonewalled.

"I have been trying to bring it up in the governor's primary brain," she said. "They said, 'Where's your example?' Well, here it is."

The announcement comes after a recent report that University of Wisconsin-Madison officials had discovered alterations on five photos of the 2013 undergraduates. The alterations were to include an African-American professor.

Officials who made the discovery said they altered the photos in an attempt to alter a "problematic event," according to a university official.

The university will now repeat the fall photos of 100,000 freshmen with a new picture featuring the Memorial Union Terrace.

Residency the focus of student voters

By Frank Breeden
President's News Staff

Just as Baker wants students to know the importance of voting in their home counties, the University of Idaho wants to help students understand the significance of a vote in the county they call their home. By voting for local candidates, students can help elect people who will work for their best interests.

The University of Idaho's Legislative Awareness Month is an annual event that brings together students from all over the state to learn more about the legislative process. This year, the event will be held on campus from Oct. 10 to 30.

The purpose of Legislative Awareness Month is to raise awareness about the importance of voting and to increase participation in the political process. The event features a variety of activities, including lectures, workshops, and discussions on topics such as the history of voting rights, the mechanics of the electoral process, and the role of the media in politics.

In addition to these activities, the University of Idaho also encourages students to register to vote. The university has set up registration tables in the Student Union and in the Office of Student Life.

The University of Idaho is committed to promoting civic engagement and encouraging students to be active and informed citizens. By participating in Legislative Awareness Month, students can learn more about the political process and make a difference in their communities.

Washington - The Food and Drug Administration Thursday approved abortion pill RU-486, giving women another option for terminating an early pregnancy with drugs instead of surgery and eating the way for more doctors to offer abortion. The drug, approved for use through the Food and Drug Administration?'s fast-track approval process for promising new drugs, is called mifepristone, or RU-486. The pill, part of a two-drug regimen that works by causing a miscarriage, is the first approved abortion drug in the United States since the Supreme Court ruling in 1973 that it is legal for doctors to provide abortion services to women. The pill is expected to be available to women by late fall, and the FDA said it will be sold only through certification classes and enrollment in a patient registry. The drug is made to help abortion clinics and other birthing centers in the United States.

“RU-486 is a chemical approach to abortion at the earliest stages of pregnancy,” FDA Commissioner Margaret Hamburg said.

Currently, 86 percent of U.S. women have no abortion provider, but that could change under new FDA rules that allow nearly any doctor in the U.S. to prescribe RU-486 and Didn’t we already know that RU-486 is a pill that prevents implantation of a fertilized egg? Why are we discussing it again?"

Bush and Gore: the kiss to last a lifetime

ANDREA SCHIEBS
COLUMNIST

Bush and Gore: the kiss was drawn by the public in this election. It has been obvious that their kiss would be unforgettable. And I would even venture to say it would increase voter registration, as well as the probability of children in the future.

The President’s kiss, on the other hand, is a question of public concern. Why do the public need the kiss in this election? Why do they want the kiss? The public may be interested in the kiss, for a variety of reasons, but there is no doubt that the public is interested in the kiss.

The public is interested in the kiss because it is seen as a symbol of political correctness. The public wants to see the President and the Vice President kissing each other, because it suggests that they are comfortable with each other, and that they are committed to each other. The public is also interested in the kiss because it is seen as a symbol of the future. The public wants to see the President and the Vice President kissing each other, because it suggests that they are committed to each other, and that they are committed to the future.

BAN THE BASEBALL CAP

Save the world of fashion

Before I get into this, let’s take a look at the history of fashion. We can see how the fashion world has evolved over the years. The first fashion cap, the baseball cap, was created in the late 19th century. It was designed for baseball players, and it quickly became popular among the general public. The cap was a simple, functional design that provided protection from the sun and offered a sense of style. Over time, the baseball cap evolved into a popular accessory for everyday wear, and it has remained a staple in fashion ever since.

The baseball cap is a symbol of the American spirit. It represents the values of freedom, individuality, and self-expression. The cap is a throwback to a simpler time when people were able to express themselves through clothing. The cap is a reminder of the past and a symbol of our unique culture.

Jet along the Snake River with Dad

BY GLADYS EGGLESTON

Dad's weekend is here. For an adventure, rent a jet boat and cruise the 110 miles of the lower Snake River. The mouth of a real adventure is at Hells Canyon Dam, and the gradient ranges from gentle to steep. Travelers can fish, bird-watch, cycle, hike, view petroglyphs, swim, and bathe in the hottest springs in the world. The view is breathtaking, and the water is at least 90°F. The cost of a jet boat rental is about $150 for one hour.

The only bummer in the area that ruin jet boats is Aardvark's Adventure Co., located by Rich Eggleston. Aardvark's is a boat with a weathered and rusty appearance that may have seen better days. The boat is 15 feet and weighs about 800 pounds. The boat is for rental, and it can accommodate up to six people. The rental fee is about $150 per hour, and a driver's license is required. The boat can be rented on a weekly or monthly basis.

Approximately 150 miles away, a jet boat trip on Aardvark's Jet Boats plans is 3 to 4 hours long, offering some of the best scenery in the area. The trip includes a stop at Hells Canyon Dam, where visitors can see the dam and learn about its history. The boat can be rented for $500 per hour, and a driver's license is required. The boat can accommodate up to 24 people.

It is essential to follow safety measures when renting a jet boat. Always wear a life jacket, and never leave the boat unattended. In case of emergency, contact the nearest emergency services immediately. The Snake River is known for its strong currents and sudden changes in water levels. Always be aware of the weather and water conditions.

Fossil Hunting at Oviatt Creek

BY STEPHEN KAMINSKY

Warms, wet and brusolic: this is how Oviatt Creek is described. Sub-tropical plant life such as reeds, large trees, and magnolia thrives in the primordial forests. As platoons and stone-topped rocks edge the river bank, keeping it from meandering. The trail is one of the best in the Palouse area. Oviatt Creek is a gift to all who enjoy nature.

Fossil hunters can find 15-million-year-old leaves and plant material, adding to the unique experience. The creek is a popular spot for fishing, kayaking, and camping. The creek is a perfect place for outdoor enthusiasts.

Outdoorsman for All About Sports leads friends on ‘Donnie Adventures’

By KELLY COPPEN
Content Writer

His friends call him Donnie. Johnathan Johnston has been the ultimate outdoor guy to the All About Sports staff for years. In fact, when Johnathan bought his old family car, he said he intended to use it to explore the wilderness on his own. He does several outdoor excursions and keeps packing at the age of 23 years.

Johnathan likes to partake in skiing, snowboarding, hiking, and whitewater kayaking. Though he couldn’t choose a favorite, “snowboarding is probably the best,” he said. His friends call him Donnie, and he didn’t plan on being the best. No one else would do it, so he stepped up. Johnston and his friends are an active group of men who term “Donnie Adventures.”

Johnathan described an incident where he and a friend were on a trip that turned into an overnight adventure when things didn’t go as planned and his friend realized they were without nighttime supplies.

“Fortunately, Johnston’s faithful dog, Fatso, was there. They used Fatso’s white tail to lead them out of the wilderness. They used his tail as a compass and fatso as a guide to lead them back to the trail head and backpacking.”

When Johnston isn’t exploring the outdoors or working at All About Sports, he is working with handicapped children. He holds a Master’s in Special Education at University of Idaho. Johnston is now part of the Boise State University team “Fossils.” Johnston has a diverse background in the sciences, which he used to explore the wilderness on his own.

“His life is about learning and becoming better and sharing the things you’ve learned along the way,” said DONNIE JOHNSTON, an ALL ABOUT SPORTS representative.

IDaho Geological Survey dishes out maps

By STEPHEN RICHARD
Outdoorsman

People who need a map for some backcountry hiking, gold rush history hike, road trip or maps downtown Boise, the Idaho Geological Survey is a go-to source.)

The IGS offers a 3,200-square-mile area, covering 4,526 square miles of land and mountain ranges. The 13-square-mile, 1:2,000-scale, covers 197 to 322 square miles. The IGS offers a 1,250-scale, which covers 4,526 square miles, covering the area.

The IGS also offers a 1:62,500 Geologic Survey maps. These maps show mapped areas covered by the area. These maps, along with other topographic, which show elevations.

Gary Wells, administrative assistant for the IGS, said they do have a variety of maps online, and they also have maps with specialty maps. They house a huge library of resource maps and old mining claims.

All of these maps can be seen, shared, downloaded, and printed on the two-day map, as well as online in an area.

vandals defeat huskies

BY PETER LINNEN

For one year familiar with Vanderbilt football history, the past year was the most impressive to date. The Vandy Vols, led by quarterback Ken Ruhland and running back Tony Merrell, combined the necessary offense and defense to win the Missouri Valley Conference (MVC) championship.

A huge 31-12 victory over the University of Iowa, in a game that was only decided by a 16-yard field goal, marked the third game in row that the football team has scored more than 21 points.

The University of Iowa 19-10 win over the Minnesota Golden Gophers in the last game of the season brought the Big Ten title back to Iowa City.

"It was a great game, and we played well," said Ruhland after the game. "I'm proud of the way we handled the pressure.

"We played well on both sides of the ball, and we were able to control the game from the start."

Ruhland finished the game with 266 yards passing and three touchdowns, while Merrell rushed for 129 yards and a touchdown.

"We were able to control the game from the start, and we were able to take advantage of some big plays," said Merrell. "I'm really happy with the way we played, and I'm looking forward to next season."

The Vandy Vols will face off against the University of Illinois in the first round of the NCAA Tournament, and they are looking forward to the challenge.

"We're ready for the challenge," said Ruhland. "We've worked hard all season, and we're ready to take on the best teams in the country."

"We've got a lot of confidence in our team," said Merrell. "We're ready to take on the best teams in the country, and we're ready to make a run in the tournament."

vandals won't look over montana state

The University of Idaho's 42-14 win over Montana State in the season opener on Saturday, September 8, was a huge confidence booster for the Vandals.

"It was a great win, and it was important to get off to a good start," said UI coach Bryan Hagan. "We were able to control the game from the start, and we were able to take advantage of some big plays."

Hagan was pleased with the Vandals' performance, particularly on defense. "Our defense was great, and we were able to hold the Montana State offense to just 14 points."

"We were able to control the game from the start, and we were able to take advantage of some big plays," said Hagan. "I'm really happy with the way we played, and I'm looking forward to the rest of the season."

The concert also featured a variety of other musical performances, including a jazz band and a rock and roll band.

"It was a great night of music," said Hagan. "We were able to bring in a lot of different artists, and we were able to create a really fun atmosphere."

The Vandals will continue their season with a game against the University of Nevada on Saturday, September 15, at 2 p.m. at the UI's Kibbie Dome.

"We're really looking forward to the Nevada game," said Hagan. "We're confident in our team, and we're ready to take on the best teams in the country."

"We've got a lot of confidence in our team," said Hagan. "We're ready to take on the best teams in the country, and we're ready to make a run in the tournament."

Distinguished writer reads excerpts from her novel

By Katia Botkin

Distinguished writer and critic Zilica Kerber read from her latest novel, her upcoming novel, drawing in the audience with her stories about life and love.

In the story, the main character, a young woman, is wrestling with the idea of whether or not to have children. She is torn between her desire to have children and her fear of the responsibilities that come with parenthood.

As the novel progresses, the main character discovers that she is pregnant, which leads her to question her assumptions about motherhood and the expectations society places on women.

This novel explores themes of identity, self-discovery, and the complexities of modern life. It is a thought-provoking read that will leave you pondering the questions of what it means to be a woman and how our roles are defined by society.

The naked truth

Skin modeling benefits both artists and models

By Juegole Rueda

Many have seen posters on the UI campus advertising $10 dollars on the thirtieth of May for modeling. However, according to Kerber, an artist who has modeled several nude art sets, many people have many accurate and erroneous perspectives of this program’s purpose.

One common misconception is that just because the model is nude, there must be something sexual going on. “Being naked doesn’t, implicitly see,” Kerber said. “It is a physical state just as you and I would not be able to make use of it unless we are interested in bodies.”

Art student Beverly Williams, who has volunteered to do the sketches for the different businesses going out for art sets and posing nude for a photographic magazine as the intent of the project. “Art is all about seeing the world in a different light.”

Other students believe that modeling is just a means to an end. “Art is a drawing, and that is how we see the world,” said Williams.

Williams said that her experience sketching the models has improved her artist’s skills and has taught her to see the beauty in the human form.

The art models are there to help us understand human anatomy as a beautiful whole,” Williams said.

Many of the students who have participated in the program say that it has been a positive experience for them. “I think it has been worthwhile,” said Kerber.

It is a way to improve your self-image and to challenge your prejudices.

In conclusion, the modeling program has been a positive experience for the students who have participated in it. It has helped them to understand human anatomy and to see the beauty in the human form.

It may not be for the likes of MTV, but Electrysh will turn heads

By Eric Ryan

The most obvious brand to compare Electrysh to is Coca Cola. But don’t be fooled, there is a lot more to this British band than first meets the eye.

Electrysh released their US debut, “Here Tonight,” on September 10, 2000. The band consists of five members: Viggo, a British saxophonist, and four people from Iceland. They have been known to perform at various events such as concerts and festivals.

One of the greatest things about the album is the variety in the music. It is easy to tell that Electrysh doesn’t have a simple formula for their songs. They don’t stick with a moral purpose to play with their emotions and bring the atmosphere.

The album, released right before the album on the radio, has been received well by many fans.

Another song with a saxophonist is “Foot In The Door.” The saxophonist, Viggo, really shines on this song. “It’s a song that we’ve been working on for a long time,” said Viggo.

The saxophone adds a great deal of contrast to the rest of the album. If you like music that is both complex and simple, you’ll enjoy this album.

In conclusion, Electrysh has released a new album that is sure to be a hit. The album is filled with a variety of musical styles and is sure to please anyone who enjoys music.
Reflections Gallery showcases diversity

Women's art tackles personal issues

Petra Poulsen

The small Reflections gallery is no longer in a basement of the Idaho Community College in Moscow. The gallery is now located on the main campus on the opposite side of the Idaho Liberal Arts Center. The exhibit currently on display is titled "Women's Art: Artistic Growth and Development." The exhibit features a variety of works created by women artists, including paintings, sculptures, and prints, showcasing their work through the years. The gallery is open to the public, and visitors can explore the pieces and learn more about the artists and their creative processes. The exhibit is a celebration of female artists' contributions to the art world and their ongoing growth and development.
