GOOD STUDENTS MORE SUCCESSFUL

Dean Elbridge Points Out Where It Pays to Be a Good Student.

The student who ranks high in his college work is the one who is most likely to succeed in later life. Such is the belief of Dean J. E. Edridge. There is a popular delusion that scholastic distinction has no relation to success or failure in later life. As a matter of fact there is a direct relation. Scholarship is a test, not the only test, but still a test of the students efficiency. Studying is his business while in college, and he who fails in the task assigned him is not likely to overcome the harder problems of the workaday world.

"The graduates of the university of Idaho have not yet attained sufficient dignity of years nor of numbers to afford any conclusive information on this point, but they are all agreed in remunerative employment and it is to be supposed that & good percentage of them will win distinction. Statistics compiled elsewhere, however, show that the man who takes a high rank in college in many times more likely to achieve substantial success in after life than the man who has a poor record as a student.

"Who's Who in America, although it makes some errors of omission and commission, is still the best available criterion of success. In thirteen Harvard classes containing 2259 graduates, there were 29 high honors men, or 1.3%, living in 1911. Out of this very small group no less than 27 had attained sufficient success to be mentioned in Who's Who. Out of 2123 men in twenty Yale classes there were 80 living high-honor men; 31 of whom appear in Who's Who. In twenty Pribation classes numbering 1687 graduates there were 76 high-honor men living, 29 of whom win mention. Many of the high-honor men had not reached in 1911 the average age of the men named in Who's Who, so that when these are excluded the proportion represented is a trifle. This is a wonderful high proportion, considering the thousands of other graduates who have not achieved sufficient professional prominence to be included in the list of the country's successful men, and when it is remembered that nearly sixty per cent of the men mentioned are college graduates.

OREGON AGAIN DEFEATS IDAHO

Oregon Luck Too Much for Idaho's Crippled Team—Place Kick Only Score Made.

The Idaho football team, encouraged by a few faint echoes echoing from the pandemonium beyond the race track, fought a desperate battle against the superior Oregon team last Saturday. The game that looked like Idaho's best chance in years to win, but first game too Oregon brought only a handful of students and created less excitement than a practice game would deserve. Yet five times Idaho crippled team fought the Oregon bunch to a standstill, and only lost by a narrow margin of 3-0.

If the Idaho line had not been shaken up by a hospital list, including Phllis, McCormick, Boulton and Leesb; if the battered Idaho backfield could not count for much in any line annihilation after the all had been carried to the Oregon twenty yard line, if the team had had the support of a loyal student body to keep on the fighting spirit with which it boasts each; if there had not been too many hands engaged in receiving the forward pass which Perkins carried over the goal line, in fact if a dozen things peculiar to the time had not happened, we would never have been celebrating our first victory over Oregon.

At the same time Oregon's team is not to be spoken of lightly. From all reports the team made wonderful improvement in its two previous college games this year. Coach Pinkham seems to have a correct line on his players now and should make a better showing than in the Whittier and W.B.C. games. Oregon's interference is good, her backs run well, her broken field, and in Fenton the team has a good kicker.

The game Saturday was probably the clearest conference game which will be played in the North. The second game was won by Oregon, although the Oregon team out weighed Idaho by eight pounds to the man, the weight seemed to be of no advantage against the Idaho line. The first game was won by Oregon, even, the second was easily Oregon's while Idaho excelled in the third. Luck was about even and played a large part.

Idaho was penalized twice for a total of twenty yards, and Oregon was penalized once for five."

FIRST QUARTER

Idaho kicked off to Oregon's 10 yard line. The ball was returned ten yards, Oregon tried Idaho's line a couple of times and then lost the ball or a forward pass. Idaho broke through Oregon's line several times. Brown going 5 yards, Knutson 8 and E Perkins made seven yards around the left side. For a few moments it seemed as though Idaho would march straight over the line but Oregon's defense strengthened and the ball was lost on downs within seventeen yards of the goal line. Idaho had Oregon safely for two downs when Cornell called off a run of 24 yards on a fake punt formation Oregon could gain but little through Idaho's line, but end runs by Cornell and Fenton carried the ball to Idaho's 35 yard line before it was again recovered by Idaho. Idaho tried the line a couple of times without gains and after a finished forward pass was restored to a punt. Kininson punted forty yards. The punt was recovered by Idaho.

Idaho again banked the line, the line gaining three yards but the next play gained nothing. Idaho tried a forward pass which was fumbled in the air by several times and gained by E. Perkins who carried it over the line. The referee decided that the pass was incomplete and the ball was returned to the thirty yard line from which Burns tried a drop kick, which fell just outside of the goal post.

Oregon put the ball in play at the twenty yard line and was still in possession when the quarter ended.

SECOND QUARTER

In the second quarter Oregon carried the ball to Idaho's 19 yard line by end runs and line smashes. From this point Walker tried a place kick which fell short and was received by E. Perkins on the 5 yard line, who returned it 15 yards. Kininson punted to the center of the field, Oregon carried the ball again to the 25 yard line with a good assortment of end runs line breaks and fake plays. Kininson on this run for Yard scored the only points made in the (Continued on page 5.)

TO HONOR THE FOOTBALL TEAM

Informal Dance to be Given Friday Night by Greater Idaho Club.

In honor of the Idaho football team, and to show the appreciation of the university and citizens of Moscow in the splendid showing of the team under unexpected adverse conditions, the Moscowites have designated Friday, November 8, as "Greater Idaho” day. Fitting ceremonies will be observed by the students at the university including a grand rally. A banner has been carried by the students through the state and in Moscow in particular that the Idaho team should know all the state applauses their splendid showing this year under the unexpected trying conditions which developed after the team was on its way to northern championship.

The citizens of this city will combine with the students in the "Greater Idaho” dance and reception given at Eggen’s hall Friday night.

"Building literary geniuses are urged Annett, the editor of the Quill, the University’s literary magazine. "As yet we have not enough material on hand for the December issue. We are especially in need of one or two good short stories, and, of course, informal essays and bits of verse are always gratefully received.

The annual election of officers is scheduled for November 13, 1912. The following individuals have been nominated:

President—Ralph E. Fenton, 13, editor of the Quill, the University’s literary magazine.

Vice-President—Ralph E. Fenton, 13, editor of the Quill, the University’s literary magazine.

Secretary—Ralph E. Fenton, 13, editor of the Quill, the University’s literary magazine.

Treasurer—Ralph E. Fenton, 13, editor of the Quill, the University’s literary magazine.

The annual election will be held during the meeting of the association to be held Tuesday, November 5.

On Tuesday evening the Associated Miners held their first meeting of the year at the Zeta Delta House. The following were in attendance and the following men elected: Hallid Foester, 13, president Charles Annette, 13, vice-president Walter Scott, 14, 20, extensive superintendent John Smith, 14, art's superintendent

Merton Bresnower, 15, business manager

Bert Smith, 13, junior shift boss

Fred Theiss, 13, superintendent boss

Ray McKee, 16, business boss

Mr. Bresnower is the new business manager, and Mr. McKee is the new business boss.

There was no regular program as arranged, but Prof. McCaffery gave a short talk on the location of mining properties. The association voted to have a banquet before the holidays.
BORAH PRIZE DEBATE.

Sixth Annual Contest Won by Lucas, McAdams, and Barton.

Six years ago Senator William E. Borah established an annual debate fund of fifty dollars. The money is expended each year for books and materials that bear upon the questions of the inter-collegiate debates. Each year the names of Senator Borah and the names of the three men who win the first three places in a trial debate are supposed to be placed in the books purchased with the fund of that year. The word "supposed" is used advisedly, because an investigation will reveal the fact that in only a very few of the Borah books have the names of Senator Borah been placed; while in not a single book has the name of a single student who has won a place on a Borah team been placed.

And only the Borah books have been neglected, for the many books purchased with the Victor Price fund and by the debate committee are in the same condition.

But to continue with the contest. The debate was one of the best yet held. There were thirteen contestants. First there was won by Parker Lucas of Rosebery; second place was won by Harry McAdams of Corral; while third place went to Homer Barton of Mullan.

The first two were sophomores; the last is a freshman. Very significant is the fact that not a single fraternity man took part in the contest; nor was a single member of a fraternity present to hear the contest.

The subjects debated in the Borah contests thus far are as follows:

1907—Employers' Liability for Industrial Accidents.
1909—Federal Incorporation for Interstate Commerce Corporation.
1911—The Settlement of Industrial Disputes.
1912—Incorporation of Labor Unions.

The students who thus far have won places on the Borah teams are:

1907—Ira Tweedy, John A. Roden, and Guy Holman.
1908—Ira Tweedy, Jewett D. Mathews and Robert O. Jones.
1909—Ranson Mackie, Paul M. Cleasman and John A. Rock.
1911—Ira Tweedy, Paul Darrington, and Ralph Foster.
1912—John McEvers, Parker V. Lucas and Ralph Foster.
1913—Homer Barton, Harry McAdams and Parker V. Lucas.

It will be seen that one name that of Ira Tweedy, '11, appears on three Borah teams. Of the present Borah debates it is possible, only for Homer Barton to surpass records that he has made a Borah team in his freshman year. Should he make a Borah team in one of the following college years he will have gone Tweedy one better.

The Borah books are most valuable and welcome. The debate committee wishes to take this opportunity of publicly thanking the senator for his aid. Thus far the University has bought only an exceedingly small number of books in the field of economics. No other college in the entire Pacific Northwest has spent so little for books in that field as Idaho. Yet most of the inter-collegiate debate questions deal with economic problems. The Borah price is indeed a sine of need.

McAdams Wins Ridtenuhgh Debate Prize.

The try-out debate for the teams which will represent Idaho against Pacific university in the final debate, was held last Saturday. That of the successful candidates: Parker Lucas, first; Harry McAdams, second; Homer Barton, third; and Paul Ostrout, fourth. Louns won the Ridtenauhgh prize last year and as there is a custom that no man shall win the prize twice, the reward will go to McAdams as he is the next highest man.

The question debated was: Resolved, That Labor Unions Should be Incorporated. The final debate will probably be held about the time of the beginning of college after the holidays.

Sophomore Class Meeting.

The sophomores held a class meeting last week for the purpose of arranging the details of the Sophomore Frolic. The date was finally set for Nov. 15th. It appeared later that there was some conflict between the date chosen and a date contemplated for a debate to be given by the Greater Idaho Club. The latter asked that the sophomores postpone the frolic until a later date. It was not decided at that time as to what would be done in regard to the matter, but probably another meeting of the class will be necessary before any definite conclusion can be reached.

Dorm Party.

The girls of Ridgeland Hall tended their annual Halloween party last Friday evening. About fifty invitation were sent out. The guests were met in front of the building by a specification dressed in white with a wand and directed to enter via the black door. The after parties were on hand to point out the pitch dark way by winding stairs, over boxes, barrels and other obstacles, through a tunnel, which looked like a dry-goods box, on hands and knees at the tender mercy of a good plying what seemed like a firehose.

The gentlemen found their partners for the evening in a novel manner. A wish standing before the fire place pulled a card out of a pot of sand with a huge fork and presented it to each gentleman in turn. On this card was the picture of the said partner. To find the partner was no easy task. With fifty girls masked nearly all, it was not easy matter to get all the gentle men fitted out. After this difficulty was solved, everyone repaired to the dining room where a vocal duel was rendered by Miss Waters and Miss Casey, followed by a reading by Miss Carter. The remainder of the evening was spent in dancing. After the second dance, about ten o'clock, the girls unmasked.

A delightful lunch was served at midnight, and at one o'clock the party broke up.

Reception to Practical Age.

Dean and Mrs. W. L. Carlyle tendered a reception to the School of Practical Agriculture and Home Science on the evening of October 31st. After the second dance, about ten o'clock, the girls unmasked.

A delightful lunch was served at midnight, and at one o'clock the party broke up.

More Barb Sentiment.

But some people, when they have nothing to say, are prone to say something. This article is inspired by the above mentioned idea. We agree there should be better conduct in school, but the ways of the world are too open. After having the conversation with the professor over the said hump-up, the best thing you can do is to take the needle and gently paste it in your memory book.

Now that the chilly winds of winter are again blowing over our ears, and sleet and snow are slipping down our necks as of yore, when we plowed through the winds three times a day from this temple of learning, the thought of a man's dormitory rises before us. What a pleasure it would be to eat and sleep beneath the same roof! What a joy not to wrestle each morning with a stubborn, empty stove! What a load off the mind of the student to know that there would be no repugnantランドly to dodge at the end of every month, to know that the sacred rite of eating could be continued, whether somebody was sick or not! And why not a man's dinner! It is surely more essential than many other buildings now asked for. Such a building is absolutely required for the growth of the school, and the men should demand it of right of the next legislature. There is no reason why we should be exposed to the inconveniences and even discomforts that many of us labor under at present.

STUDENT AFFAIRS

AT ASSEMBLY.

A piano solo was given by Prof. Maguire and the little band of orchest,"...istenors expressed its spirit by...ering him back for a second selection.

The address was given by Prof. Corbet on "Electrical and Other Engineering." Mr. Corbet took up the first stages of modern inventive genius and traced its development down to the present time. He traced the development of the work of the engineers and the origin of the "Civil Engineering."...

Mr. Corbet showed that today there were over twenty-seven distinct classes of engineers, the most important of which are civil, electrical, mining, and mechanical. He discussed the close relations between these and others, in that every one practically depended on some one or more of the others for the carrying out of its work.

The professor certainly crossed the general idea of the present tendency in education when he stated that the educated man of today was not educated in any one line, but that he possessed a good understanding of many lines of similar work.

After the address of Prof. Corbet, yell leader, "Ted" Watts, made a speech on the lack of spirit being shown toward the coming contest with Oregon University. But there were no measures taken to start anything.

Dean Edridge likewise made a speech on the lack of assembly attendance and get-together spirit. The Dean seemed to be unable to understand the cause of the lack of a common spirit and seemed to be in favor of more rigid assembly attendance rules. It might be well for a few more to turn out once in a while and save having to turn out all the time.

Football Rally.

A hurry up rally for the Oregon game was brought about on Friday evening of last week by a few of the alumni who have certainly got the spirit that others lack. The rally was not large, mainly because of the short time in which it was gotten up.

There had been a lot of talk about there being no spirit before, but no one had really tried to see whether there was any life in the student body or not. The spirit shown at the rally will not go down in history for its grand display, but it was surely better than none at all. Speeches were given by Heck Edmundson, Cliff Edmundson, Geo Larson and President MacLean.

"The Home of Better Shoes"

After it Voices Roared.

In last week's Argonaut there appeared an article in regard to the present condition and position of non-fraternity men in the University of Idaho.

Now I believe that the basic idea in regard to a Bar organization is good. It is certainly true that Bars who desire the company of the co-eds have not the same opportunity of meeting them socially that fraternity men have. But the opportunity is all that is lacking. I will do the co-eds the justice to say that if they had this opportunity of meeting the Bars socially that they would do so without reference to their affiliations. This to my mind should be the purpose of such an organization.

The writer seems to consider that the majority of Bars are ashamed of their position, which in his estimation is "humble and lowly." He says that the fraternity men are more fortunate than he is and that he doesn't blame them for the superior way in which they act "because they are doing the very thing that we would do if we had the chance." He says that "we are lucky to have what we have" from our so-called superiors and inculcates that most of us are only swatting the opportunity "to slip in at the half opened door of some fraternity." He takes Uriah Heep attitude in regard to the whole matter and evidently considers that college life is a failure unless the student belongs to a Greek Letter Society.

Now I, as a Barb, don't wish to be considered as subscribing to the above doctrine in any particular. My lot is neither lowly nor humble, nor do I consider any body my superior on account of his or her affiliations. I grates on my nerves to even think of getting up an organization as a sop to injured feeling, where a Barb must go because of his alleged humble position or because his so-called superiors will not recognize him.

A move founded on such a basis as this seems very foolish to me, and if carried out will only serve to create a breach in the student body which does not exist today. None except a very few in the school consider the Bars as the writer of the previous article considers them, and speaking for a large percentage of the non-fraternity men, I wish to say that we object to being placed in such a category. We are all students of the University of Idaho and if the organization spoken of ever is formed, I sincerely hope that it will not be considered as an expression of a humility which does not exist (except in a few cases) but rather let it take its place among college organizations with the dignity that it deserves and with the respect and cooperation of the whole school.

OREGON DEFEATS IDAHO

game by a beautiful place kick. Idaho again chose the kick off. Burns squibbed the ball far over the goal line. Oregon put the ball in play at the 20 yard line and with repeated end runs and backs and with a heavy tackle Oregon took the ball to Idaho's ten yard line where time was called. In this quarter Parsons, who had been playing a brilliant game breaking interference at end was injured and had to be replaced by Shipkey.

SECOND HALF

Idaho again kicked off and forced Oregon to punt. Idaho's backfield carried the ball within striking distance of the Oregon goal and again a touch down for Idaho seemed possible. It was at this point that the fact of a multitude of roosters was most keenly felt by Idaho. The value of roosters when the team is trying to encourage the coaches of the coaches was demonstrated in a negative way.

The game developed into a kicking duel between Fenton and Kinnison with honors about evenly divided. Kinnison got away with one kick of sixty yards which was the longest punt of the day.

A few minutes before the end of the game Brown was replaced by Freer. Brown had gone into the game in poor shape, yet had been in every play. Both at hitting the line and breaking up Oregon's plays, he was one of the stars of the game. When taken out of the game he was scarcely able to walk. His playing for this game marks him as one of the great Idaho football heroes.

In the last quarter Phillips, who for the whole game, with a lame ankle, had been backing Oregon's 235 pound right tackle, was removed and replaced by Buffington. McCormick and Favers also suffered repeated injuries, but on account of lack of capable substitutes had to be kept in the game until the end. In the backfield Kinnison and Burns showed up well on offense and R. Perkins repeatedly proved himself to be a reliable safety on defense. Shipkey, who replaced Brown got into the play like a veteran and broke up many a good play for the webfooters as did also Freer on the other end of the line. Captain Perkins kept up the fighting spirit in the men and did much to overcome the lack of enthusiasm to rooting. Before many a crit. oil play his call to the men was the only encouragement for the team to be heard on the field.

For Oregon the stars were Cornwell, the 137 pound quarter, Walkup and Fenton. Cornwell is one of the most promising quaters in the conference this season. He handles the team well, and is one of the hardest runners to stop on the team. Although playing at half, Fenton occupied most of the game behind the line, or at end, being used in all of Oregon's kick and forward pass plays.

The line up was:

Idaho Oregon
Freer E. C. Phillips
Phillips E. R.
F'avore L. Q. R.
McLean 0. Perkins
Gurnald P. H. Perkins
McCorrnmick R. C. L. Fenton
Kinnison B. T. L. Grant
Burns R. E. L. Gull
R. Perkins Q. Cornell
Fenton
Brown R. H. B.
Walker
Knudson F. Cook

Substitutions—Shipkey for Parsons, Buffington for Phillips, Phillips for Buffington, Samms for Freer, Freer for Brown. Oregon made no substitutions.

Referees—Varnell, umpire, Hook, end; headlinemen, Bender; timers, Edmundson and Herbert Wester.

Explanation

Many students seem to be laboring under a misapprehension regarding the identity of certain men who were seen in the Y. M. C. A. boarding club house during the football game Saturday. Some of the roosters and spectators evidently thought they were members of the Y. M. C. A. and proceeded to roast them at such. But, as a matter of fact, they were all Short Course Agricultural students; and furthermore, none were members of the Y. M. C. A. In fact, a member of the cabinet tried to make them see that their interest in the game would appear to much better advantage if they were noticed on the sidelines as loyal Idaho students. Evidently, however, they had not breathed our atmosphere long enough to get the true Idaho spirit.

Steps will be taken to prevent any such use of the Y. M. C. A. property in the future. Any blame therefore for their act, should be charged to them as individuals, and not be laid at the door of the Y. M. C. A., which disapproves—not to speak more harshly—as strongly as any one, of any such lack of the real Idaho spirit.

Which leads us to add that it is too time for all of us, whatever little soul we are among its members, to forget our petty differences on relatively unimportant matters and remember that we are all students of one great university and that our common interests are therefore fundamental. Let us all unite on the common ground of loyal devotion to our loved Alma Mater and the noble cause she represents.

— R. T. OSBORNE, '13

The making of the yardage of cloth that goes into our "Yungfelo" suits may not be so difficult but the results are certainly fascinating. The color effect in the fall and winter suits are combinations of rich shades that are unusually pleasing.
