U. of W. Shatters Idaho's Championship Aspirations by the Decisive Score of 24 to 0.

In the second quarter, Young made a run for thirty-five yards behind perfect interference and planted the ball within a yard of a touchdown. shelit took it over in one back. It was a perfect touchdown. In the same quarter, Young made a drop kick from the forty yard line, and the first half ended twenty-two to nothing in favor of Washington.

Washington only made two points during the second half, on a touchback when Brown was downed behind the line, but toward the end of the last quarter Dobie sent substitutes in and pretty soon had practically a new team on the field. The ball was then kicked three yards short of a touchdown when time was called. It did not seem to make much difference how many substitutes Dobie used, for Idaho could make no gains against them.

Following is the way the two teams lined up:

U. of I. Hunt Kinnison left end Bliss
Fairweather guard Griffith
Perkins center Anderson
Burrington right guard Patten
Leuchel right end Sutton
Lookhart quarter back Dorman
Carey right half Shirley
Knutson full back
Summary: Touchdowns—Sun. Young, Shiel. Goal from field—Young. Goals kicked—Patten.

Idaho Women Are Working for a New Building for Domestic Science

The women of Idaho, through their State Federation of Women's clubs are planning to ask the next legislature to make an appropriation for a Women's building at the University. They believe that through research, training of resident students, moveable schools, extension and chalking the university will make a more effective resource for the state in improved health and domestic conditions.

"It is everywhere being recognized that it is equally as important to train women to be capable managers and intelligent consumers as it is to make men efficient producers," said Miss Permal French, president of the Federation of Women's clubs. "The need for trained home-makers is greater today than ever before. For instance the pure food and drugs act requires labels stating the contents of packages, but even the Housewives understands what effect observatories have upon the health of her family the law is of little benefit to the people at large. Preservatives are used not only by manufacturers but by many women themselves during the canning season.

"Home economics trains the future mother. Over one third of the children born die under the age of five years and more than half of these deaths are due to di-gestive disorders.

"The United States has as many divorces as all the other Christian nations combined and it is not incorrect to say that a very large proportion of them are caused by incompetent housekeeping."

"New fields of industry are opening up for women," said Miss Jessie M. Hoover, head of the home economics department. Women trained in chemistry, food science, home economics, home care, pure food and pure textiles, experts, laundry, home economists and cafeteria managers, hospital dietitians, costume designers, interior decorators, extension and chalking lecturers, magazine writers, architects and teachers of homemaking.

At present the University of Idaho is handicapped by inadequate facilities for giving the girls of the state the training they want. The home economics department (Continued on page 2)

W. H. MASON, '12, Candidate for the legislature on the republican ticket.

Mr. Mason graduated from the University of Idaho Law School last spring after spending five years in the College of Liberal Arts and the Law School. He is a true son of our Alma Mater and if elected will do all in his power to serve her.—(Adv.)
The Argonaut will publish communications only when it has the name of the author of the same. We would like to have students express their opinions, as many valuable suggestions may be brought before the student body in this manner.

The Moscow business men make the Argonaut possible. The contract price far getting out one issue of the Argonaut is $22.50. Thus for the year, thirty-five copies amount to $787.50. There are approximately four hundred and fifty subscribers at $1.00 each, which amounts to $450.

The balance of the money must come from the advertisers of Moscow. Before making your purchases look over the advertisements in the current issue of the Argonaut and see who is making the paper possible. Or in other words, patronize those who patronize you.

Who will be the speaker at the next commencement at Idaho? It is up to the senior class to decide. It action be taken now and not delayed until some dozen days before the date of graduation it will be possible to secure a speaker who will assure us to the occasion. It is understood that Professor George Herbert Palmer, of Harvard, will be in the west about that time and make an effort to get him. A better selection could not be made. At the commencement exercises, Princeton, University, June 11, under the honnoury degree of L.H.D. on Professor Palmer, in presenting Professor Palmer, Dean West said: "George Herbert Palmer, professor of philosophy in Harvard University, a teacher who holds his students by scholarship of living power, a clear thinker of meditative tone, a student of ethics with a deep grasp on that ethics truth which underlies all right, a literary artist—fit editor of the poems of his spiritual ancestor George Herbert; his refinement in style, whether in philosophy or literature, being no more fastidiousness, but the reflex of refined thought, a philosopher in the original sense, widely intellectual; the great and unbridled with a transcendent enthusiasm for truth which drives existence and worth to all his work."

The office of The Argonaut is in the public office, new due to the burial's office. A member of the staff may be found in the office any afternoon except Tuesday. Contributions gladly received until Monday noon of each week. Paper goes in press Tuesday.

Communications
Could the Barbs Organize?

There has been a great deal of discussion among the non-fraternity men this fall about organization and that is as far as it seems able to get. Of course the one object for organization would be the closer bonds of fellowship among the non-fraternity men. All realize when the great majority of barbs are "out of it" so far as the social part of college life is concerned. Nor are there any so foolish as to hope to get the great majority "into it." But it does seem possible that as members of that "great majority" we are not able to enjoy the much preferable company of the co-ed, at least we might enjoy a better fellowship among our selves. While we might despair of enjoying the company of the fairer sex as does our more fortunate fraternity man I, for one, see no reason why we should grumble and lay down all hope in absolute despondency. If a fellow is a "barb" he ought to be a good "barb" and not ashamed of his position. For he who cannot get into a fraternity and is ashamed to be a "barb," certainly is in a most pitiful condition. It seems to me that there could be an organization effected and customs started of having at least three good "barb" rallies per year, one before the Pullman game as a reception, one in mid winter and farewell in the spring. If these rallies consisted of nothing more than a cheese feed of ice cream, cake and grape juice, with speeches, songs, stories and a roasting good spirit, there would certainly be more life and comfort among us non-fraternity men, or more simply among us "barbs." We don't want to knock the fraternities. They are doing the very thing we would do if we had a chance. They are in no way responsible for our inabilities, either financially or otherwise, and a man with any pride could certainly not wish to impose it upon them. Such organizations has probably been attempted before, but only right on the verge of political elections and probably the movement started by some lordly office seeker or who would "tact around" the fraternities the rest of the year, vainly watching for the half open door that he might slip in I don't know that it has been tried but I have been told that it has and if so under these conditions, no wonder that no harmony was crested.

It simply ends in this—we are "barbs" and why not be what we are. For my part I can enjoy the company of any one if they are only willing that I should.

STUDENT AFFAIRS

A T ASSEMBLY.

The address at assembly last week was given by Dean Eldridge on the elective system in college. Mr. Eldridge gave a short history of the system, pointing out the fact that before the civil war, the courses in college were much more aristocratic and that graduates from colleges lived among the people and not with them. But since that time the tendency has been toward a much more democratic system. Mr. Eldridge read quite extensively from the work of Dean Wright on "Old Baldy," as Mr. Eldridge was pleased to call him, of Yale. The reading of Dean Wright's work was somewhat a survey of the sophomores and perhaps other upper classmen as they have been required to read it in the first year English work. Yet it is doubtful if many read it so carefully that a review would be a waste of time.

The fact that Mr. Eldridge is a personal friend of Dean Wright brought interest in the work that a student in just reading it would perhaps not have felt. Dean Eldridge picked out the cream of the work that applied to the elective system both in favor and against. The main point against the student's right to choose his course was the fact that the tendency to follow the line of least resistance is often very detrimental, while the benefit is a more liberal and democratic education. A place solo was given by Miss Jones.

Short Course Boys Find Enjoyment.

Owing to the lack of entertainment available to the short course boys, one of their party was forced to supply the need. It appears that the culprit violated some of the rudiments of the table manners laid down by his fellow students as proper conduct conduct. In consequence a kangaroo court was held and the accused being found guilty was sentenced to be exhibited before the public lashet to a cart. The decree was carried out in true rustic fashion. A car was drawn and the convict, lashed to the same, was hauled through the main street of town. He was then taken to the east side and left bound to the cart in such a fashion that it was possible for him to obtain his freedom, but having been conveyed thither with blindfolded eyes, he found some difficulty in finding the way back. It was reported that he returned barely in time for breakfast the next morning. One would be led to think that the violation of table manners must be a terrible offense in the eyes of the short course boys, yet we have not heard of the wheels of the cart becoming heated.

Holidays:

Forestry Students Take Field Trip.

On last Saturday the students of the forestry department took a field trip for practical experience. The party left the corner at Pull and 3rd street at 7:30 a.m. and went to the Tonnos ranch and then to Tonnos Butte. All hands took lunches with them and evidently the climate was appealing as a neighborly crowd devoured the extremities of one of the boy's cost. The party returned at about 5:00 p.m.

EXCHANGES

That David Starr Jordan will resign in 1915 as the first president of Stanford university to take up the cause of international peace was announced October 1 at the celebration on the campus of Stanford's twenty-first birthday.

The resolution of the board of trustees that a president shall resign at the age of 65 will go into effect, Dr. Jordan is 65.

With Jordan as president Stanford opened its doors in 1892. Stanford's entire college has been moulded by him. His hobby has been the world's progress in international peace, and much of present progress is due to his efforts.

Freshmen at Whitman college are protesting against the rules laid down for them by upper classmen, which include wearing green caps. Sundays and week days alike, lifting caps to the faculty, and saying "mister" to seniors. These rules have been so modified that freshmen who can prove attendance at church need not wear green caps on Sunday, but the Fresh are still dissatisfied with the regulations.

Princeton university has given over a large section of its grounds to students who find it necessary to make their own way through college. They are supplied with farm implements and are instructed in the best farming methods. Some of them are farmers' sons, and they find no difficulty in getting their education out of the soil. The city boys do not find it so easy.

A course in journalism has been added to the curriculum at Oregon. The instruction is under the management of Professor Allen, formerly city editor of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer. Three courses are given—one in news writing and gathering, one in editorial policy and one in organization and executive side of the newspaper. Forty-four students are enrolled in the first course.

Stanford university has decided to select a new name for their daily. "The Daily Palo Alto does not suit the students, and they are receiving suggestions from all parts of the state. The selection will be made next week.

Statistics compiled by the United States Bureau of Education show that there were 4,362 foreign students enrolled as regular students in the universities and colleges of the United States during the year 1911-1912.

Graduates of the University of Kansas number 6000. Of the living women graduates only 20 per cent of them are married.

About 15 per cent of the students enrolled at the University of Iowa are scholarship students. They have four classes of scholarships given at Iowa: the Whitmore Carr scholarships, the honor scholarships, the Henry Strong scholarships and the county scholarships.

The Wyoming State of Education, at its last meeting, authorized the erection of a $100,000 agricultural building at the state university at Laramie. The plans have not yet been submitted, but the construction of the building will begin soon. Three hundred and seventeen students are enrolled in the university this year. President Denway estimates that this number will increase by 50 in the second semester.

There will be no basketball coach at Washington this year, according to Victor Zdinack, graduate manager of athletics. Continuing, he said, "The team has gotten along pretty well the last two years with captains coaching. We can't afford so many coaches. When I was first elected four years ago we paid only $1,000 for coaching. This year we are paying more than $6,000. The associated students can't stand any more."

Pan Hellenic council of the University of Illinois has adopted resolutions discontenctacing hazing. The council is made up of representatives of the various Greek letter fraternities and its action will, it is thought, have a decided bearing upon the question. Several other student organizations, including the University of Illinois Student union and the College of Agriculture club have taken similar action in the past.

The sophomores held a class meeting last week for the purpose of "stirring up" something in the social line of events. It was decided that the Sophomore Frolic should be held sometime in November instead of February as was figured for a while. The date was changed because of Lent beginning February 4th which is earlier than any date able to be secured. There was a great deal of discussion regarding a ride out into the country and a party but owing to the early date of the Frolic it was thought that such a ride should be postponed until shingaling time.
