Symposium participants clash on preventing war

Opinions clashed Wednesday night on how to prevent war at the second night of the 29th Borah Symposium.

Participants in a panel discussion were (from left): Victor Marchetti, an ex-CIA agent; Seymour Melman, an economics professor at Columbia University; moderator Bill Hall, editorial page editor of the Lewiston Morning Tribune; Samuel Huntington, a Harvard University professor; and Admiral Elmo Zumwault, retired chief of naval operations.

Reports on the symposium sessions and interviews with the participants are on pages 5, 6 and 7.

Hartung, Carter agree on letter

By KENTON BIRD
of the Argonaut staff

University President Ernest Hartung and Financial Vice President Sherman Carter said this week they are not at odds over a letter Carter sent to the Board of Regents, state officials and legislators.

The Committee for Student Rights (CSR), which is challenging the legality of the University's fee structure, Monday accused Carter of lobbying for a constitutional amendment to permit the charging of in-state tuition.

In a letter to J.P. Munson, Sandpoint, president of the Board of Regents, and other recipients of Carter's letter, the committee said Carter's action was in conflict of a statement made by Hartung to the Jan. 21 ASUI Senate meeting.

At that meeting, Hartung said Carter had not contacted any legislators encouraging an amendment to allow the charging of undergraduate resident tuition. The amendment, which is prohibited under the Idaho constitution.

The Argonaut did state in Tuesday's issue that the question to which Hartung responded, was by CSR coordinator John O'Neill, dealt specifically with lobbying for in-state tuition.

Carter's letter of Jan. 20 informed the regents, state offficials and Latan County's three legislators of the fee challenge. The CSR, however, felt that the last sentence of the letter was a renewal of the challenge and that such was a contraction of Hartung's Jan. 21 statement.

"... if there is any question about the legality of the University's charging these student charges, action should be taken promptly to eliminate any such doubt," Carter's letter concluded.

But the action referred to would be action by the Board of Regents rather than action involving the University's contitutional status by the legislature, Hartung and Carter said in separate interviews Wednesday.

Seeking a constitutional amendment would be one course for the regents to take, Carter acknowledged. But the president added he favored that as only a last resort.

"There are several ways to skin the cat," Carter com-
ted. "I don't think a contitutional change is required." He said possibilities open include to charge tuition for graduate students or students in professional departments.

Carter said his responsibilities as the university's chief financial officer prompted the sending of his letter so that the fee challenge wouldn't "drop out of the sky" onto the laps of the regents.

But on policy matters, Hartung is the spokesman for the University, Carter emphasized.

Meanwhile, Hartung criticized CSR President Mark Falconer for his letter to the recipients of the original Carter Letter. In a letter dated Tuesday to Falconer and twenty-one other recipients, Hartung accused Falconer of going over his head. Hartung said Falconer's letter "does great disservice to your cause, to Dr. Carter, and, in the long run, to the University of Idaho."

The president said later in the letter: "Had you taken the time to come in and discuss this matter with me before writing directly to our superiors, I believe I could have set the record straight with you and pointed out wherein I felt your recollections of what went on at the student senate meetings were at variance with mine." The president said that the committe's letter overemphasized differences of opinion between himself and Carter and failed to specify the questions asked Hartung at the senate meeting.

$5 SUB fee diverted

By RANDY STAPULIS
of the Argonaut staff

The $5 fee increase which was originally used for supporting the SUB will now be directed toward "some building funds and reserves," according to Financial Vice President Sherman Carter.

Speaking before the ASUI Senate meeting, Carter said there were several reasons why the increase will be used for the SUB. "Whether it would be financially feasible I don't know," he said.

The money was needed to build the proposed Commons building, which, he said, might serve as a cafeteria, bookstore and lounge, with the possibility of game rooms added. "It would grossly oversize," Carter said, "and it would be a facility for the preparation of food." he said.

If money would be withdrawn from the SUB bond reserve to make purchases for improvements within the SUB, Carter said, he could not say, but we wouldn't want to spend any if we didn't have to.

Senator Mark Lotspeich said that his living groups had opposed the fee increase when he talked to them, and said the Commons would become an in-coincidence, since students would have to walk further to eat. Carter agreed that it "is an inconvenient change," but cited pressing need for more room. Carter also said the student body was cramped in its present quarters and needed more room, which the Com-mans might supply.

Senator Grant Burgeyone said President Hartung had told the senate a week before no letter was to be sent to legislators about the fee increase of the commons building, and that no lobbying was done.

Course for teachers

"The Man-Made World," a course focusing on technology and its effects on society, will be offered again this summer at the University of Idaho, according to Dr. Terry Armstrong, professor of electrical engineering.

"The Man-Made World" is a special program designed primarily to prepare science, mathematics and social science teachers to use the special "Man-Made World" curriculum. An intensive six-week course this summer will be followed by implementation of the curriculum by the participating Idaho and Eastern Washington teachers in their schools.

Art showing

A small, private collection of prints, owned by Sara and Milo Nelson, is on display at the U of I Gallery through Friday, Feb. 7. Artists represented include Larry Rivers, Alexander Calder, Robert Rauschenberg, Salvador Dali and others.

Tryouts

Tryouts for the musical "Company" will be held Monday Feb. 5 at 4 p.m. at the music recital hall. Those wishing to try out will be cast according to musical and movement abilities.

For further information contact the Drama Department at 885-0408 or 885-0465.

Fellowships offering

Pre-doctoral fellowships for study in Japan in the areas of urban planning, environmental studies, economic policy, etc. $5000 will cover transportation and living expenses for six months. For further information, contact Leo Boron, of the mathematics department. Deadline is April 1.

Free- movie

"The Grass is Greener," a movie starring Henry Fonda, John Carradine, and Jane Darwell (who won an Oscar for her performance) will be shown at 7:30 p.m. Friday in the Moscow City Hall. Sponsored by the Moscow-Latah County Library, the admission is free.

Chess Club

The Chess Club will meet Sunday at 1 p.m. in the Blue Room of the SUB. Please bring along chess sets.

Pool hours

The Swim Recreational Hours for Spring Semester will be slightly different than those of last semester. The new hours for February will be:

- Student Staff and Faculty: Monday through Friday 12-1 p.m.; Monday through Friday 7-11 p.m.; Tuesday through Thursday 7-10 p.m.
- Family swim: No children allowed without their parents in the pool Tuesday and Thursday 2-5 and 7-9 p.m.; Monday, Friday, and Saturday 7-9 p.m.; Sunday 3-5 and 7-9 p.m.
- Public Swim: Monday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday 7-9 p.m.

Advice on love life is an extra-cost option.
He saw his duty and done it

By DAVID MORRISSEY

A year ago this month I spent three days winter camping in central Idaho with several friends, snowshoeing, cross-country skiing and sleeping in snow-covered cabins.

It was a trip I will remember for a long time, especially at the silent, excellent weather and the beauty of the land we touched by man. Experiencing Idaho’s "winter" can make the most cynical hearts sing. Then the snowmobiles came, roared into and around our camp with sounds equivalent to a 747 on the take-off ramp. Later, we have the time to imagine them, a six pack of empty cans and bottles, to be left behind to be picked up by the next of us on showshoes and skis.

Since that time I have harbored a quiet hatred of the gentleman who invented snowmobiles. Not an ordinary dislike mind you, but a full blown feeling that this was individual and the order of Eugen Schleiffen, the British ornithologist who was 85 years ago innocently became the first pair of starlings to America.

There was little I could do about the matter, however, and I assumed that all an offended snowmobiler could do was suffer and complain. But that was before I learned of Arthur W. Sedlack.

Sedlack is a technician at Waterton Ranger Station in southern Alberta. He was one of the few whose duties included overseeing this near million dollar park during the tough winter months, when roads were closed and tourists travel is virtually non-existent. It used to be an easy job. Sedlack would hop in his pick-up truck, open, checking the park to insures that its facilities were in satisfactory condition.

But the snowmobile changed all that. Within the space of a few months only a few mudholes in the park, normally inaccessible in winter, became prey to any man who could obtain a snowmobile. Thefts and vandalism increased accordingly. He eventually became too much for even a long-time employee like Sedlack to take.

Last month he stood in a trespassing snowmobiler and in three words or one newspaper headline, "Foul! The Snowmobile to Death!" One bullet, just like in the old "Wild West" movies. Only not between the villain’s eyes but into the engine compartment of the offending snowmobile. Killed it dead.

The reaction of his superiors was to be expected. They threatened Sedlack with all due depending the outcome of an official inquiry.

The official commented that perhaps "man’s age-old animosity toward the machine may have overthrown Sedlack. In any case, disciplinary action toward the Glacier Park technician may be taken. He might, conceivably, lose his job. If that happen I will cry "foul!"

But I would like to suggest that there be a special medal created in honor of Mr. Sedlack, with the park technician to receive the first in an

Argonaut not sexist, intuition just wrong

To the editor:

In the Argonaut’s Tuesday edition, the front page explanation of the speakers appearing at the Borah Symposium read: “With an admiral’s experience, a CIA agent’s intelligence and two female representatives, intuition, this gathering could produce its own "Fire in the Lake.""

Intuition is defined as "direct perception of truths, facts, etc., independent of any reasoning process."

The women representatives, Congresswoman Barbara Mikulski and Senator Barbara Boxer, a Vietnam veteran, have certainly established their credentials through their work and independent understanding of their subject matters and not merely through intuition.

In describing their knowledge as independent of any reasoning process (intuition), the Argonaut exhibited blatant sexism and undermined the accomplishments of these women. This insult should be accounted for with an apology in your newspaper.

Mary C. Ferrick

Editor’s note: Sorry, my intuition was wrong on that decision.

Pacifism didn’t end

Come gather round people where ever you roam,
And admit that the waters around you have grown.

Vietnam came. It came slowly and secretly at first. Then it exploded. We knew what we were told and believed the media had instructed us to believe. Vietnam has not ceased, but again it has become secret.

Then there is not just a "Vietnam" anymore. While the U.S. was bigger than it has ever been even with the official war, the war was officially over. But unofficially things still go on.

And where is the work of the people? Are they listened to? More important, do they speak out loud? The answer to both, as its rather obvious with a little awareness, is a big NO!

This is a war all who have not decided to ignore, possibly, even though positive action might involve some risks. The war is not over, the war is not over.

The Vietnamese military action, "to further the cause of peace and love," brought us to life, and saved us did not and will not die.

Where are the pictures of the napalmings, rapes, tortures, and disembowelments that unofficially occurred, in the name of what’s right?

Nightline story clarified, corrected

To the editor:

I am sure that the intent of the article "Hello, this is Nightline and I need help" in Tuesday’s Argonaut was to help Nightline and inform your readers. I have no problem with that intent that I respond: I wish to point out the problems, identity solutions, correct significant errors in the article. For example, in the 28th, acknowledge the service of the volunteers and the sincere welcome to all who would help make a new and better Nightline.

A lack of leadership for the past six to eight months is central to Nightline’s problems. The other perpetual problems are pranks, a lack of a professional organization; funding, facilities, personnel, motivations, motivation, money, public relations, and so on. None of leadership, these problems have been addressed.

The leadership vacuum will be filled for the next three months. Second, new people have to be present to leaders. The energy and the willingness to restore a service that will assume leadership this spring. At this time and more, the volunteers are joining Nightline, more and more. Edcit

Constitution not accepted

A revised ASU Constitution underwent scrutiny and changes at last Tuesday's Senate meeting, and was still not accepted.

The revised constitution gives the president new powers such as the veto, under control of the SUB General Manager. "Under the current system," said Paul Ditl, an ASU member, "the president is greatly restricted."

He said that while the President is charged with the responsibility for all ASU executive functions, he is not given the power to deal with the people under him effective, or to effectively deal with his associates such as the Senate. Much of the debate during the meeting centered around how many senators should be needed to override a presidential veto. Senator Mark Beatty said the number should be at least eight of thirteen senators, but others felt this number was too low. When debate on the section ended, the number remained at nine senators for an override.

The new constitution makes no provision for a Frosch Council. Current council head Ron Bush said he agreed with the move, calling the council "a pacifier to chew on. It doesn't really have much power."

Fresmen may be represented on the senate however. The new constitution provides for elections twice a year, so freshmen could be elected to the senate in the fall. A new judicial council has been established which by the constitution "shall decide all cases and controversies arising out of the ASU Constitution and the Rules and Regulations."

At the meeting Kemphorne pointed out that "what you have done tonight was to lay an equal legislative and executive branch, and now an equal judicial branch," giving it close resemblance to the United States Constitution.

Much of the remaining debate centered around Article VIII which concerns impeaching the president, senator, and town. Some senators felt that for a recall initiative to begin, only ten percent of the present constitution would need to sign, rather than the twenty percent in the present constitution. A compromise was reached after a long debate: fifteen percent needed for recall.

Brown resigns position

The ASUI Entertainment Committee was shaken this week when chairman Rich Brown resigned — and proposed a reorganization of the entire Programs Department. "There were two reasons why I resigned," said Brown. "Some recent events have been discouraging, especially the thing with the recent trip to Washington."

Brown was referring to plans originally made for Rich Ed Gladder and himself, to go to Washington D.C. this month. The senate voted against the trip.

"But the Entertainment Committee," he said, "was told that I've gotten into conflict with others in programs. It was time to pull out and put in some new blood."

Brown has recommended Gladder to replace him as entertainment chairman.

Brown also said, "I haven't been as effective...I've been in programs two-and-a-half years now. He said that in the past few months the senate had not given the Entertainment Committee top priority in budgeting and planning.

"The Entertainment committee does more dollar business than any other committee in the ASU. Not trusting us was a dangerous track to do."

"No doubt, my Entertainment Committee is the best in the Northwest," he said. "It's one of the most prestigious in the country."

Brown said he had received a letter in which ASU President Dirk Kemphorne advised against, "appropriating money to people who will be out of office in a few weeks."

Another reason for his resignation, Brown said, was having to devote more time to reorganization of the Programs Department. Under Brown's new plan, programs would be split into three parts. All parts would be under the control of the projects coordinator, Imogene Rush. The departments would be:

Public Relations, which would take care of graphic arts, advertising and all other public relations.

Programs Division, which would be comprised of the committees of Entertainment, Films, Issues, and Forums.

Students Services, which would include all other programs committees, the Programs Board, and only those committees. These smaller committees are primarily geared toward specific events, such as homecoming.

The present system sets the programs board over all committees. The Programs coordinator is also above all committees. According to Brown, it's because of this the committee is much slower in approving programs, the four large committees - Entertainment Programs, Films and Coffee House — usually seek approval from the programs coordinator anyway.

Brown also said programs accounting was poor. "The way our budget's set up," he said, "bills aren't paid and we never know where we are."

The system is antiquated and backward, he said, and indicated he plans to help reorganize it.

Aspin says U.S. Navy still on top

By BILL LEWIS of the Argonaut staff

"The United States shouldn't go in and buy military equipment just because the Soviets have the same area of interdiction. According to Rep. Les Aspin - D-Wis. - on campus for the final two days of the Borah Symposium.

Aspin, in an Argonaut interview yesterday, offered the contention that the United States is at a disadvantage because it is not superior to the Soviets in all weapons systems and an "alarmist" viewpoint.

The Soviet Union, for example, Aspin said, has more ships than the United States Navy, but because the United States has more fire power and more total tonnage, "it wouldn't make any sense to take the same number of ships as they do."

Aspin said there is a possibility that a political solution can be reached in many areas of interdiction, including the Middle East. The United States can be a part of that solution by reducing its commitments of economic, rather than military aid to both sides, he said.

In Vietnam, Aspin said, the political outcome will depend upon the Thieu government and its willingness to accept a coalition government.

Regardless of Thieu position, Aspin said, "President Ford is going to have one hell of a time getting away from Congress for South Vietnam."

On the domestic front, the House of Representatives will soon form its own commission to investigate covert activities on the part of the Central Intelligence Agency, the congressman said.

He added that he thought Congressional investigations of CIA activities are needed, but the "fundamental changes" would have to come before Congress could oversee the CIA on a day-to-day basis.

Aspin was part of a movement to defeat the Domestic Subcommittee, which defeated some senior committee chairman in their effort to make more control over the CIA. One senior congressman, stripped of his committee chairmanship, was anti-Iranian policies. Heberst, chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, of which Aspin is a member, vetoed the bill, stating that the country is not fully armed and financially. The state is antiquated and backward, he said, and indicated he plans to help reorganize it.

After college, will you get the job you deserve?

Let's face it, things aren't equal in today's job market. Even with a college degree, the Air Force has jobs that fit your college education, on an equal opportunity basis.

The Air Force is deeply involved in providing understanding for its people about the possibilities and sensitivities of others. Doing its part to make things better. We're not perfect—yet. But brother, we're getting there.

There are many job opportunities open to you as an officer in the United States Air Force. You may consider being a pilot or navigator.

And don't forget the ROTC Scholarship Program. Scholarships that cover full tuition, reimbursement for textbooks, lab and incidental fees. Plus an allowance of $1000 a month and flying lessons.

Apply, qualify, and enroll in Air Force ROTC at The University of Idaho.
Zumwalt views our military as a weaker force today

"I think that more people on this campus, and in this country, would like to believe Seymour Melman's views on peace than mine," Elmo Zumwalt said during his keynote address at the Idaho Argonaut's 41st Annual Convention.

With facts and figures flowing along swifter than a nuclear aircraft carrier, he offered listeners a view of the need for national defense that grows increasingly unpopular, but he said "The crisis has arrived."

He described the lack of more tonnage of U.S. Navy ships than any enemy," Zumwalt said when discussing the deficit in the ready Navy. He pointed out that the Soviet fleet is now the largest in the world, and probably the best.

"I don't know how to win a nuclear war, I do know that I don't want to lose one," he said. He drew in points of illustration from his involvement with the Cuban Missile Crisis, in which he said that Russian Minister Andrei Gromyko compared Kennedy. He said that the attempt to place missiles in Cuba were double Soviet mega-tonnage, while halving delivery time.

Citing with U.S. blockade of Cuba, "the Russians had no alternative but to back down," Zumwalt said.

Continuing on his theme of distrust of the Soviets, and their capacity to make trouble, Zumwalt said that for $3 billion a year in equipment supplied to the North Vietnamese the Soviets were able to force the U.S to spend $30 billion in Vietnam.

He said that while the U.S. was preoccupied with non-productive spending in Southeast Asia, the Soviets were building up their Navy at "an incredible rate."

He counseled against armed intervention in the Middle East, as has been suggested by Secretary of State Kissinger, saying, "the Soviets would love such an action was taken, he felt, the Russians would use the opportunity to "protect and liberate" Libya and Iraq, and use their oil.

He hammered again and again on the point that by increasing military spending, thus contributing to the economy, and through possible disarmament, save money later.

CIA monitors Marchetti

"The CIA monitors all my speaking engagements and radio-TV appearances," says Victor Marchetti, former member of the CIA.

Since he quit the agency in 1973 Marchetti has been a critic of the CIA. According to Marchetti the CIA is responsible for coup d'etats in Laos, Vietnam and Cambodia. He also cited the involvement of the agency in Chile and Greece. Incidentally, the head of the United States in Greece was a CIA agent since 1952," said Marchetti.

The CIA may launch in the future paramilitary operations in one or all of the areas world wide that are in the throes of social upheaval. Upheaval is what prompts the CIA director to begin planning possible clandestine activities in a country.

The clandestine affairs branch of the CIA dominates the entire operations of the agency, said Marchetti. "There hasn't been a director of the agency yet who has not come up through clandestine affairs."

Citing the 1947 National Security Law, Marchetti said that there was a secret charter in the law. The charter is really a loophole that allows the CIA to carry out propaganda programs and covert actions without the knowledge or consent of Congress or the people.

Marchetti raised a question in his talk Tuesday night saying "How can an agency such as the CIA start wars and get us out of wars?" He was referring to an earlier statement he made saying the CIA almost got the U.S. involved in a war in Cuba and then got us out of it. According to Marchetti the CIA was the agency involved in the U.S. in the Vietnam conflict.

Marchetti said "The CIA does more harm than good. The clandestine affairs branch is a real clandestine weapon."

U.S. still at war but without guns

American power in international relations is waning relative to other military and economic alliances, military analyst Samuel P. Huntington told symposium viewers Tuesday night.

Huntington expressed the view that the United States is still at war — with Vietnam, but on political and economic fronts.

"Diplomacy is more important now than during the Cold War, due to the decline of American power in the world. We now must live by our diplomatic wits, and we are fortunate to have a wit conducting our foreign policy," Huntington said.

Diplomatic efforts are needed to combat the economic and political threats from Asia and Third World Powers. "An Arab oil embargo is as disruptive to the American economy as Soviet submarines blowing up all of our tankers," he said. But, unlike submarines, initiators of economic warfare are hard to identify, Huntington said.

He outlined four problems facing the military today: the size of the military budget, strategic weapons limitations, the role of general purpose forces, and relationships of the military to society.

Huntington's view of what constitutes a military outback is a unique one. "If inflation is at 12 per cent, maybe the military should only expand at a rate of 9 or 10 per cent," he said.

Huntington favors maintaining troops in Europe as a diplomatic measure. But, he said, mainland Asia is no place for American forces because these troops tie us down to a specific type of military policy.

"Defense is on the defensive," he said. He then summarized his beliefs in a single sentence: "We can be certain that there will be another war, and we must be prepared."

Election petitions

Nomination petitions for ASUI offices will be available next Monday, according to Bev Henderson, ASUI secretary.

The petitions can be picked up in the ASUI office and must be filled out and returned by Feb. 17, according to Henderson.

The general election will be Feb. 26 and 27.

Vandals lose heartbreaker to WSU

By RICHARD FAYLOR

In many respects the Vandals' basketball encounter with

WSU Tuesday night was reminiscent of Idaho's football loss to WSU this fall, 10--7,

when Idaho outdistanced and outplayed the highly favored

Cougars. Both games were heartbreakers.

The key match-up of the game was WSU's 6' foot 111/2 inches 265 pound Steve

Puldokas, the PAC -- 6's

leading scorer (24.1) and second leading rebounder.

Idaho's 6' foot 6 inch 210 pound forward — Rick Nelson. Nelson held Puldokas to eight points below his average. Until Nelson

fouled out with 9:21 left

Puldokas had only nine points.

(He ended with 16)

Idaho's fly — casting guard,

Steve West, swooshed in a game leading 25 points and snatched seven rebounds and

Roger Davis rose to the occasion for one of his best games of the year. Reserve C -- F Chris

Price continued his vert inspired play as did Rodney Johnson while Erv Brown fought foul trouble, yet scored 14 points and six rebounds.

The game began with Idaho casting, WSU waiting, and the score 12 — 10. Idaho with 12-15 left in the first half. Then Idaho broke down for the only time in the game. WSU brought the ball down quicker and ratted off 11 straight points to make it 21 —

12 with 7:28 left. Idaho pulled back and the half ended 20 —

24 WSU.

Idaho opened the second half quickly and in a minute and a half the WSU lead was cut to one. A three point play by Harris at 14:17 stretched a new Idaho lead to 46 — 42. WSU's superb

wingman — Edgar Jeffries —

however, kept WSU rolling.

Six ties were to follow in the next eight minutes but at 7:34

Idaho gained its biggest lead of the game -- 6 points, 58 — 52 culminated by a tremendous

Harris drive around Puldokas. A

WSU time out was called and a press began. More importantly, however, was the loss of Nelson at 9:21. Price's fouling out at 7:45, and Erv Brown's at 2:22.

This crippled Idaho's defensive rebounding capabilities, and

WSU quickly began pummeling

the boards for fives — fives and second shots which they had not been able to do earlier.

The big play came with 1:15 left. The referees were good — natured enough to ignore Ron

Davis' bumping Harris for a steal at midcourt but the whistle was blown on Harris in immediate pursuit and the would-be Vandall stilt for the upset went up in smoke.

Idaho had the more oppor-

ahead by one?Harris stepped to the line with a one and one gift from fouling Cougar Edgar Jeffries. Harris missed the charity shot but Rodney Johnson recovered the rebound. The pass went back to Harris for a 6 foot hook and again, Henry missed.

Jeffries, fouled by Johnson, then connected on both ends of the one and one. In frantic pursuit Idaho could only foul, this time by Weist (his fifth).

Giovacchini sank both. The game was unbelievably over as

WSU added a cherry at two seconds for a 76 — 70 victory.

U of I coach Jarvis could not venture far from the obvious in his remarks: "The kids are as hungry as I am."

But WSU coach George

Raveling, who likes to think of his club as PAC -- 8 winners and a cut above a 5th place Big Sky club, had a little face to save. Anyone could hold

Puldokas down if they sagged and let the wingmen shoot he said. Raveling called Harris and Weist two of the best shooters

he's seen on the West Coast and credited Jarvis as doing the best coaching job on the West Coast.

The brand of ball the Vandals are playing now is spirited and something to be proud of. Hopefully U of I students will lend a bigger helping hand this

Friday and Saturday nights

when Idaho faces Montana

State and Montana.
Idaho to host Montana teams in Big Sky test

Two eastern Big Sky rivals will invade Memorial Gym this weekend to tangle with the Vandals. Tonight the Vandals play host to the Montana State Bobcats, who hold a similar record to Idaho's. Both squads are 1-3 in Big Sky competition and Montana State is 5-8 overall for the season; while Idaho is 7-5.

Idaho will try to snap its seven game losing streak, fighting to keep from that not so coveted league cellar. Six of Idaho's seven wins have come in Memorial Gym which could be the added incentive to produce two key victories for the silver and gold this weekend.

The Bobcats, like Idaho, are under the direction of a new coach this season. MSU new coach, Rich Justroz, boasts Craig Buehler a 6-6 veteran at forward and two other standouts, Rusty Smith and Randy Rucker. The Bobcat center will probably be 6-11 Bruce Smith.

Saturday night the Montana Grizzlies will trek to Moscow after playing Gonzaga Friday night. Montana, which leads the Big Sky with a 4-1-1 record and a tough 11-5 overall record will be a hard team to conquer.

The Grizzlies ripped Montana State 70-57 last Saturday, controlling the boards and tips all the way. Montana Coach Jud Heathcote credits center Ken McKenzie for many of the Grizzly wins this season.

Heathcote says, "Idaho is always tough at home and I expect the Vandals to try and regain the momentum they had earlier in the season." He was referring to the time Idaho had a 7-3 record.

Idaho has been targeted down by an extreme overdose of penalties so far this season. They have played a much higher caliber of ball than their record indicates. Six of their last seven games have been on the road before unfriendly crowds.

Coach Jarvis has brought the squad a long way this season, but they fail to get the credit they deserve. Don't be surprised if he poms knock off both Montana teams this weekend. If you saw the game at WSU Tuesday night, you know the Vandals certainly have it in them.

Tip off time for both tilts this weekend will be 8 p.m. at Memorial Gym.

Regional games set at SUB

Come one, come all, and see the one and only Association of College Unions - International Region 14 Games Tournament being held at the University of Idaho February 6 to 8. Registration is scheduled for 8 a.m. until noon at the SUB.

Members of region 14, which includes Idaho, Montana, Washington, Oregon, Alaska, British Columbia, Saskatchewan, Alberta and Japan, will be participating in various games and events established region champions. The winners of them go to their national tournaments being held in various areas around the United States.

The games include: bowling, billiards, table tennis, chess, bridge and foosball. "We expect participants from 30 to 36 schools. I would estimate physical attendance to be approximately 700 people," said Pete Rogalski, SUB manager. According to Rogalski the regional games were last held in Moscow in 1971. Idaho has always been a strong contender in bridge, bowling and chess. It would be nice if the students would turn out and support our participants," he said. "It would also be a chance for an exchange of ideas between our students and the visiting teams in the tournament," Rogalski concluded.

Swim meet tonight

Returning from three on the road meets, the U of I men's swim team will host Eastern Washington State tonight at 7 p.m. Tomorrow night the Montana Bobcats will come to town to battle the U of I swimmers.

Swimmers

Under the direction of coach Charles Hall, the 74-75 squad has completed three meets in Washington and will now host three home contests:

Standouts on the Idaho roster are senior Bruce Stratton of Moscow and Rick Woodman from Inglewood, California. Stratton has set six records at the U of I and Woodman has also had his name entered in the record book. Both men are returnees this year.

The Varsity swim meet home schedule is: Friday, Jan. 31, Eastern Washington here at 7:00 p.m. (a good meet); Saturday, Feb. 1, Montana here, 1:00 p.m.; Saturday, Feb. 8, Central Washington State here at 2:00 p.m.

Groovin' Hard

Jazz festival to rock SUB

Jazz is on the upswing, especially in colleges where it is being revitalized, says Cecil V. Gold, UI of music instructor, explaining the seventh annual jazz festival held today and Saturday at the SUB.

The competition will include some 56 high school and junior high instrumental and vocal jazz ensembles from Idaho, Washington, and Montana. This is nine more than last year.

Choir competition will be held January 31 from 8 p.m. to 9:40 p.m. instrumental competition will be held Saturday in the SUB featuring finalists performing in the 9 p.m. concert with the UI of Jazz Ensemble I under Gold's direction.

The UI Jazz group will perform "Groovin' Hard" and "Celebrations", both arranged for the Buddy Rich band; "One for Otis" arranged for the Maynard Ferguson band; "A Step Beyond" arranged for the Stant Koment band; and "Is there anything still there?" arranged by Stan Kenton, band leader.

Both evening concerts will be shown live on KUID-TV. Gold mentioned that last year these programs were taped and distributed through Idaho and Washington.

The two days of competition are open to the public without charge while tickets for each of the concerts are $2 per person. Judges for the competition include:

-Dick Beecher, educator in Montpelier, Idaho, who has done great writing for music on TV programs, such as "Gunsmoke", "Manix" and "Barney Jones", as well as arrangements for Stant Koment.

-Waldo King, organizer of most of the first high school jazz bands in the Northwest, also director of jazz choirs and bands at Roosevelt High School in Seattle.

-Dr. John Carrico, director and founder of the Reno International Jazz Festival, the world's largest festival of that type.

-John Moosaw, director of jazz ensembles at Central Washington State College.

-Dr. Lynn Skinner, UI assistant professor of music.

Gold noted that Thursday the SUB would be teaming with jazz and related students. The contests will have an exact schedule of activities plus workshops and classes as well as competition. These participants will be housed by relatives, university housing, or may just commute, added Gold.

Bergman's "Persona" features Liv Ullmann

One of the truly great artists of the cinema is Ingmar Bergman. Since 1945 he has directed 32 feature films, with a rare insight that has made him popular all over the world.

His reputation was established in the mid-fifties with such classic films as "The Seventh Seal," "Wild Strawberries," and "The Magician." In 1967 Bergman made a film that summed up most of his views — "Persona." On Monday the Film Society will present this outstanding motion picture — the first in the society's series of 14 movies. "Persona" is the story of Elizabeth (Liv Ullmann), a stage actress who suffers a nervous breakdown and loses the ability to speak. Elizabeth comes to rely on her nurse — companion Astrid (Bibi Andersson) for moral sustenance, a need which becomes almost physical.

The National Society of Film Critics has given "Persona" its best picture, best actress, and best director awards. The University Film Institute has also awarded it with best picture and best actress awards.

The movie will be shown in the SUB at 7 p.m. and 9:15 p.m. It is in Swedish with English subtitles, and will be accompanied by a Little Rascals short. Admission will be 75 cents per person or season ticket. Season tickets will be on sale at the SUB information desk until Feb. 27.
Class recording rehashed

"In this era of Watergate taping someone without their permission is abhorrent," Pat Murphy said at Tuesday's faculty Council meeting.

Murphy is the English instructor who stared the recent controversy by not allowing a student to tape his lecture. During the meeting he gave his reasons for not allowing taping of classroom lectures. They included recording in a seminar could be distracting, learning is an active not a passive activity, the property rights of the instructor, taping is non-traditional and the policy is unfair to students who cannot afford recorders.

The drawn out discussion brought out various other points. Bert Cross, a member of the Communications department said "I would argue the right of the council, the Regents or even the state legislature to act on this matter as it is a violation of the right to common law copyright, which every teacher has." David Warnick, student representative, whose proposal to permit the taping of lectures was not accepted by the council, asked if taking notes verbatim by shorthand should not be included in the policy.

Morten Soder, Geography department, replied that "poorly construed notes could damage an instructor's reputation more than verbatim notes taken by a recorder." The council finally voted to retain the the interim policy and make it permanent. The handbook will read "A student may tape a lecture only with the instructor's permission."

The council has not reached formal discussion of the proposed elimination of faculty/staff discounts at the bookstore. However, they have received one letter in reference to the matter. The proposal was condensed in a letter signed by all the members of the Home Economics department. The letter stated the proposal "places an unnecessary penalty on faculty who use this privilege to enhance their professional libraries."

The matter of student evaluations has been referred to the evaluations committee. The evaluations committee is not under the council, but must keep the Campus Affairs committee informed of their actions. The Campus Affairs committee is under the council and has the largest student representation of any council committee.

In other action the council referred the financial exigency matter to an ad-hoc committee headed by Barbara Meldrum, council member and English instructor.
