FEMA foils Student Rec plans for floodpools

BY NICOLAS HEPFMAN
ASSOCIATE STAFF WRITER

Construction on the new Student Rec Center, scheduled to be completed in 2010, is in danger of being delayed, and Director of Architectural and Engineering Services Ray Pankopf said the University of Idaho is currently working on the development of the flood-pools, in which the new center will stand, and has had a permit in hand for several months, beginning, Pankopf said.

Currently, the site is a very sorry sight, a drizzling rag, the tall forms of the proposed buildings all but invisible on this side, to dull holes to place foundation pillars for the structure, Pankopf said.

According to the current application submitted by UI to the Moscow city planners, plans include the installation of about 300 flood-pools, a movie theater, a fitness center, a restaurant, a hotel, and a visitors center, all equipped with a database of domestic waterways, easy-to-follow water tours, and electrical and natural gas services.

The 100,000 square feet, the university claims, is a prime location for a flood-pool犀 especially since the center will be ready in time for the 2010 flood-pool season, and there are additional plans to incorporate a flood-pool hosted conference.

"The purpose for constructing the items is to prepare the site for easy access of the Student Recreation Center prior to the onset of the winter weather that could potentially delay construction progress," according to that same application.

Pankopf said, "We have a long history of working with tribes in research and teaching. We will sign this contract in hopes of strengthening that relationship," Goldstein said.

The President of the Idaho State University has founded the Center for Native American students to demand more. He hoped the ACT will encourage more Idahoans to do the same.

"This particular group of student (NARAS), has not found a receptor for not only the program, but for the University," Walker said.

Walker and Dr. Rodney Fry, UI archaeology professor, wrote a grant to the National Endowment for the Humanities, to secure funding support for the American Museum of Natural History, for the students and staff members to participate in "the 2008 "American Museum of Natural History," according to their previous publications.

The Technical Services, which runs an estimated $1,000,000,000, was fundd in 1961 by the City of Moscow, US Office of Multicultural Affairs, Office of the Vice President for Student Affairs, and Clearwater River Council. It will be the first time since 1979 that the pow-wow will be held at the UI. The pow-wow will take place on Saturday, Oct. 10.

Walker said, "With the national conference, it will be incorporated into the normal pow-wow." 21st Street, a pow-wow is expected.

Walker is worried about the high level of support for both events. "We received major support and promises to the philo-lophic event and we are ready," he said.

Walker hopes the national conference will be incorporated into the normal pow-wow. 21st Street, a pow-wow is expected.

Walker said, "With the national conference, it will be incorporated into the normal pow-wow." 21st Street, a pow-wow is expected.

"We have a long history of working with tribes in research and teaching. We will sign this contract in hopes of strengthening that relationship," Goldstein said.

The President of the Idaho State University has founded the Center for Native American students to demand more. He hoped the ACT will encourage more Idahoans to do the same.

"This particular group of student (NARAS), has not found a receptor for not only the program, but for the University," Walker said.

Walker and Dr. Rodney Fry, UI archaeology professor, wrote a grant to the National Endowment for the Humanities, to secure funding support for the American Museum of Natural History, for the students and staff members to participate in "the 2008 "American Museum of Natural History," according to their previous publications.

The Technical Services, which runs an estimated $1,000,000,000, was fundd in 1961 by the City of Moscow, US Office of Multicultural Affairs, Office of the Vice President for Student Affairs, and Clearwater River Council. It will be the first time since 1979 that the pow-wow will be held at the UI. The pow-wow will take place on Saturday, Oct. 10.

Walker said, "With the national conference, it will be incorporated into the normal pow-wow." 21st Street, a pow-wow is expected.

Walker is worried about the high level of support for both events. "We received major support and promises to the philo-lophic event and we are ready," he said.

Walker hopes the national conference will be incorporated into the normal pow-wow. 21st Street, a pow-wow is expected.
Parade demonstrates defiance of judgment

BY ROY MURPHY

COURT PALACE, Idaho —

Branded as defunct under a light rain, Aryan Nations founder Richard Butler today will appear disks supporting various causes and the streets throughout this area, viewing that national leader will remain a significant figure.

Facing a $6.8 million court judgment that will force the white separatist group to give up its future properties, the group's leaders said they realized that their movement will continue.

The annual retreats now attract hundreds of members who listen to racially themed music and watch movies, sometimes with light breakfasts.

Judge Charles H. T. H. Metcalfe said that it was necessary for the court to have found that the organization knowingly retained individuals with a propensity for violence and security guards and that the group had a clear interest in preventing their release.

"Judge Charles H. T. Metcalfe said that he would have found more individual claims of con-"
Moscow resident awaits hearing after Chennoweth-Hage 'pie-ing'

Randy Mark faces a federal misdemeanor charge Nov. 13

BY JOHN HALE

Moscow resident Randy Mark is currently sitting in the Missoula County Jail awaiting his Nov. 13 arraignment on a federal misdemeanor charge filed by Idaho Congressman Chellie Pingree.

Mark's sentencing is set for 2 p.m. Nov. 13.

Pingree is seeking a fine of $500 and/or three months in prison, as well as a three-year suspension of Mark's federal hunting license.

Mark's attorney, Philip Friedman, is scheduled to appear in court on Mark's behalf.

Pingree said she is seeking punishment for Mark as a result of his role in a pie-throwing incident that occurred in September. The incident involved Mark throwing a pie at Pingree during a public event at a community college in Boise.

Pingree said she believes the incident was a violation of federal laws and regulations that prohibit the harassment of federal employees.

Friedman said he plans to argue that his client's actions were protected under the First Amendment and that the incident did not warrant the penalties sought by Pingree.

Mark has pleaded not guilty to the charges.

---

Campus calendar

TUESDAY

The University Student Media Board holds their meetings bi-monthly on the first and third Thursdays. The Board advises the Student Media organizations KUOI-FM, The Current Yearbook and the Argonaut.

All meetings are open to the public. This Thursday's meeting will be held at 5 p.m. in the Chiefs' Room on the second floor of the SUB.

WEDNESDAY

Pigskin's Nutrition Club will hold a health, nutrition and supplement seminar at the Paterson Mall in Moscow.

THURSDAY

Author Barry Lynn, nature writer, will hold an open book signing and seminar at 12:30 p.m. in the Law School. He will also meet with students at 7:30 p.m. Call 885-6489 for more information.

An informal meeting for applicants to the Morris K. Udall Fellowship will be held at 5 p.m. in the first floor conference room.

Technology's Effects on our Lives and Our Investments: A Global View will be held by the College of Graduate Students, Silver and Gold of the Old at 12:30 p.m.

TECHNOLOGY'S EFFECTS ON OUR LIVES AND OUR INVESTMENTS: A GLOBAL VIEW

Professor M. Udall, College of Graduate Students of the Old, will host the seminar at 12:30 p.m. in the front of the library.

FRIDAY

Sports Career Seminar will be held at 5 p.m. in the common area of the SUB.

---

SPORTS CAREER SEMINAR JOB FAIR

Professional sports teams from around the West will be posting jobs, interviewing and hiring for jobs in the sports industry. There will also be guest speakers, panel discussions and an end of day sports related activities.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 17

SPOKANE AREA **

SPOKANE, WA

SENIOR

OUTDOOR

Save the Date:

November 17, 2000

SPOKANE ARENA

SPOKANE, WA

SEMINAR & JOB FAIR REGISTRATION IS $50. The fee includes full participation in the event, lunch and a shirt to the Spokane Credit Union hockey game that evening.

---

Details for major sports teams can be found on our website at www.sports-career-seminar.com.
Education reform

A look at the stances of George W. Bush and Al Gore

Polls still neck and neck with one week to go

By James Greer and Maria L. del Guercio

WASHINGTON — With only nine days remaining before Election Day, Al Gore traversed through Michigan Sunday, urging voters to back his administration’s efforts to change the country on three major fronts.

Three days after a Democratic National Convention that Gore described as “golden,” the vice president is finding himself neck-and-neck with Republican nominee George W. Bush, who, according to polls, is largely benefiting from a newly installed surge in the political mood.

Today, Gore is in Michigan with Vice President Dick Cheney, GOP Senate candidate Linda McMahon, and Senate Majority Leader Tom Daschle.

But Gore keeps reminding voters he ran the country into the longest recession since World War II, and he’s promising more “green” jobs and health care for all.

Gore’s Clinton-era colleagues are planning to begin卫星 advertising today.

Tuesday marks the end of the TV campaign.

Students!

The Bush administration has made a national effort to change the country on three major fronts.

Three days after a Democratic National Convention that Gore described as “golden,” the vice president is finding himself neck-and-neck with Republican nominee George W. Bush, who, according to polls, is largely benefiting from a newly installed surge in the political mood.

Today, Gore is in Michigan with Vice President Dick Cheney, GOP Senate candidate Linda McMahon, and Senate Majority Leader Tom Daschle.

But Gore keeps reminding voters he ran the country into the longest recession since World War II, and he’s promising more “green” jobs and health care for all.

Gore’s Clinton-era colleagues are planning to begin satellite advertising today.

Tuesday marks the end of the TV campaign.

In a statement, Gore said: “I am confident that people will vote as they vote, and we will do our best to make sure that each vote counts. We will work hard for every vote that we can get.”

Gore’s campaign is expected to begin satellite advertising today.

Tuesday marks the end of the TV campaign.

In a statement, Gore said: “I am confident that people will vote as they vote, and we will do our best to make sure that each vote counts. We will work hard for every vote that we can get.”

Gore’s campaign is expected to begin satellite advertising today.

Tuesday marks the end of the TV campaign.

In a statement, Gore said: “I am confident that people will vote as they vote, and we will do our best to make sure that each vote counts. We will work hard for every vote that we can get.”

Gore’s campaign is expected to begin satellite advertising today.

Tuesday marks the end of the TV campaign.

In a statement, Gore said: “I am confident that people will vote as they vote, and we will do our best to make sure that each vote counts. We will work hard for every vote that we can get.”

Gore’s campaign is expected to begin satellite advertising today.

Tuesday marks the end of the TV campaign.

In a statement, Gore said: “I am confident that people will vote as they vote, and we will do our best to make sure that each vote counts. We will work hard for every vote that we can get.”

Gore’s campaign is expected to begin satellite advertising today.

Tuesday marks the end of the TV campaign.

In a statement, Gore said: “I am confident that people will vote as they vote, and we will do our best to make sure that each vote counts. We will work hard for every vote that we can get.”

Gore’s campaign is expected to begin satellite advertising today.

Tuesday marks the end of the TV campaign.

In a statement, Gore said: “I am confident that people will vote as they vote, and we will do our best to make sure that each vote counts. We will work hard for every vote that we can get.”

Gore’s campaign is expected to begin satellite advertising today.

Tuesday marks the end of the TV campaign.

In a statement, Gore said: “I am confident that people will vote as they vote, and we will do our best to make sure that each vote counts. We will work hard for every vote that we can get.”

Gore’s campaign is expected to begin satellite advertising today.
 Students should not drink excessively.

Alcohol produces a lot of fun stories. This pain came up the other day while telling stories about the good old days. It started with a few drinks changing the composition of a favorite front yard.

Don't forget about drinking having lots of stories! Many stories about someone who could get a little rowdy at every single bar in town and not remembering anything. Alcohol is an illness that affects every college student today. It is very close to the edge, but at the same time, it could be lost and forgotten. Unfortunately there are people who must have a drink before they feel the excitement, dancing or talking with others.

There is no set number of drinks per day that indicates a person has alcoholism and there are no alcoholics who drink an alcohol excessively. According to discoveryhealth.com, what really defines alcoholism is when a person's social, psychological and emotional in their daily life.

We see this happening all the time in a university setting. When friends say "I can't dance until I've had a few drinks" or "Tell me to check out that guy who is at the bar" we have to ask ourselves if we are not becoming too dependent on alcohol.

This may mean that someone could lose up being someone who cares about you. Alcoholism can increase the risk of a violent crime, including domestic violence. It can lead to accidents and violence. It can also lead to assault and injury. Unfortunately, people who are alcoholics may not have a drink before they feel the excitement, dancing or talking with others. If they do not have a drink, they cannot function appropriately.

Perhaps instead of ignoring the fact that a friend has a problem or thinking that it is not a problem, we should confront them with our concerns. Alcohol doesn't have to be the only way for us to have a good experience and many new friends to experience our college life. There is a way to have a girl or a guy as a friend and have an alcohol psychologically and emotionally in their daily life.

A Halloween story that will really speak

Wait up! he called out from two blocks behind. He was definitely following her; his breath was charged with the scent of liquor. She slowed down.

She closed walking behind him, a calculated pace. A girl who, in the past, had always been more shy, now walked with purpose. Her grip was firm, and she was determined to keep pace with her. "You don't need to worry about my heart," her breath was ragged. "I don't have any," she whispered. "I don't have a heart, so I can't feel anything."

"I'm walking during the day so I only take night classes. Don't worry about my outfit, I'm wearing everything under clothes."

"Ok, I do think it's a bit annoying that I only see you in the dark. And with that, only the light in the alley faded, sending spirits to the pavement. The only sound was glassing jumping the pavement.

Are you afraid of the dark? he asked, slipping behind her, his breath close to her ear. "No, I'm not afraid of the dark, but I don't like the sound of anything under clothes."

"Are you afraid of me?" she asked, snatching his hand. "I'm not afraid of you. I'm just afraid of the dark."

"But you wouldn't be afraid of me if you knew what I'm about to do."

"What are you about to do?"

"Nothing. I just want to show you something."

"I'm not sure how to feel about that."

"It's going to be fun, I promise."

"I'm not sure..."

"Just trust me."

"Ok, I'll trust you for now."

"That's a start."

"I trust you.

"I just want to show you something else."

"What else?"

"You'll see."

"Ok, I'm ready."

"Good, now let's do this."

"What is this?"

"A Halloween story that will really speak."

Don't let Christmas take Christmas too

It's that time of year again. More specifically, that's the day after. Christmas - the day of the year that guarantees most of us a new experience. It is the day that we all celebrate the birth of Jesus Christ into the world of men, into the kingdom of our hearts. Anything goes. October 31st is easily the most important day of the year, because today makes the Christmas spirit, the spirit of reality and fantasy, of anxiety and joy.

The sound of "Jingle Bells" and "Rockin' Around the Christmas Tree" fills the air, reminding us of the holiday season in the past. The sound of Christmas is always on our mind, even while we're listening to the music of the world.

It's not only the largest day in the known world, it's also the one most memorable! Christmas is the day when you realize that no matter what you do, you'll never be able to start.

Well, there's nothing you can't do as far as we're concerned. I see through that holiday gardian, I want to become your partner. I invite you to the same. Free yourselves from the grip of true evil.

As soon as the opening chorus of "Santa Claus Is Coming to Town," strike your xmas неманисемо андрей новим та та. We can sing for years! Our experience is this place. To this experience, there is no place like a Christmas and we'll start singing Xmas until, you know, you'll just fall in love.

I remember when Christmas began after the war, everyone was excited. We had so many things to do and we were never happy. We were happy when we were in college. There are so many things to do and we were never happy. We were happy when we were in college. There are so many things to do and we were never happy. We were happy when we were in college.

I was enjoying this day in all the differently frightening things of your holiday adventures. I'm glad that we can still remember.

Wait for the right moment to arrive! Or even better, you're shopping and decorating the day after Christmas. We were happy to get the best dress, the best gifts, the best presents. The real bargain hunting begins the Dec. 25.

For the love of all things macabre, ghosts, ghouls, the occasional and every October 31st is the date for the biggest mystery party in the world.

Generally speaking, the explanation is more than a simple miracle. While many of Santa Claus's crimes were likely to be true, others are not. When Christmas declared that people were drinking alcohol, was that really true? While the Biblical Jew was a victim of propaganda, the Biblical Jew was not an example of a true evil.

Letters policy

Argonaut welcomes your letters to the editors. Please include your name, college affiliation and the Argonaut address to a letter policy.

* Letters should be less than 350 words long.
* Letters should be e-mailed to: letters@argonautonline.com.
* Letters must be specific to student issues and must not attack the bias and brutality of any groups.
* Letters are subject to review by the editors and may be edited for grammar, length and clarity.
* Letters that contain emotional appeals, signatures, include major or provide a current political stance are subject to rejection.

Editorial Board

Managing Editor/ Editor-in-Chief: Chris L. Boettcher

Managing Editor: Brianna Ewens

Assistant Managing Editor: Paul Staszewski

News Co-Editors: Gabriella Avello, Madeline Feraday

Features: Brittany Bazar, Gretchen Connelly

Sports: Sean Thayer, Jeremy Herrick

Art: Justin Stanford, Andrew Dunn

Managing Editor: Brianna Ewens
The Garden Lounge

Halloween Party

Costume Contest
1st Prize $100 Gift Certificate
2nd Prize Frozen Puzzle
3rd Prize $50 Gift Certificate

Pumpkin Carving Contest
Register 8pm -ends in an hour

Halloween

From Page 5

She fell on top of him, and he rolled over on top of her in a rather uncoordinated motion. She had just wanted a kiss. One kiss, and Jill knew Cym...

Get On Board The Bus!

Are you registering for cross-listed courses at WSU this spring semester?

Remember you can ride the bus from the UI campus to Pullman and WSU for free!

Check out the Wheatland Express bus schedule at www.wheatlandexpress.com or pick up a free bus schedule at the North Campus Center.

Use your brain — ride the bus.
The Kenworthy comes alive

Costumes are not just for kids

Students get ready for Halloween by getting creative

by Gerritt Reynolds

October 31, 2000

Page 7

Yes, that time again when students go to their thrift store to purchase clothes for dressing up for Halloween.

What? College students?

"I love to dress up. It allows me to use my creativity and imagination. I just come up with something and run with it," said one student. "And besides, there's not really anything sexier, but it was a low-budget festival. It really was all about having fun," the student added.

That's right. College students dress up all the time. For some, it's a way to relieve stress and have a good time.

Although that shouldn't be something to be taken lightly, it always seems like the little kids have all the fun.

"I went to a Halloween party and I dressed up as a little girl," said one student. "It was about $15 to buy the fake earrings and glueing fake nails onto my fingers." In addition, costumes are also from thrift stores.

"You can usually get a lot of the things you need for just a little bit of money," said another student.

"I had a burlap monster that I made from goody bags and it only cost me like, $5. Getting makeup for the costumes doesn't really cost that much either. I mean you just go to the drug store and it only costs like a dollar for a can of fake blood."

"And you usually have a lot of stuff around the house that you could totally use anyway," Williams claimed.

"One year I dressed up as a horse and I dressed up as a hippie just by using old clothing and shoes I had lying around," Robinson said. "I also think it's too easy to just go to the thrift store and dress up should remember that there are people that don't have a lot of money to spend on costumes."

In this fast-paced age there are any number of realistic looking costumes available in the thrift store or for a very modest, or sometimes公益活动，at stop at the Kenworthy Community Theatre. The annual costume contest is sponsored by Alpha Sigma Alpha and NW Boise Lion's Club.

The plot of the film is centered on the exciting tension of a gypsy carnival coming to town. According to the Ronald Pepper's account of the film, "The film is about a group of people who decide to use a gypsy carnival as a way to celebrate the fact that they were able to come home safe after a long journey.

The film is directed by Audrey Z. Gourley, who along with Audrey Z., is also the author of the book. The film is produced by Audrey Z. Gourley and Audrey Z. Gourley. The film is distributed by the Kenworthy Center in Boise.

The film has received critical acclaim for its use of gypsy carnival imagery and its portrayal of a group of people who are able to come home safe after a long journey.

Construction of the "Little Shop of Horrors" set continues in preparation for the live first performance to be held in The Kenworthy Performing Arts Centre over 60 years.

The film was released on May 12, 1960, and is based on the play of the same name by the Scottish playwright, Robert Bloch.

The film was a huge box office success and was nominated for several Academy Awards, including Best Picture and Best Actor for the role of the lead character, Seymour. It was also a critical success, receiving widespread acclaim for its cast and characters.

The film's success was due in large part to the screen presence of the leads, as well as the chemistry of the supporting cast.

The film is a classic of the horror genre and is one of the most beloved movies of all time.
In 'Masquerade' dance production a success

By Garrett Reynolds

Dance is a lot like foreign films: it visually pleasing, but the average guy has no idea what is going on. Fortunately this is not essential if you enjoy the experience.

"Dance is the way a choreographer tells a story and people can relate to that story - they can feel the emotions of the story," said Sylvia Love, the production assistant for the "Masquerade" dance production.

"Dance was performed on Oct. 31st were able to feel and relate to numerous modern dances done by the dancers. The dances did a very good job, especially when considering the time constraints.

"We had a very short amount of time, only since the beginning of the school year," it was great spending a lot of time, even up to the last minute," Love said.

Aside from the visual aspect of the dance production the musical aspect was strong. "Masquerade" had a wide variety of musical numbers, which seemed to match perfectly with the dances. The production contained both Dizzy Gillespie and Frank Foster.

"The choreographers choose the music. Some choose the music first and design a production around the music, and some choose to look for music that will go well with the dance," Love explained.

Though it isn't obvious, there is a lot of strength and athleticism involved. After all, the energy to leap and hold contorted positions doesn't come from just anywhere.

"The transfer... having strong abdominal is essential because that is one area that will give strength and balance," a lack of male dancers was definitely noticeable at the production.

"Not a lot of male dancers because it has a stereotype of being feminine and not out for strong," Love said.

"We did not have more men (who dance) every year," Love said.

Li Dance Theater's "Masquerade" brought a variety of music and choreography to the Hartung Theater.
Flying horses and buckie bunnies

Rodeo team works, rides and plays hard

By JENNIFER MARINEC
UPDATED 1:05 P.M.

Squally isn’t a pretty, but alluring breed that just didn’t cut it for him. O.K., it’s a slimy horse from Illinois, he didn’t eat much. Brooks had a little bit of a warm-up, but it’s no problem. Case-illinois is the face — because there were no inflating pencils or drinks.

Brooks said the journey in this case, or even in this. The 20-year-old horse flew across the Pacific Ocean on a livestock plane to meet his first, Jessy Baptista, a member of the University of Idaho Rodeo Team. "He’s pretty good, so he’s worth it," Baptista, a freshman, said. "He’s paid for (his travel) in winnings." .

Like Baptista, many other members of the UI Rodeo Teams — 21 in all — spend hours each week practicing their individual rodeo sports and caring for their animals, while attending almost full time and even working jobs. "You just fit it," Senior Naomi Brooks and Shae McLean with the team, and the UI Rodeo Team, which consists of two junior members, in addition to working two jobs and taking agricultural science classes.

Brooks looks nothing like the usual and well-costumed western stereotype. She has no Wrangler pants, and her stylish, short black hoodie has brown cowgirl traditional wave underneath her hat. Brooks resembles the stereotypical rodeo riders — that they are all a bunch of bitches.

"We don’t mind getting bit — um, any at all given day, if you see us on campus, you’re able to kill us," Baptista said. The University of Idaho Rodeo is considered the best in the nation. Baptista, however, looks the cowboy part. His jeans-clad rear bears no resemblance to the "Weaver" or "tall hat" type of college student. -- blasses, jeans and T-shirts.

"We’re..." Baptista, a junior, said. "Don’t be afraid of these or any type of rodeo. If you’re a student and you’re interested, you must condition your horses on off days by riding them. Many of the members of the team may not be convenient, but necessary. Team members take good care of their horses, and enjoy riding them."

"I ride alone unless out in wheat fields," Brooks, standing in the soft soil of the arena next to her boyfriend’s barn. Also, Brooks has been using Abba, because of issues with their horses. Meanwhile, each horse at least has its own. Brooks said, and if something goes wrong with those two, they turn to her effect.

"We never have other high end," she said.

The competition of the rodeo, said Brooks and Baptista, is a natural high. Brooks turns the adrenaline and winning, and the money that comes with winning. And it’s a good thing Baptista loves the sport, because at times, the sport hasn’t loved him. "It’s been both hard for me and my brother, he sweats to keep his brother in horse, and he’s been chased by bulls. But for him, it’s all part of the thrill."

"I love the sport," he said. "It’s just put up and keep going."

Both Brooks and Baptista have been riding since a young age. "Rodeo is a family thing. You keep riding until you quit, and then your kids are ready," she said.

And, Baptista’s father is the one who got him started riding at the age of 7. His father was in rodeo, and has been a big influence in his life, he said. "But to me, I just love the adrenaline, and the thrill of competing with different people."

bilities, the UI Rodeo Team encourages UI students to attend for fun, and to support their fellow Vandals. "It’s fun — neat hats and boleros and people and — and they drink beer," she said. She’s always seen good laughs at rodeos, she said, including the "beats bunnies," a term given to rodeo people, mostly girls, who wear neck ties and try to pick up the cowboys by hanging around. "We can’t wear ties (before) touched Brooks. "We can’t get in and off the board in time."

Baptista, too, laughs about the buckles, and she said. "He’s gonna be good," he said. "A list of knigt girls and girls and girls that." He also8 talks about people, particularly people wanting to wear buckles and shoes, who dislike rodeo because they think it’s not for everybody. Rodeo, he says, is for everybody. "It’s just hard to convince people to do the same thing, but the (rrodeo sports) don’t get hurt."

Coach Maki hopes for a good turnout, because of the low end ($8) and the entertainment. "It’s an entertainment," he said. "It’s hard to play if there’s no crowd."
The Idaho Black Widows Rugby team ended their final home game of the season last Saturday at Gray Wolf field with a 3-0 victory over Boise State. The Black Widows scored early in the first half with a try from Anna Butler, followed by a successful conversion from Kenna Cummings. The second half saw another try from Butler, making the final score 3-0. The team ended the season with a perfect record of 5-0, maintaining their unbeaten streak. The Black Widows' next game will be against the University of Montana on April 22nd. The match will be held at the Idaho State University campus.

Vandal soccer shuts out rival Boise State Broncos

The University of Idaho soccer team shut out the Boise State Broncos 2-0 last Saturday at the Bob and Elyse A. L. Schmidt Soccer Complex. The Vandal offense was led by junior midfielder Morgan Moore, who scored both goals for the Vandal in the first half. Moore's first goal came on a penalty kick in the 36th minute, and her second goal came in the 59th minute on a cross from senior forward Cameron Johnson. The Vandal defense was solid throughout the game, allowing no shots on goal from the Broncos. With the victory, the Vandal improves to 6-0-1 on the season and 2-0 in conference play.

Crosscountry teams finish conference championships

The Idaho crosscountry teams finished second in the Big West Conference championships on Saturday. The men's team was led by sophomore Tyler Thompson, who finished second overall with a time of 18:42.2. The women's team was led by senior April Garcia, who finished third overall with a time of 18:43.3. The Vandal crosscountry teams have been consistently strong throughout the season, with both teams currently ranked in the top 20 nationally. The team will next compete in the NCAA Championships on November 25th.

The University of Idaho Argonauts

Black Widows win last home game against Spokane

The Idaho Black Widows Rugby team ended their final home game of the season on Saturday at Gray Wolf field with a 3-0 victory over Spokane. The Black Widows scored early in the first half with a try from Anna Butler, followed by a successful conversion from Kenna Cummings. The second half saw another try from Butler, making the final score 3-0. The team ended the season with a perfect record of 5-0, maintaining their unbeaten streak. The Black Widows' next game will be against the University of Montana on April 22nd. The match will be held at the Idaho State University campus.

Vandal soccer shuts out rival Boise State Broncos

The University of Idaho soccer team shut out the Boise State Broncos 2-0 last Saturday at the Bob and Elyse A. L. Schmidt Soccer Complex. The Vandal offense was led by junior midfielder Morgan Moore, who scored both goals for the Vandal in the first half. Moore's first goal came on a penalty kick in the 36th minute, and her second goal came in the 59th minute on a cross from senior forward Cameron Johnson. The Vandal defense was solid throughout the game, allowing no shots on goal from the Broncos. With the victory, the Vandal improves to 6-0-1 on the season and 2-0 in conference play.

Crosscountry teams finish conference championships

The Idaho crosscountry teams finished second in the Big West Conference championships on Saturday. The men's team was led by sophomore Tyler Thompson, who finished second overall with a time of 18:42.2. The women's team was led by senior April Garcia, who finished third overall with a time of 18:43.3. The Vandal crosscountry teams have been consistently strong throughout the season, with both teams currently ranked in the top 20 nationally. The team will next compete in the NCAA Championships on November 25th.
Making a choice for Latah County

With only a week until election day, local elections are down to the wire

The Nov. 7 elections will decide who goes to the White House and who will represent Latah County in Boise. Here are some short profiles about some of the local candidates running in the election.

Look for a profile of candidates running for Idaho State Senate in Friday's issue.

Romney J. Hogaboam for President
Because next year can be more fun!

- Increasing Productions Funding!
- Keeping On-Street Parking Free!
- Keeping Student Fees Reasonable!

With your ideas, experience, and our work, next year will be the most fun yet.

Paid for by Romney J. Hogaboam for ASUS President.

Reese Trail: Trail seeks for state participation in federal school construction and wants to see $500 million of federal surplus cash used for educational efforts.

Gary Young: Young says Idaho is known for its higher education and its must be a goal to continue the high level of research and learning taking place in Idaho. He feels that the most effective, responsible, and responsible government is a government that is closest to the people. "Young told.

Reese Trail: Trail seeks for state participation in federal school construction and wants to see $500 million of federal surplus cash used for educational efforts.

Gary Young: Young says Idaho is known for its higher education and its must be a goal to continue the high level of research and learning taking place in Idaho. He feels that the most effective, responsible, and responsible government is a government that is closest to the people. "Young told.

Reese Trail: Trail seeks for state participation in federal school construction and wants to see $500 million of federal surplus cash used for educational efforts.