Biographer tells life story of book

Tim Helmke

Town Editor

Fifteen years after starting his book, Rod Gramer has seen his dream become a reality. Gramer, a 1975 UI graduate, recently co-wrote Fighting the Odds: The Life of Senator Frank Church with Larkly Ashby. The book was released April 6 in a celebration in Boise.

Gramer was on the UI campus Friday to talk to students about writing the book and about Sen. Church. He gave his history on how the book came to be and some of the ups and downs of writing such a book.

For Gramer, the work on the Church biography began in January 1979 while he was a political reporter for the Idaho Statesman. He had personally interviewed Church for a story the previous fall and was inspired to write a book. Since nobody up to that point had ever written anything of great length on Church, Gramer decided to write a full-length book.

"I was fascinated with this man who was involved in so many different aspects of the public and political areas," said Gramer on why he chose to write a biography on Church.

In the fall of 1988, after a forum of three men working on individual books on Church, Gramer and Ashby decided to combine their efforts into one release. Gramer said this was a wise decision for him and the book.

"We decided we could produce a better book together than we ever could separately," said Gramer.

Gramer had the experience as a journalist and Ashby as an historian. Together they could compile information on Church and make the job a little easier. Gramer said he had the advantage of actually talking to Church personally as well as other people involved in Church's life who were no longer alive in 1988.

"Larkly never met Church but had done a great deal of legwork on finding out about him for his book," said Gramer.

Gramer said he and Ashby either were in correspondence with or personally visited each of the presidential libraries Church served under in his over-quarter of a century of service. Gramer said he visited the Kennedy and Eisenhower libraries and was in contact with the Johnston library.

"Getting to meet several current and past representatives, senators, cabinet members and staff members was one perk to writing the book, said Gramer. He also had the opportunity to travel to such places as New York City, Boston and Washington, D.C., while doing his research.

"Traveling around, I got to see how Church was viewed differently in different areas of the country," said Gramer.

Church was viewed as a liberal senator in Idaho but that was not the case for those who knew him back east, said Gramer. Described as a very principled man, Church was a legislator who was always looking to please both sides. Gramer said many criticized him for jumping to compromise too quickly.

Gramer said the biggest surprise about Church that he found was how complex of a man Church was. "There was absolutely no major national or international issue Church was not involved in in his days," said Gramer.

"This was also the most difficult part of writing the book," said Gramer. With all that Church was involved in, Gramer said he and Ashby felt it was all important but they had to try to include as much as they could.

One element of Church that surprised the two authors was that unlike most politicians, Church had no ethical blemishes on his record. Said Gramer Church was the type of person most people want to see holding political positions.

"There is no hypocrisy in this man, what you saw was what you got," said Gramer.

Beta Theta Pi regains charter

Mike Cole
Staff Writer

Beta Theta Pi has been officially reinstated by its alumni board and the Beta Theta Pi National Chapter. The Betas met with their Alumni Board this weekend and found the board had already drawn up the papers to have their charter renewed. Although chapters are recognized by their national chapter, they are still not officially recognized by the Interfraternity Council or UI.

The Beta's charter was revoked at the end of August last semester because of alcohol policy violations. The fraternity was required to complete 300 hours of community service and pay $300 in fines. There were also various stipulations the chapter was required to meet in order to regain recognition from their national chapter, IFC and UI.

With the completion of 375 hours of community service and the payment of the fine, the Betas met with their alumni board to petition for recognition. The board agreed to recommend the return of the charter. One member of the board is also on the National Board and therefore had the power to make the reinstatement official. The Betas are again an official fraternity in the national forum but not as yet on the UI campus.

In order for the Betas to be recognized on campus they must petition the IFC and UI. The Betas are now in the process of going through the steps necessary for the return of official recognition on campus. "We are finalizing a report to petition IFC and UI for reinstatement" stated Jason Wolfe, president of the Beta's.

Hal Godwin, Vice President of Student Affairs, was unable to comment on whether or not the Betas will be recognized until the petition for recognition is submitted and reviewed. "From what I have seen, they are allowed to have the charter."

Payroll Office reminds students of summer

The UI Payroll Office reminds people to make arrangements for their final paycheck of the semester before they leave for the summer.

If a student has direct deposit, they need to remember to leave their account open to receive their final paycheck on May 20 or June 3. These students need to leave a self-addressed, stamped envelope with their department so they can mail their final pay receipt to them. Direct deposit remains in effect until a student stops it. Students are reminded to update their banking information if any changes are made.

If a student receives a regular paycheck, they need to take a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the Payroll Office in Administration Annex Room 208. They need to write their social security number on the inside flap of the envelope. If a student is leaving campus permanently, they need to stop by the Payroll Office to pick up a forwarding address card. W-2 forms will be mailed using these cards. For more information on any of these arrangements, call the Payroll Office at 885-6333.

The dictionary has at least three definitions for "value." So do we.

Giving people more value for their money has made Macintosh the best-selling personal computer on campus and across the country for the last two years and that trend is likely to continue. Because there are Macintosh and PowerBook models available within your budget. Meaning you get it all. Power. Quality. And affordability. It's that simple. So, if that sounds like value to you, visit your Apple Campus Retailer today. And leave your dictionary at home.

Dean candidates to visit

Two finalists for the deanship of the UI College of Forestry, Wildlife and Range Sciences will visit the Moscow campus and Boise for interviews in mid-May, said UI Provost Thomas O. Bell.

Dr. Richard P. Fiebiger, professor and head of the Department of Forest Science and Director of the Institute for Renewable Natural Resources at Texas A&M University, will visit May 9 and 10 with wife, Norma. Dennis C. LeMaster, professor and head of the Department of Forestry and Natural Resources at Purdue University will visit May 11 and 12.

Fiebiger currently heads the Forest Science Department and is director of the Institute for Renewable Natural Resources at Texas A&M University, positions he has held since 1980. He spent the summer of 1990 as coordinator for a Managed Tropical Ecosystems Course at the Organization for Tropical Studies at San Jose, Costa Rica, where he previously served as coordinator for agroforestry course.

Fiebiger earned his bachelor's degree in forestry from University of Illinois in 1964, his master's in forest soils at Cornell University in 1967 and his Ph.D. in forest soils with plant physiology and biochemistry. His doctoral minors were from Cornell in 1968.

Fiebiger has written numerous scholarly articles and is a member of a variety of professional organizations. Currently, he serves on the National Association of State University and Land Grant Colleges Commission on Food, Environment and Renewable Resources Legislative Committee. He also serves as chairperson of the Environmental Monitoring and Assessment Program Review Committee of the National Academy of Sciences and the National Research Council.

LeMaster has served as professor and head of the Department of Forestry and Natural Resources at Purdue University since 1988. From 1980 to 1988, he was chairperson of the Department of Forestry and Range Sciences. Before that, he was the new department of Natural Resource Sciences— at Washington State University. He was an associate professor in that department from 1978 to 1980.

In 1977 and 1978, LeMaster served as a staff consultant to the United States House of Representatives' Committee on Agriculture. Prior to that, he spent three years as director of resource policy for the Society of American Foresters in Washington, D.C.

He has written numerous scholarly articles on forest and ecosystem management and belongs to a variety of professional organizations.

LeMaster earned his bachelor's degree in economics in 1961, his master's in economics in 1970 and his Ph.D. in economics in 1974, all at Washington State University.

Current UI FWR Dean John Hendex announced last spring he will step down in fall of 1994 to become the full-time director of the UI Wilderness Research Center. The 25th anniversary recognition and re-dedication of that center is scheduled for the week of Sept. 16.

Provost Bell said he hopes to have a new dean on board by this summer.

Student Loan Repayment Workshops will be presented for all students, especially those who will be serving in the military or ROTC.

This presentation is designed to help take the mystery out of repayment requirements, clarify the process and hopefully remove some loan repayment stress. Please plan to attend one of the scheduled sessions.

Each workshop will provide the names and addresses of their expected employer, if they have one, and their repayment plan.

Each session will begin at 2:30 p.m. in the Student Financial Services Building.

ROTC camp attendees chosen

This summer's 15 Reserve Officer Training Corps cadets from the UI participate in an intensive military training exercise at Fort Lewis, Wash.

The Army ROTC Advanced Camp, conducted by the U.S. Army Fort Lewis, will run from June 10 to Aug. 7. Approximately 2,500 cadets from more than 150 Army ROTC programs at colleges and universities in 24 states and the District of Columbia will participate in this year.

"ROTC advanced camp is the single most important event in the cadet's academic experience," said Lieutenant Colonel Lloyd Scott, professor of Military Science.

"The camp puts into focus the training cadets receive on campuses in the Army ROTC program." Cadets arrive at camp in groups and conduct their training on the first cycle that includes physical and mental stress, physical fitness training, instruction on general military subjects, weapons training and basic and advanced tactical training. The program culminates in a field training exercise called "Adventure Training." Advanced camp also provides cadets with numerous opportunities for personal and leadership development.

Following are the UI cadets who will attend Army ROTC Advanced Camp this summer. Donna Baird, Mark Barlow, Aaron McCall, Susan Dinsfield, James Godfrey, Eric Marcellus, Michael Moffitt, Jennifer Motch, Mark Pugh, Kurt Swanson, Jeffrey Van Cleave, Eric VandeWeg, Tanya Vettone and Jean Wawrzynski.

Army ROTC is the nation's primary source of commissioned officers. Last year more than 4,200 officers were commissioned through the programs. This year it is estimated that 3,800 officers will receive commissions.

Mules hit Bishop Trail

Four young mules, products of UI equine research, and their sire and dam will travel to Bishop, Calif., for Bishop Mule Days May 25-29.

Three of the youngsters are from embryo transplants and the other was carried by the dam of world champion racing mule Jeff McGee. All are Jeff's full siblings.

Gordon Woods, director of the Northwest Equine Research Laboratory, said that by removing the mule embryos at a very early stage of development, that can be transplanted to surrogate mares, leaving the desired dam free to breed again. The result, four healthy mule babies born within 45 days of each other last year. Woods said Anne Lichtenwalner, DVM, a member of his research team, was key to the success of the embryo transplant program.

This year, the young mules and their parents will be on display during Bishop Mule Days. The exhibit has won the 25th Anniversary Grand Entry. NERL has won the Grand Marshall Award, which has previously gone to such notables as former United States President Ronald Reagan, current California Governor Pete Wilson and Olympian and Legislator Bob Mathias.

Don Jacklin, a Post Falls mule race trainer, has been active in the mule embryo transplant work and was instrumental in arranging for the mules to be a part of Bishop Mule Days.

The four siblings will compete against each other in the 1996 Bishop-Budweiser three-year-old race Futurity. The "Super Bowl" of three-year-old mules will be a first-of-a-kind race and may help shed light on performance questions related to size differential of genetically similar, same age animals in a competitive performance event.

Woods, Jacklin, Gary McGraw, a North Idaho mule breeder, Dave Tester, a North Idaho veterinarian, and Jim Weber, a member of NERL and spring DVM degree candidate, all plan to attend Bishop Mule Days this year. Jacklin is the chair of the advisory board for the research facility and Tester is a board member.

Group accepting help for local residents

Alternatives to Violence of the Palouse is a private, nonprofit agency serving victims of domestic violence and/or sexual assault on Latah and Whitman counties. ATVP is currently accepting donations of items for use in their emergency shelter and public office. In addition, they are working with many families who have recently left their shelter and need items to set up their new homes. So, if you are leaving town for the summer or are off to bigger and better things after graduation, consider donating your unneeded items to ATVP. Give them last year's summer clothes. Do not throw away those pots and pans. Do not throw these extra chairs off your balcony.

ATVP has a display and collection box at SeaFirst Bank in Pullman for items. If anyone wishes, they may drop off their items at the office at W. 106 Main in Pullman or call 332-6553.

A partial list of needed items includes: clothes, TV, dishes, filling cabinets, linens, food, VCR, housewares and office supplies.

Convocation programs now available to all

Copies of the 1994 Honors Convocation program are available at the Honors Center in the Psychology Building Room 102. These are available to anyone who was unable to attend the convocation or would like additional copies.

Dietitians to hold annual conference sessions

Professional dietitians from throughout Idaho will consider some urgent health care topics during their annual meeting at the UI tomorrow through Friday. Health care reform, diabetes, hunger, sports nutrition, nutrition trends, cancer and nutrition, feeding young children and food safety and nutrition along with a variety of other topics related to the profession are on the program for the three-day meeting.

Program presenters include professional dietitians from a variety of agencies and companies. Local experts are: Terry Shultz from Washington State University, Laurel Braaten from UI, Nancy Kure from Gritman Medical Center, Katie Gabel from UI and Margaret Beals from Gritman Medical Center.

A pre-conference workshop covers development of personal marketing plans, personal and career strategies and identification of strengths and assets for achievement of personal career goals.

All sessions will be held at the University Inn. More information is available from Mimi Pengilly at 882-1120 or Colleen Phillips at 885-4511, extension 340.

Golf Scramble chooses Wishing Star Foundation

The proceeds from this weekend's first annual Argonaunt Hot 104 KHTF-FM Golf Scramble at the UI Golf Course went to the Wishing Star Foundation.

The proceeds will go to the local chapter of the national charity. The over 36 spots in the scramble filled up just a few days and the proceeds are expected to exceed $1000.

Program coordinator applications available

There is an open Program Coordinator position in the Residence Hall Association Office. Applications are available in the RHA Office of Wallace Compler and are due Friday at 5 p.m. For more information, call Brian Radford at 885-8818.

GTE phone system packets due Friday

Each UI department should have received a packet of information from GTE detailing what phone services the department has requested after the Aug. 5 cut-off. After a careful review of the materials, the packets must be returned with a department signature to Carrie Holman in Computer Services. Deadline for returning the material is Friday. It is important to indicate whether a department is purchasing new phones under Fiscal Year 1993 or Fiscal Year 1994 and under which budget number. All outgoing line charges also need to identify with a budget number. If a department has not received a packet or if there are any questions, call Holman at 885-9721.

People are to blame.
Evidently, Administrative.

One tree is blooming. My notebook is shabby and dotted with gum. My friends and I are about to graduate. My mind is mad. After four years of college, I will pack up my Honda Accord and head east with my journalism degree in hand.
In my four years of working at the Argusone, I thought I'd seen it all—until several minutes ago. I had to write a small note made out from under the managing editor's desk. Now it got itself into ideas, but now I have seen it all.
After returning to Ohio, I shall put this degree to good use and apply at the local nuclear power plant sweeping floors and begin my year off before I go to law school. After this column, I will turn the terminal off for the last time, a move that is bound to make at least a few people happy.
But I have one more left. I thought long and hard about what to write about. I thought about doing the classic last column in which I give all my mentors and friends at emotional thanks. But everyone knows those columns don't work.
Instead, I will use these last few inches to make some predictions. As I gaze into my crystal ball, I see some very interesting things:

Prediction 1: Bill Clinton will be re-elected president.
Uhh, or so I think. A lot can happen between now and then. Whitecotton could turn Bill and Hillary if something shocking comes up in the investigation. Clinton could be found in bed with a prostitute, perhaps Al Gore. But if things keep the way things are going, he will win, even against a powerhouse like Bob Dole. With the economy on the upswing and Clinton's law of taking government to the people, I predict we'll be able to kick it off. Here's to hoping.

Prediction 2: The Clinton Crime Bill will fail utterly, as the debate sounds good on paper but will do virtually nothing in each crime. Building prisons and putting more efficient on the street won't do a thing about getting at the cause of crime. Dan Quayle and other conservatives will be right when they blame increasing crime on the breakdown of the family. Building prisons and mandatory sentences may help a little, but not much.

White crime is gross, noisy. Americans are punish victims they are actually safer than they have been. Crime is down in most areas. This crime bill is a neat way for the Democrats to kill the long-held Republican charge that Democrats are soft on crime. This thing won't work.

Prediction 3: Americans will become increasingly conservative.
I don't mean they will necessarily start eating people like Pfc. Shoemaker, but I think people are tired of problems with welfare, the border, and so forth. This means Americans are going to have little like for rehabilitation criminals, allowing more Mexican immigration or harsher sentences for death penalty. I also think we will see a lower wall of separation between church and state.

Administration not on even with faculty, students
My friend from California says to me where you are or what your doing, a governement is in control. According to her, the best way to cope with the university government is to follow the rules and deal with it.
I believe that opinion is relative to the situation.
My friend also said that in California, students get a lot more and get a lot less than students at UI, so I have no reason to complain about what I have.
All of this means that students used to pay a lot less and get more.

We must be paying the professors more.

It was the UI government. I'm not talking about the ASUI government, but the faculty.

That this relates to the administration.

Just like every other government in the world, UI is putting most of the money at the top. There is nothing wrong with putting money at the top so long as the people they step on—the people whose money they spend—don't have to suffer. That is where UI administrators are going wrong.

They are not forgetting who they are selling the bills around here (the students), they are also forgetting who is doing the grunt work (the faculty).

Without students, where would UI be?
Moreover, even if we had students, without faculty, there would be no UI.

Students and faculty should feel sorry for administrators.
Administrators have forgotten that without students and a decent faculty they would be a bunch of ned-heads, trying to move and not do anything. University is more than a bunch of numbers neatly stacked on the gun wrappers in dusty old file cabinets.

Students and faculty are the reason UI is returning from the campus and UI is still alive.

difficult for them to realize students are naming around campus.
Administrators forget that universities need students.

Most importantly, they forget that they need faculty. That is why it makes little sense when the university cuts program budgets and faculty salaries. Why don't they realize what they are doing?

University faculty members are not just, students, they are the profession for big bucks; actually, they are in the profession to provide the best education possible.

This education is hindered by overcrowded classrooms and small budgets. With the exception of a few low-end-exiting faculty members, UI students receive a darn good education—despite the hazards the faculty must cope with.

Some obstacles are too unreasonable for even the most dedicated to overcome. University administrators and professors can make getting an education even more difficult.
Vote Fox for superintendent

Dr. Anne C. Fox, a Post Falls, Idaho, resident, entered the race for the State Superintendent of Public Instruction for the State of Idaho over three months ago. The reasons Dr. Fox, a Republican, entered this political race are:

1. Extreme concern that our students are not receiving the same quality of education as past generation students, yet the costs have continued to go up.
2. Problem of crime and violence in our schools — the seeming lack of discipline.
3. Concerns about the unquestionable funding among school districts.
4. Lack of ability to transfer core courses between the universities affiliating within our state.
5. Her desire to bring a conservative voice to the board.

Dr. Fox is qualified to address the above situations and assume the duties of office because she has had over 20 years experience as a classroom teacher, principal, superintendent and university professor.

In addition to her educational positions, she has been an author, researcher, grant writer, founder of the Children’s Village, a mother and a substitute teacher to over 100 abandoned and abused children.

Some of Dr. Fox’s beliefs are:

- less government; eating spending; responsibility; creative planning; diagnosing problems; listening to taxpayers and creating taxpayer-based solutions. She is also well known for being a highly innovative educator and has received over 20 boners and awards for her outstanding service and volunteer time to her community.
- Dr. Fox is a well-rounded educator because of her broad-based business experiences and ability for developing sound budgets.
- The future of our educational system in Idaho is virtually dependent upon the outcome of this election.
- It is up to you, the voters, to determine whether you want a positive change in the direction education seems to be going to today. If you really want a change, a positive change, vote for the most highly qualified and competent Republican candidate — Dr. Anne C. Fox at the ballot box May 24 and November 8.

Fees have always risen

The following is a historical overview of UI fee increases. The responsibility for these fee increases fall upon the Idaho State Board of Education or their past counterparts. They represent a legacy or gift to past, present and future UI students.

Fees at UI from 1952 to 1993 (fee increases followed by percentage increase):
- Resident fees
  - 1952: 1.140 per semester
  - 1993: 2,500 per semester

Nonresident law tuition and fees $2,164 per semester
- Nonresident graduate tuition 2,157 per semester
- Miami students 1952-1995: 1,969 per semester

Fees have increased by 479 percent.

*After the recent State Board active nonresident tuition raises 3,533 percent (1995-1996).

The above does not include the history of special fees at UI. Additional Law school fees, for example, did not exist before 1972. Graduate fees for graduate students did not exist until 1974. UI now has over 250 state registration fees (two fees for the price of one fee). Over one hundred courses and labs have special fees ranging from $3-$125.

These do not include the labyrinth of application fees, student fees, parking fees and other such fees one expects to find at a university.

Funding by the Idaho Legislature over this period of time has increased. Since 1953 the trend line for the real (inflation adjusted) per student salary at UI has risen.

There is no apriori rationale for raising fees above the Idaho inflation rate.

What does the future hold? I per the UI Board, we shall soon see increases in resident fees.

Stopping future fee increases will require cooperation and leadership from UI students, faculty, administrators, staff and the community of Moscow.

Responsible gun use needed

We need your help. Neither of us owns a gun, but we think guns can be owned responsibly and we’ve written what we believe is a unique two-page proposal that, if implemented, would dramatically reduce the number of gun-related deaths and injuries.

Responsible Gun Ownership

Guns are designed to make killing and destruction easy. Can a person throw a piece of metal weighing a fraction of an ounce — a bullet — through another person? No! Put a bullet in a gun and killing becomes easy. Killing with a gun is so easy that children are killing children. 13,377 people in our country were murdered by firearms in 1992. Children, brothers, sisters, mothers, fathers, friends, relatives, neighbors are all dead. It could have been you.

To stop this killing, we must act individually and collectively. As a nation, we must fully utilize the concept of a militia.

The Second Amendment of the Constitution says, “A well-regulated militia, being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear arms, shall not be infringed.” Congress can establish a well-regulated militia and establish categories of gun ownership and use.

Members of the militia (18 and over) who are either police officers or military personnel, and who own and shoot guns for professional or competitive use, can be considered.

For acceptance into the militia, citizens must meet a set of criteria to be developed by Congress. One criterion that must be included: Training in the use firearms will be mandatory for militia members. Types of training will be correlated with the number of firearms possessed. Citizens qualify for a gun and spring propellant guns are to be considered firearms.

Five categories of firearms possession will be established:

- 1/2) Firearms manufacturers, importers and dealers. 2/2) Military, police, and national security. 3/2) Museums. 4/2) Private collectors. 5/2) Recreational users.

Category 1 will include all types of firearms. Category 2 will include all types of military, police, and national security firearms. Category 3 will individually be classified for specific kinds of firearms. Category 4 will be limited to non-military recreational firearms, not to exceed two in quantity. Category 5 will be limited to personal firearms, not to exceed two in quantity.

All firearms must be registered in a nationally maintained system that all the citizens possess. The federal registration agency will list for improper use and liable for all penalties for improper use. The loss or theft of firearms must be immediately reported to the federal registration agency if liability for improper use is to be diminished.

Firearm possession of a firearm will be a felony and a guilty person will be punished by an immediate jail term of not less than 6 months and not less than a $1,000 fine. Full implementation is to be accomplished by Jan., 1990.

contractual salary would be decreased by $3,000. The administration has spoken.

Olsen revitalized the Art 101 course from a series of dull slides into a course that included a hands-on approach for students. Critics of Olsen say she takes the course too seriously. After all, it’s just a stupid core class and the material can never be applied to real life. It’s not like I’m an act major or anything. Wrong. For those who were willing to listen, she helped to provide the well-rounded liberal arts education we are all here for.

Instead of laying down for the administrative railroad, Olsen decided to leave. The faculty has spoken. Olsen won one for every faculty member who ever wanted to stand up to the administration. Unfortunately, it still left the students out in the cold. The administration should keep their employees happy so the employers of the future will learn good business.

The administration should take this act more seriously. If everyone goes to be as fed up as Olsen, this university would be a mess.

Maybe next time the administration will spend more money on students and faculty. There is a lesson here somewhere.

The Summer That Never Was

Kait Lynn Holstein
Editor-in-Chief

Most students dream of spending long hours in the warm sun during their summer vacation. Few dream of spending two months traversing icefields, being disconnected to family and friends and traveling from one place to another be cross-country skiing only.

Since 1960 about 900 students have done just this every summer. They spend thousands in tuition and equipment to take part in the UI Glaciological and Arctic Sciences Institute expeditionary and field science training program on the Juneau Icefield in Alaska. Here they study the fifth largest icefield in North America and its deglaciated peripheral area.

Students and staff with a disciplinary interest in geology, geography, glaciology, ecology, geophysics, hydrology, meteorology, atmospheric sciences, botany, lichenology and surveying make up the regular group of applicants for the expedition. Academic interest isn’t the only requirement, because of the intense daily physical demands due to living in the area of study, some experience in rugged outdoor living and cross-country skiing is required.

The program begins July 1 and continues until August 24. During this time participants study the Mendenhall and Taku glaciers. These two glaciers offer a unique study environment. They are temperate, or “warm,” glaciers because their internal temperatures are at or close to the freezing temperature. This allows them to flow faster than polar, or “cold,” glaciers. Like a river or stream, the fastest flow rate of the glacier is at the center and the surface.

The Mendenhall Glacier flows about two feet per day. This means the ice at the terminus, or front, of the glacier is never older than 80 years. The Taku Glacier is receiving more ice than it is losing by melting. While the Mendenhall Glacier recesses, the Taku advances, toppling trees in its wake.

At these glaciers students record and interpret a multitude of measurements using a multitude of scientific fields. Students are learning, through first hand information and experience to unravel mysteries which have eluded science until recently.

Remember Mom? In the midst of dead and finals week it might be kinda hard to remember her, but this is the time of year people spend big bucks on their mom.

IT'S MOTHER'S DAY!

While your mother may not be here in Moscow, remembering her might be a good idea — especially if you want her to do your laundry when she gets home. If it is as simple as a card saying "Thank Mom" or even a note to say "Hi, I'll be home in a week with laundry to do? Anybody wants.

Remember she is Mom and still loved you after you stuck out in the middle of the night to "study at the library.

Another option is flowers. All three of the florists here in Moscow are PTZ carriers and can get a bouquet or arrangement to her on problem.

An average cost of a small arrangement is about $20.

If Mom happens to be here in Moscow for one reason or another the University has a beautiful Mother's Day brunch in the Convention Center from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. The cost is $12.95 for adults and $6.95. No reservations will be taken, however.

According to Hallmark Mother's Day begins in 1914. Mother's Day is becoming a day to not only honor mother, but any influential women.

In response, Hallmark has started creating cards for women other than mothers. They have included "other mother," "aunt" and other mentor women.

Hallmark has many gifts and lasting memorabilia for any of the special women in your life.

If nothing else, call your mother. This is just a gentle reminder to remember your mother in the middle of the end of semester rush.

Tristan Trotter

"It's a woman's struggle to justify her own life with the life she sees in this poor country and it's her struggle to fight off a paralyzing despair." This is how Theresa Baker, a graduate student in the theatre department, describes The Fever, by Wallace Shawn. This dark, emotional drama in the one-woman show Baker has undertaken as her master's exit project, will run Saturday and Sunday in the Collette Theatre.

The Fever, in Shawn's original, uncut form, is a 3-hour monologue focusing on one woman's eye-witness account of the atrocities she observes during her stay in a poor country invaded by a ruthless, authoritarian, power-driven political force. Detailing her encounters with various characters who populate this world, she attempts to convey some of the horrific images surrounding her. At the same time she tries to discover the means within herself to act against that horror.

Baker edited the show, drawing bits and pieces from what she felt were the key sections of it, until she had a 45-minute product that maintained the show's original focus, but with fewer scenes and details. "I first read it two years ago and fell in love with the language and the images," she says. "I was drawn to the conflict and the issues it involved, it's about finding the strength to take action. This woman's life has been politicized out of the whole.

Vacation different in Japan

This semester is almost over. We have about two weeks until the start of summer vacation. Since I won't take summer school, I have a three and half month-long vacation. A vacation without any assignments or homework.

Summer vacation is little bit different for students in Japan. They, of course, enjoy summer. They go to the beach and mountains, visit their relatives, spend some time with their grandparents, and so on, just like most of people do here.

While students in the United States enjoy summer without worry about homework or school, Japanese students' summer vacations are often filled with homework and assignments. Their vacation is also shorter than ours, because they have a vacation only more than a month.

From grade school to high school, I always had a lot of homework during summers. The assignments were various; there were Math, English (for the junior high and high school students), literature, science assignments, and more. Even during winter vacations, there was some homework.

It sounds awful, doesn't it? Students still look forward to summer vacation; at least they don't have to go to school. You can do your homework wherever you want or whenever you want as long as you finish before school starts. If you have too much fun doing things other than homework, you will have a miserable time right before the summer vacation is over.

The difference in vacations demonstrates the different school systems in the United States and Japan. Here, the academic year starts in August or September — after summer vacation. Most of the time students do not have any homework during vacations. The Japanese use a quarter system. Summer vacation is in April after the first quarter. There are two other breaks: a two-week winter break after the second quarter and a two-week spring break after third quarter.

Like some U.S. schools, Japanese students study the same subjects for a whole year.

The biggest difference is that high school is not required or free for Japanese students. They have to take an entrance exam to even get to high school. Even though high school is optional, most students attend and then go on to college.

I think this is another reason why Japanese students have so much homework during summer.

Anyway, summer vacation is coming. I will enjoy mine without any homework.

Floyd returns

Melissa Welsh
Staff Writer

David Gilmour lays his soul on the line for the first time since Pink Floyd's last album "Delicate Sound of Thunder," released in 1988. The Division Bell is a self-penned work of art, similar to his last album and especially A Momentary Lapse of Reason. This disc is the perfect accompaniment to a night of studying, reading or just plain relaxing.

The Division Bell starts off very slow, almost too slow, with a thoughtful instrumental piece. This is interrupted by a bluesy drum beat and slick guitar riff. Gilmour's voice seems to melt from the music into what becomes a cry into the crowd of new eager listeners. This track, "What Do You Want From Me," is sure to be a favorite because of its swaying beat and desperate sound. The haunting sound of the ever-familiar background vocals are almost hypnotizing.

After Thunder, it was rumored Pink Floyd would not make another album until the Berlin Wall was torn down; this is mentioned in the fifth track, "A Great Day for Freedom." The foreboding lyrics begin by rejoining the first, "we raised a cry for freedom had arrived." Later in the song, however, it almost sounds like Gilmour is unsure about the greatness of the crumbling wall. It seems like he is acroy the two countries opened up and became one.

Most of the songs on The Division Bell contain the soulful sadness and anguish common to Pink Floyd's later albums. Several tracks use the power of guitar to bring this message across while others focus more on vocals, harmony and sound effects.

I was sorry to see that Roger Waters had not returned to Pink Floyd for the production of this album. He was a great asset to the group, but I also believe that the rest of the members; David Gilmour, Richard Wright, and Nick Mason pull together to make an outstanding album.
"There is a lot to be learned while you're at school," Clercx commented. Clercx especially enjoys the chance to work with other groups on campus and in the community.

Vicki Reich works for UI Construction Maintenance and has assumed the role of conditions assessment specialist for this project. She trains volunteers to work on documenting problems and deterioration of outdoor sculptures to prevent similar problems in the future. With the help of volunteers, Reich sends these documents to the Idaho Commission of the Arts, where they are evaluated.

Clercx said, "Bringing someone like Vicki into the program, who is trained to work with metal and sculpture is great for training volunteers." Clercx and Reich seem to complement each other's work skills and knowledge about the sculptures.

Currently, seven UI students are involved with Project S.O.S. These students closely examine the sculptures, learn about the history of the sculptures and generally gain a better understanding of the outdoor art in the community. "The sculptures reflect our culture," stated Clercx.

Examples of the sculptures being documented are the soldier in the front Administration Building lawn and the familiar "French-fry" pillar. The statue of the soldier is dedicated to two UI students who died during the Spanish-American War in 1898. This sculpture is partially hollow and water has seeped into cavities. The water causes damage to the exterior and interior of the statue. The biggest problem with any sculpture is vandalism. "These statues are vulnerable," Clercx said, "this behavior is inexcusable." He directed his comments towards the recent vandalism of the pillar sculpture on the Administration level. A group on campus etched their insignia onto the surface of the metal.

"Deterioration is an ongoing process that can be slowed down with proper maintenance," Clercx said. "Proper maintenance is the only way to sustain the beauty of the sculptures." Clercx and Reich agreed that a yearly maintenance on the sculptures was a necessity.

Project S.O.S. is sponsored by The Few Charitable Trust, The Getty Grant Program and the Henry Luce Foundation. For further information on how to become a volunteer call or write to S.O.S., Idaho Commission on the Arts, 304 West State St., Boise, ID 83702 or call 1-800-278-3862.

Campus battle ceases

With the coming of the close of the 1993-94 school year comes the ending of the Intramural Program sponsored by the Campus Recreation Department. Emerging is a champion, actually two — men's and women's. Along with the title comes bragging rights.

With the conclusion of the final two events that are to be tallied on the final point tally, the champions are known.

Winning the men's overall title is the Fraternity of Delta Sigma Phi beating out the next competitor by 103 points, the Sigma Nu fraternity. The Delta Sig's had an overall total of 1623 points.

On the women's side of the house, the Pi Beta Phi sorority pulled in second by being beat out by 108 points by Gamma Phi Beta. The Gamma Phi's had a total of 1240.

Both the overall winners will be awarded a plaque at the Intramural Champion Social to be held Thursday 3:30 p.m. as part of Intramurals come to a close on Wednesday after the final games of the Softball tournament. Winning the competitive division for the men was the Delta Sig's and for the women it was Back Again. Likewise Houston Hall and Sig Ho's won the recreation division.

Frisbee golf was held on April 23. The top male finisher was Brian Cox of Delta Chi playing for the Legends and Heroes. The top female finisher was Cassie Taylor, Gamma Phi Beta, with a score of 39. Cox finished with a score of 31.

Winning the team competition was the Fraternity of Alpha Kappa Lambda with a 99. Delta Sig's were close behind at 103, followed by Big Dicks at 104. The score was compiled by taking the best three of four score and adding them up.

Gamma Phi Beta pulled through for the women by defeating the Pi Phi's once again. The Gamma Phi's compiled a 148 while the Pi Phi's had 153. There was at tie for third place between Kappa Kappa Gamma and Hayes Hall.

Only two players were available to no score is available.

The Campus Recreation office has noticed that there are more people getting involved with the Intramural Program. The reason is unclear. Also showing more participation are the females on the campus. There are more teams each year. The ideal situation would be having a split of men's and women's teams at 50-50.

Everybody had a good time. Congratulations to all the winners," said Mike Barth, director of Intramurals.

A big congratulations and thank you must also be given to the those who helped make the program run smoothly, including Mike Barth and all those in the Campus Recreation office.

Tennis loses close matches

The men's tennis team came to a close over the weekend after dropping some close matches.

In their first match, Idaho fell to Montana State University 5-2. Nitesh Lal, playing at the No. 1 position, upset Steve Camac who defeated Mark Hadley earlier in the season. Lal and doubles partner Ryan Storin won their doubles match and Chris Daniel and Keith Bradbury just hold of what was almost a sure victory.

If Bradbury, who was playing with a sprained ankle, and Daniel would have won, Bradbury would have played through the single.

Idaho played the University of Montana where it was a one match difference as UM won 4-3.

Playing in the seventh place match, UI played Eastern Washington. Idaho played hard and came up with an entire victory, sweeping EWU 7-0.

Boise State University held on to the title as they walked through the championship match over Northern Arizona winning 7-0. This is the second time in two years BSU has won the title.

BSU Coach Greg Patton has only been with the program for only two years and has brought incredible success. In all of their matches over the weekend BSU dropped only one match — to Idaho State's Mike Castelli at the No. 1 seed.

ULLMAN, Wash. — In Saturday’s WSU/UW/UI Dual Meet, the teams found themselves in the middle of the always-heated rivalry between the two interstate schools as both the men and women were出了 both schools. The men finished behind WSU, 127-25, and UW, 131-27. The women were outscored 81-55 against WSU and 107-39 against UW.

Paul Thompson again lead the way for the men as he finished first in the 400-meter hurdles.

In the 5,000 meters, Jason Ulhman went 14:59.13 to finish second. Other second place finishers were Scott McCarty in the discus, 155-0, and Ty Kocielmann in the 800 meters, 1:55.10.

The women’s events showed the always strong performance of Tonya Yean. In the long jump, the senior leaped for 18-8 1/2 while in the triple jump, she finished with 40-4 1/4.

Angie Mathison also placed first in her event, the 3,000 meters, with a time of 9:53.71. The 4 x 100-meter relay team of Amy Wise, Tracy Hanegan, Heidi Bodwell and Kerri Fife finished first in the event.

Angie Smith had a time of 57.46 in the 400 meters to finish the event in third, the same order that Tara Cebula had in the 400-meter hurdles, where she finished with 1:04.22.

Senior Pat McFadden practices for the high jump in practice on Monday. The team will have its only outdoor meet this Saturday.
