RIP-OFF: Students organize protest against out-of-state fees

The University of Idaho may lose $2.6 million a year it collects from students in tuition and fees if a legal challenge currently being organized by a student, John Orwick, is successful.

"The University needs this money badly," said Orwick. "but so do the students from whom it takes the money.

Whatever level of funding is required by this institution, it must be obtained in a legally permissible manner," he said. "The present structure of tuition and fees does not so qualify, in my judgment."

A recent decision by the United States Supreme Court has rendered unconstitutional the standards by which most universities, including the University of Idaho, determine whether a student is a resident or non-resident," Orwick said. "Further, there is serious doubt whether the so-called registration fees charged by this university can survive the prohibition in the Idaho Constitution against charging tuition to residents.

According to Orwick, the response of the University of Idaho, as publicly stated by Board of Regents member Edward Benoit, is: "Make the students take us to court. We can continue to collect their money even if we eventually lose the lawsuit."

"Not only is Regent Benoit an arrogant ass," said Orwick, "he is also wrong.

Students can protect themselves and their hard earned money simply by writing the words "Paid Under Protest" on the face of the check they give the University in payment of tuition and/or fees. If payment is made other than by personal check, the student should demand that the cashier issue an official University receipt on which the cashier, not the student, has written, "Paid Under Protest."

"The cashier cannot refuse to do this," Orwick said, "although he may try. Don't give him the money until he does, and don't let him bluff you."

"Not only will this entitle you to a refund after the University loses the lawsuit, it may also allow you to collect 6 percent interest on the money which has been extorted from you," said Orwick.

After paying the fees/tuition under protest, a student must then file an appeal with the University Administration Hearing Board: "The student may pursue the appeal on his own," said Orwick, before contacting Student Advisory Services at 861-6757.

But, said Orwick, "The University administration long ago mastered the technique of divide and conquer in its dealings with students."

A student may arrange for assistance in filing and presenting his appeal by contacting Orwick. Forms for this purpose will be distributed by Orwick in the gym during both days of registration.

"When we move," he said, "we hope to do so with a well organized and united front. We are betting that the power of organization and unity is greater than the power of official arrogance."

The nice thing about the University of Idaho," Orwick said, "is that its administration continuously provides an opportunity to find out if this is true."

Procedure for paying under protest

1. Pay your tuition and/or fees under protest. Write the words "Paid Under Protest" on the face of the check you give the University in payment of tuition and fees. If you do not pay by check, demand that the cashier write "Paid Under Protest" on your official University receipt.

2. File and appeal with the University Administration Hearing Board, either by directly contacting Student Advisory Services, 861-6757, or by completing the form distributed for that purpose at the front of the registration line in Memorial Gym.

3. Join the lawsuit against the University of Idaho as a named plaintiff. (Options 1 — but it's a nice gesture.)
Rip-off: Students organize protest Against out-of-state fees

The University of Idaho may lose $2.6 million a year if it collects from students in tuition and fees if a legal challenge currently being organized by a student, John Orwick, is successful.

"The University needs this money badly," said Orwick, "but so do the students from whom it takes the money. Whatever level of funding is required by this institution, it must be obtained in a legally permissible manner," he said. "The present structure of tuition and fees does not so qualify, in my judgment."

A recent decision by the United States Supreme Court has rendered unconstitutional the standards by which most universities, including the University of Idaho, determine whether a student is a resident or non-resident," Orwick said. "Further, there is serious doubt whether the so-called registration fees charged by this university can survive the prohibition in the Idaho Constitution against charging tuition to residents."

According to Orwick, the response of the University of Idaho, as publicly stated by Board of Regents member Edward Benoit, is: "Make the student take us to court. We can continue to collect their money even if we eventually lose the lawsuit."

"Not really is Benoit Bonni an arrogant ass," said Orwick, "he is also wrong."

Students can protect themselves and their hard-earned money simply by writing the words "Paid Under Protest" on the face of the check they give the University in payment of tuition and/or fees. If payment is made other than by personal check, the student should demand that the cashier issue an official University receipt on which the cashier, not the student, has written, "Paid Under Protest."

"The cashier cannot refuse to do this," Orwick said, "although he may try. Don't give him the money until he does, and don't let him bluff you."

"Not only will this entitle you to a refund after the University loses the lawsuit, it may also allow you to collect 6 percent interest on the money which has been extorted from you," said Orwick.

After paying the fees/tuition under protest, a student must then file an appeal with the University Administrative Hearing Board. "The student may pursue the appeal on his own," Orwick said, by contacting Student Advisory Services at 885-6755.

"But," said Orwick, "The University administration long ago mastered the technique of divide and conquer in its dealings with students."

A student may arrange for assistance in filing and presenting his appeal by contacting Orwick. Forms for this purpose will be distributed by Orwick in the gym during both days of registration.

"When we move," he said, "we hope to do so with a well-organised and unified front. We are betting that the power of organization and unity is greater than the power of official arrogance."

"The nice thing about the University of Idaho," Orwick said, "is that its administration continuously provides an opportunity to find out if this is true."

Procedure for paying under protest

1. Pay your tuition and/or fees under protest.
2. Write the words "Paid Under Protest" on the face of the check you give the University in payment of tuition/fees. If you do not pay by check, demand that the cashier write "Paid Under Protest" on your official University receipt.
3. File and appeal with the University Administrative Hearing Board, either by directly contacting Student Advisory Services, 885-6755, or by completing the form distributed for that purpose at the front of the registration line in Memorial Gym.

Of all the professions probably one of the most difficult is being a college student. Over the summer many students worked hard, mowing lawns and painting houses, but when school starts Monday everyone will really have to get back to work. Like going to the bars.
Full year ahead

Opportunities for outdoor recreation are now available through a new program offered by the A.S.U.I. The University of Idaho Outdoor Program located in the basement of the student union is offering a wide variety of activities in which to acquaint students with recreation in the natural environment.

Initiated in June of 1973 the program offered informal instruction and exciting trips in backpacking, rock climbing, river rafting, kayaking, and mountain biking. This fall the Outdoor Program will continue to offer these activities as well as snow activities, particularly ski touring, snowshoeing and snow camping. Participation is open to anyone in the university and the surrounding community. Each week trips are posted in the program center listing the activities which are planned for the current 7 day period. There is also a listing for trips planned further in advance. These trips are initiated by program personnel and interested students. Signing up and showing up on the appointed day is the only requirement for those interested in participation.

The program will also be offering indoor seminars, equipment discussions, and weekly slide presentations and movies to be shown each week on Wednesdays. There is no charge for any of the activities or indoor presentations. Interested students are invited to visit the Outdoor Program Center.

Classes Offered At night

The University of Idaho College of Business and Economics will offer three of the courses in the master of business administration curriculum at night during the fall semester, according to Donald Del Mar, associate professor of business. He said each of the three-credit courses will meet once a week from 7:30-9:30 p.m. Other courses in the MBA program will be offered during the day.

The courses to be offered are Business 501, seminar on government regulation of business; Business 530, operations management; and Business 531, seminar in administration. The latter course is open to last semester graduate students only.

"The courses are open to individuals who wish to work toward a degree and to those who wish to take just one or two courses," Del Mar said.

Requirements for courses are listed in the university's Graduate Bulletin. Questions should be referred to the office of the dean, College of Business and Economics.

Douglas To Speak At Boise

Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas will be speaking at Boise Thursday, Sept. 27. Douglas will have just returned from Mainland China. Persons who go if they had transportation are asked to meet in the Law School basement at 2 p.m. Monday.

The address is a benefit for the Intermountain Observer newspaper and the ticket price of $5 will include a 6 month subscription to the Observer. Tickets will be available at the Student Union information desk until Sept. 13.

Care Center Seeks Children For Fall Season

The Child Care Cooperative is taking applications for openings this fall. The Co-op operates daily Tuesday through Friday, from 8:45-3:15 at the Trinity Baptist Church. Children from ages 2½ to 5 are eligible; they must be toilet-trained.

The Co-op operates entirely through volunteer work; each family is required to contribute one four-hour shift each week.

Children may be left a maximum of 15 hours/week including the parent's shift.

The cost is minimal: 15 cents per hour per child with a three dollar minimum per month. For further information contact Alayne Hannaford, 882-3219.
Rosy talks about the summer

By David Warnick

Summer vacation is the University administration's version of a dark alley for student rights." - a saying in Moscow

Yet this summer the students came off astonishingly well, with a little help from the U.S. Supreme Court and the Idaho Board of Regents.

Resident status - The U.S. Supreme Court decided in Vlandia vs. Kline that Connecticut could not prevent a student from gaining residency simply because he is a full-time student. This is precisely what the U of I has done. But now it is about to establish residency after one year, at the rate of one credit hour a month. The student must enroll for at least one credit hour during the summer months.

Playing - This year the Board of Regents at last recognized some of the advantages that exist on this campus.

The Idaho Argonaut, The University of Idaho student newspaper, is still looking for talented help for the fall semester of 73.

The newspaper is independently operated by the students of the University of Idaho. Therefore, it is a vehicle for the most wide rage and controversial reporting of area happenings. This independence "brings" to those involved with the Idaho Argonaut an opportunity to learn the most about the publications field in a most practical manner.

A student does not need to be a journalism major to volunteer to work on the Argonaut. On the staff now are students in Political Science, Art, English, Economics as well as journalism majors.

There are many writing positions still open for those interested in expanding their area of expertise. Volunteers are needed at all levels of the Argonaut staff.

For those already on the staff, the first staff meeting is today at noon in the Argonaut office. Anyone interested in joining is welcome to attend this staff meeting.

Scandal - The University of Idaho was discovered this summer to have given far more football scholarships than the Big Sky Conference allows. Last year the university averaged 75 athletes on full rides and 8 on partial rides. The conference allows 62 full scholarships, or a total of full and partial rides not exceeding 75.

As yet, one other item - Idaho is still in the Big Sky Conference after quite a hassle trying to get into the NCAA. The hassle was revealing of such trivia as that the $121,000 put out each year in athletic grant-in-aid comes from student fees.

Welcome Back

We stock a complete line of stereos, tape decks, amps, by Panasonic, Electrophonic, Craig.

Top quality, at low prices.

Argonaut Seeks New Talent

The Idaho Argonaut, the University of Idaho student newspaper, is still looking for talented help for the fall semester of 73.

The newspaper is independently operated by the students of the University of Idaho. Therefore, it is a vehicle for the most wide rage and controversial reporting of area happenings.

This independence "brings" to those involved with the Idaho Argonaut an opportunity to learn the most about the publications field in a most practical manner.

A student does not need to be a journalism major to volunteer to work on the Argonaut. On the staff now are students in Political Science, Art, English, Economics as well as journalism majors.

There are many writing positions still open for those interested in expanding their area of expertise. Volunteers are needed at all levels of the Argonaut staff.

For those already on the staff, the first staff meeting is today at noon in the Argonaut office. Anyone interested in joining is welcome to attend this staff meeting.

An $18.00 Discount Coupon Book For $3.50.

"If new math has you confused, read on ..."

Don't feel badly, Ms. Smith will explain. For a paltry sum of $3.50, you get free boozes, pool and other cheap thrills, from such swell people as: Rathskellers, Hoagie Shop, Alley, Garden Lounge, Karl Marks, Mark IV Inn, Billiard Den, Capricorn Ballroom, Rathaus, Jekyll and Hyder, Howard's Pizza and the Varity Cafe. $18.00 worth of goodies. See how easy that was, so be sure and purchase one at the Argonaut table in the beginning of the registration line. Now, go clean the chalk board.
Students Become Technical Writers

During the past four semesters, teams of students in a "University of Idaho technical writing course have completed more than 35 technical reports for faculty members and departments throughout the school.

According to Dr. Charles R. Stratton, assistant professor of English and teacher of the sections using the approach, students have written research reports, journal articles, grant proposals, newsletters and instruction manuals for every college of the university except the College of Law.

Stratton said students find the real world projects to be an important part of the learning process. As a result, Stratton plans to have students complete two such projects during the semester course rather than one. Stratton said as faculty and staff have learned about the program, he has received an increasing number of requests for student assistance.

An article on this teaching method, "Project Team Approach to Technical Writing in the Classroom," which Stratton wrote was published in the second quarter edition of "Technical Communication," the journal of the Society for Technical Communication.

Law sign-up 7 per cent Over last years

The University of Idaho College of Law has a final enrollment of 271, according to Dean Albert Menard, Jr., who said the total was an increase of seven per cent over last year's enrollment of 253 full-time students.

Menard said that individual courses are full to the room's capacity and said the College of Law cannot accept any additional graduate student, faculty member or community member.

Vandal picnic

A picnic featuring "all one can eat for $1.00" will be held for all Vandal fans on Saturday, Sept. 8, prior to the first football game of the season.

Sponsored by the University of Idaho Alumni Association, Inc., the picnic will be for 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the university's Shattuck Arboretum. The picnic is open to alumni, students, parents, staff and friends of the university.

\---

Registration Schedule Memorial Gymnasium

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 6

- 8:00 to 8:30 a.m. Early Permits
- 8:30 to 10:00 a.m. F-R-G
- 10:00 to 10:30 a.m. H-J-M
- 10:30 to 11:00 a.m. J-K-L
- 11:00 to 11:30 a.m. K-L-M
- 11:30 to 1:00 p.m. L-M-N
- 1:00 to 1:30 p.m. M-L-N

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 7

- 8:00 to 8:30 a.m. D-S-S
- 8:30 to 9:00 a.m. D-S-S
- 9:00 to 9:30 a.m. D-S-S
- 9:30 to 10:00 a.m. D-S-S
- 10:00 to 10:30 a.m. D-S-S
- 10:30 to 11:00 a.m. D-S-S
- 11:00 to 11:15 a.m. D-S-S
Ralph Nader comes to Idaho

A new student organization is beginning to take shape in Idaho this year which includes all the Idaho student unions and diversity campaigns in the state. The organization, modeled after a student group inspired by Ralph Nader, is the Idaho Public Interest Research Group (IdaPIRG). It is a statewide student group operated and funded solely by students.

The purpose of IdaPIRGs is to offer the students of Idaho a viable and effective means through which to voice their concerns and opinions on all matters relating to the public interest at the campus, community and state levels.

Action taken by IdaPIRG will consist of coordinated efforts of analysis and research, public education, active representation before administrative & regulatory agencies, legislative bodies, and to litigation-where such court action is warranted-to achieve the goals of the PIRG.

Some general areas of possible IdaPIRG concern deal with consumer protection, resource planning, protection of natural areas and environmental quality, tenant relations, freedom of information in government, employment and housing discrimination, and similar problems of urgent and long-range concern to the students of Idaho.

IdaPIRG must be endorsed by a majority of the students on each campus in the state in order to be established and operate at full capability. Kevin Russell and Bob Pickett, who initiated the IdaPIRG idea in the state and U of I students, will be traveling to the other eight schools in the state this fall trying to firm up the program.

They will be trying to enlist more help in organizing the PIRG and set up steering committees on each campus. There is such a steering committee at some of the schools now, including the one at University of Idaho which will be meeting within the next week if anyone would like to attend to find out more about IdaPIRG and help work with the organization.

IdaPIRG coordinators are trying to offer the students a tool through which they become an effective voice in public and private concerns throughout the state. If you have any questions about IdaPIRG before the next meeting contact Kevin Russell at the SUB office.

***************
A letter from Russell

I hope that all the students entering and returning to Moscow this year will take advantage of the facility which they have built for themselves and operate the SUB. The SUB offers the student everything from breakfast to a line or two at our bowling alley or a game of pool, ping-pong and air hockey; to viewing a great movie in the Bronx Theater on the second floor; to dances, coffeehouse entertainment, or just some plain old relaxation in the cafeteria or one of the lounges. You'll find all the ASUI offices on the first floor, the ASUI President, Vice-President, the Senate along with our Programs and Recreation centers. If you want to spend the weekend climbing or backpacking or just about any outdoor activity Jim Rennie is in the basement of the SUB waiting to help out with our Outdoor Recreation program.

Some of you returning from last year will probably notice the food prices have gone up slightly. I consider it unfortunate but we couldn't avoid it and still provide the service at the snack bar. The prices here are still about the most reasonable around, and we hope to reflect a decreased in prices if our food purchase price goes down, especially the meal prices.

There's conference and meeting rooms available for any student group which requires someone to hold meetings, just come in to the office and reserve a time and place, we cater to.

The SUB is governed by a student board which sets all policy and procedure for the Union operations and services. Two positions are now open on the Board which need to be filled as soon as possible. Anyone interested in serving on SUB Board can contact me or one of the secretaries in the SUB offices and apply for a position, and Freshman and Sophomores are as welcome as upperclassmen.

Kevin Russell
Chairman
Student Union Board
Alive
Alumni not over hill yet, they’re still active

Old-fashioned fun in pace with today’s university describes the Alumni Association, Inc., activities planned at the University of Idaho this fall, according to Dick Johnston, alumni director.

Through a network of volunteers, the UI Alumni Association, Inc., encourages all of its alumni to participate in various activities throughout Idaho and the nation.

“Whether it’s finding the address of an old classmate or planning a gathering of friends, helping alumni to learn about current research and academics at the university, supporting athletics or numerous social and academic services, the association strives to serve all University of Idaho alumni, students and everyone interested in the school,” said Johnston.

This year, the association has planned several reunions for alumni, parents, and students, students, and friends of the University of Idaho.

On Sept. 1, the Alumni Association, Inc. has planned the grand opening of its South Idaho Field Office at 200 N. Capitol Blvd. in Boise. Doris G. Russell, a 1973 graduate, is the new field director.

“Everyone is invited to visit our new field office and director. Its purpose is to promote and associate the university in the Boise area,” Johnston said.

A picnic featuring “all you can eat” for $1.50 is happening at 10:30 a.m. Sept. 8 at Moscow. Before the UI’s first football game with the University of Texas at El Paso, Vandal fans can gather to kick off the season.

Following each home football game this year, beginning Sept. 8, the Alumni Office at the University of Idaho will be open as a hospitality center for alumni to visit, relax and enjoy complimentary coffee and donuts.

Before the University of Idaho-Boise State College game at Moscow on Sept. 15, the UI Alumni Association, Inc., is sponsoring a new and different Vandal Burgers, beverages and entertainment.

Parents Association Weekend is Oct. 5-6 in Moscow. During this weekend the Parent’s Association directors will meet and all parents well be welcomed. The Parent’s Association is composed of parents who have a son or daughter currently attending or graduates of the University of Idaho.

Homecoming is the weekend of Oct. 19-20. Several activities are planned including a Miss U of 1 Pageant, “Coach Bank Day” in honor of Ted Bank and his “Vandals” from 1952-61, reunions for the colleges of business and forestry and the departments of chemistry and political science, an art show, an alumni cocktail hour, and a Gordon Lightfoot concert. The U of 1 Vandals clash with Weber State University at 1:30 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 20.

“Also on the alumni agenda for the year is a trip to Reno from March 23-24. The tour is offered to all alumni. The Alumni Office will open its doors as a travel information center from May through October for Expo 74,” said Johnston.

The office of the Alumni Association, Inc., is located at Blake and Nez Pierce Streets in Moscow.

Mayor Resigns
Director Job
At Idaho

Dr. Norman C. Olson, dean of the University of Idaho College of Business and Economics, has announced the resignation of Lawrence H. Merk as director of the Center for Business Development.

Merk, who has served as director since Oct. 1, 1972, is leaving to accept a position with Communications Foundation, Inc., of Burbank, Calif. Merk, who will be serving as field director with responsibilities for promotion and distribution, said the foundation is designed to use television to “present what God is doing in the world today.”

Merk has been associated with the university since 1967 in both teaching and administrative capacities, serving as assistant professor of business and executive director of the Idaho Council on Economic Education. Prior to coming to the university, Merk served as a minister and also worked for Boeing Co., Seattle, Wash.

Merk has also served as mayor of Moscow.

Veteran’s Checks
Available at desk

Students receiving Veteran’s benefits may pick up their pre-payment checks at the Veteran’s table during registration, September 6 and 7, in the Memorial Gym.

After registration, the checks will be available at the Registrar’s Office.

THE ALL-NEW
ALLINO’S HOAGIE SHOP
Featuring Fine Italian Food

- The area’s only sidewalk cafe
- A complete Italian menu
- American Dishes
- Eastern Style Deli Sandwiches
- Dinner by candlelight and Roma Atmosphere
- Imported and Domestic wines
- Cold Beer on Tap

More than a sandwich, Allino’s is Moscow’s finest dining experience...something you’ll long remember.

308 W. 6th Moscow

LEATHER
sensuous ... warm ... soft

The Look

Peck’s
Shoe Clinic and Sheep Shop
Come in and browse around at our new LOCATION
115 East 3rd St. Moscow

CLASSIFIED

College Students
Outfit your household at our fall yard sale Thursday, Sept. 6, Friday Sept. 7, Saturday Sept. 8. Additional stuff each day. 220 West Morton

This year on your way through the hassle of registration pick up your copy of the 1973 Gem. It was worth waiting for! For sales information contact the Gem Office SUB basement 885-6170 or Carroll Councilman Gem Editor.
Issues and forums

Moves during summer

By John Hecht

The Issues & Forums Committee has spent the summer scouting and assembling speakers. So far, three groups have been signed up to address the University of Idaho students, with the rest anticipated to be committed or signed by the end of the month.

Women's Week, co-sponsored by Issues & Forums and the Women's Center, will be held September 24-28. The Co-Respondents, a trio from Olympia, Wash., will present a dual performance of Puss & Games and Ester Laughing. These will be readings and musical adaptations ranging from Moliere and Chaucer, up to the present with the theme that the Women's Movement is nothing new, nor is it's plight in our society.

The Emma Willard Task Force on Education will discuss and hold workshops on sexism in education, how to recognize it, and how it can be done. Workshops and self-help seminars will be held throughout the week under the direction of the Women's Center.

Flo Keenedy, from Esquire, also a graduate of Columbia, is coming October 11. Her latest book is Abortion Rap.

She has been active in civil rights, black liberation, consumerism, and was a founder of NOW (National Organization for Women).

It is difficult to determine what she will talk about, because once she gets started, her talks can go any direction in line with her experiences.

In the spring, around Valentine's day, will be Human Sexuality Week. Headlining this week will be Frederick Sioraski, who is considered one of the nation's leading authorities on assaults on Women. His topic, which is not just a speech, but an involving show, is "To Be or Not To Be Raped". There will be other speakers and panels ranging from gay liberation to the religious and moral implications of sex in our society.

President John F. Kennedy, will have been assassinated 18 years ago November 22nd. Jeremiah Collings (whose resemblance to the late president is remarkable) does a one man show (in the format of Hal Holbrook's Mark Twain Tonight) called JFK. Negotiations are in progress at this time to get him before the Thanksgiving break.

There are other things in the air, and when they are finalized, the students will hear about them through the Argonaut. It should be a very interesting year.

Photographers Sought For Work

This year the ASUI Photographic department is looking for new photographers for this year's staff. People who are interested in applying for a position can apply for an interview, Wednesday, September 12.

Greensides Joins

Nancy Greensides, a senior English major at the University of Idaho has been admitted to the World Campus Afloat program of Chapman College for the Fall 1973 semester at sea.

Miss Greensides will join up to 50 other college students representing 50 colleges and universities in nearly all the 50 states.

Applications

Applications are now being accepted from students for work at the student union catering service. Contact Pete Rogalski in the Food service office.

Preserve Your College Memories

the traditional Yearbook is back — the 1974 Gem on sale in the registration line bigger and better than ever!

- featuring an outstanding seniors section
- this year’s portraits will be taken by Keith Cole Photographers of California.
- All seniors will be listed with their majors, degree, hometown, and living group.

contact: Carroll Campman Gem Editor 885-6170

Welcome Students

Creighton's invites you to come in, browse around. For your assurance of high quality, we bring to you top of the line manufactured products at reasonable prices. Both our men's and women's stores strive to specialize in serving your personal needs.

We welcome Student Charge accounts as well as Master Charge and BankAmericard.

Creighton's
for men since 1890
2 locations to serve you Creighton's
Moscow—882-2424
For Women Since 1890
211 S. Main
Mastercharge—BankAmericard 882-2423
Welcome Back to Moscow

And

The Family Store

MOSCOW, IDAHO — LEWISTON, IDAHO — MOSES LAKE, WASH.
Welcome Back to Moscow

And

The Family Store

We take pride in having the largest selection of merchandise in the area.

Our Goal to give the customer the best quality merchandise at the lowest possible prices...

Tri-State

MOSCOW, IDAHO — LEWISTON, IDAHO — MOSES LAKE, WASH.