Endowments, Part II: Why the Hassle in Offiicialdom?

by Bruce Spotted-Bird

The guiding principle of all officialdom is that the task must be done in an official manner. The Argonaut has discovered, however, that the University administration may not be at fault in some matters. If the Argonaut has discovered a lack of officialdom, it is not because the faculty is lacking in officialdom, but because the faculty is lacking in officialdom.

The reason for the faculty's retirement, or disappearance, was reported in last Friday's Argonaut. The issue of The Argonaut was printed on the same day as the publication of the University administration's officialdom report.

Missiles Over Idaho

Elsewhere in today's Argonaut is a background report from the Associated Press on Air Force plans to shoot intercontinental ballistic missiles at targets in Russia.

While the Pentagon proposes to do it at the eight-minute warning, our correspondent from Minuteman Base in Montana to the Pacific Ocean is starting next winter. Along the way, the missiles would pass over Idaho and Oregon. And after spending time over each of those states, they would fall to earth somewhere in central Idaho.

Idaho Force itself admits that the tests are dangerous—dangerous enough that it would probably be necessary to evacuate Grangeville, Whitehall and possibly other areas.

Why then the need to shoot the missiles over a populated area?

Some critics have speculated that the Pentagon is considering a new series of EBMs because of this. One of the reasons the Air Force hopes to shoot off a few of the Minuteman IIs before they become obsolete. And, yes, the Defense Department probably assumed that the people of north central Idaho would also be more or less unorganized and too small to protest enough to block the tests.

Would the Air Force even consider such a program if the missiles were to pass over New York or San Francisco or even Europe?

I am a 23 year old black inmate concept at the Marion Correctional Institution, Marion, Ohio 43302. I seldom get mail or visits, and I would love a pen pal. I would really appreciate a letter, and I am willing to share all of the things that I enjoy doing. I am interested in anyone who is willing to correspond.

Use of ASUI Funds Questioned

To the Editor: I am most aggrieved by Senate Bill 65 providing for the transfer of $200 from the ASU fund to the Senate Treasury. I believe that the Senate is not proper- pletely equipped to handle the affairs of the Senate. I believe that the money is for the Good Clean Eating. I would be pleased to see the Senate meetings of the Tuesday evening, as well as any other material that they might have. I am most interested in the Senate meetings at the ASU meetings and some work for the legal service.

As the Senate term is for the good of the students, I believe that the Senate is the best place to do the work of the Senate.
President Presidential Primary

By Steve McCoy

Iowa may get its first ballot test on presidential candidates if a proposal by the Idaho College Republican League is carried out by the voters. The proposal endorses the idea of an Iowa presidential primary on the same day as the Michigan primary and on the same date.

The original proposal was approved by the executive board of the League on Jan. 19, or 10.

"Iowa should be the number one U of I College Republican Universityynamically supported to pull the college gong," said Henry Roam, junior and three-time Platform-President of the Campus Republicans.

The proposal also provides for taking the idea directly to the voters as an amendment to the Iowa state Constitution. In November, they would vote on whether to adopt a presidential primary at all. If the voters approve, the resolution would create a new presidential candidate primary, and they would elect which presidential candidate they think is best. The two candidates would then be chosen in the general election in November, with the winner being the Democratic presidential candidate.

Nagel said he has not decided how that would eventually work. He said the system would be a work in progress, and that it will be up to the candidates themselves to make the system work. The proposal would be presented to the Iowa State Board of Regents for their consideration. The board would then decide whether to adopt the proposal, or to continue to work on the idea separately.

The ballot language would take into account the proposals for the presidential primaries in other states. For example, the Michigan primary includes the "presidential preference primary," which lets voters choose a presidential candidate without choosing a party. The Iowa proposal would be similar, but would allow voters to choose multiple presidential candidates, including a "no preference" option. The proposal would also include a mechanism for returning the state to a more traditional "closed" primary system, if the voters choose to do so.

Troxel Takes Reins

By Don Shelton
Associated Press Writer

There are two things that University of Idaho students learn almost immediately about football. First of all, becoming head coach of the team is akin to becoming a head resident. Second, the Vandals do not do well winning football.

With both of these things working against him, former assistant, Ed Troxel, took over the head coaching reins during Christmas break.

The 48-year-old Troxel does see one place for a continuation of being weak.

"First of all I don't think we have a "no-lose" mentality here. We've been playing on our heels. Some of the teams we've not only dropped out of our league, but also from the conference."

Troxel added that he is not as pessimistic about the Vandals' prospects as he might have been relatively tough schedule next year, but our number one objective will be winning the Big Sky championship.

"All my players are winners, and I know that. They are all competitive," Troxel said.

Troxel's office reflects his desire place to be - a winner's office.

His desk is buried beneath heaps of paperwork, his phone is constantly ringing, his phone and his phones are always on the line, and his phone is always in the air.

All of which is a reminder of two things.

The first is that Troxel is a head coach of a football team, and the second is that he is a coach of a team that has been on the ropes for a long time.

Troxel's first task was to pick his coaching staff.

He left the question open, but the Vandals will start the fall at a winning football team.

Money was also a factor in Troxel originally, nesting the head coaching position. Dr. Lea Shaw, UI athletic director, proposed that Troxel would be steered to only return other coaches, he was asked to take another look at the Vandals, with the promise that the coaching staff would be a "good one".

New assistants

All but one of the assistants, the line coach, have been appointed.

Gary Hult, former Idaho head center, is the assistant coach, Dennis Erickson is the offensive coordinator, and Dave Christoff, the last assistant, is the defensive coordinator. Troxel said that he was also interviewing the applicants for the post, but declined to comment on them.

Troxel acknowledged recent cuts for financial reasons of the Idaho and the University. "Our understanding is there was a reduction in state funds for Idaho sports, not just football."

Troxel didn't have to search far for his new assistant coach.

He left the question open, but the Vandals will start the fall at a winning football team.

Portland, P.S.U. Too Much for Vandals

Marked travelled to Portland for two games over the weekend and came away with a pair of defeats. Vandals guard Rick Davis scored 3,744 million points for the Portland State Bobcats, and the Bobcats led the Vandals 2-300 at the half and 4-200 in the final.

The two Portland State players leading 50 points, they were able to outplay and outscore the Vandals in the final.

Their objective was to win the entire tournament, which started with a win in the first round over Idaho State.

The Vandals lost 1-0, and the Bobcats got to win over Idaho but they lost the their game.

Rick "Tiny" Linda, who led the Bobcats with 19 points, had 1-10 to the Vandal's 19, with 1-10 to the Bobcats with 19 today.

The Vandals outscored the Bobcats 20-19, and Jim went 1-0, 0-0 and 1-0 with 1-0 and 0-0 with 1-0, 0-0 and 1-0 with 1-0.
