Student crosses ocean for ‘French’ kiss

Adam Gardels

College can cause many long-distance relationships, but one University of Idaho student overcomes that problem by flying to Holland just to kiss his girlfriend—on TV!

Love-struck UI French exchange student Laurent Mazeyrac was flown to Amsterdam, to surprise his sweetheart by the Dutch television show “All you need is love.” Mazeyrac entertained 3.5 million Dutch viewers by pointing to his girlfriend’s blind date in an elaborate prank set up by Holland’s popular talk host Robert Kalbeitzer.

Mazeyrac met his honey, Aafke Martin, in France two years ago. He came to UI last year, and the two have been writing to each other ever since.

The TV show learned about the lovers’ relationship which spans two continents and an ocean when Martin’s roommates told the show’s producers about the couple’s story.

“The show is about people who have problems in their love lives,” said Mazeyrac about the TV show’s interest in their long-distance relationship.

The TV show called Mazeyrac and demanded that he fly to Holland by the weekend.

“They asked me if I could come and surprise my girlfriend, and I said them it was impossible,” Mazeyrac said, who was worried about his school class load. He said his professors supported him but wanted him to finish some work before he left. “I didn’t have time for two trips,” said Mazeyrac, who slaved over his books and day in order to get to the show.

Tight-lipped Mazeyrac kept the surprise a secret.

“My girlfriend didn’t know about it. I didn’t even tell my parents,” he said. Many of his friends were unknown even to Mazeyrac. “I didn’t know where I was going,” he said.

Aafke, a popular talk show host Robert Kalbeitzer morning and asked all the Dutch passers about the show. “They took pictures of me,” said Mazeyrac referring to his fellow passers when found out that he was going on the show.

The pilot unfurled when he landed in Amsterdam on Friday morning. “There was a guy waiting for me—his name was Bob,” Mazeyrac said. After Mazeyrac changed his clothes so Martin wouldn’t recognize him, Bob drove him to the elegant Brasserie restaurant.

In the mean time, show host Robert and cameo crew were at Martin’s door and “asked her to go on a blind date,” Mazeyrac said.

Martin was driven to the Brasserie where she was to meet her “blind date,” while her boyfriend was supposed to be on another continent.

The TV show wasted no expense in trying to distract Martin from thinking about Mazeyrac or the TV cameras which surrounded her. They drove her around in an American-style yellow cab which repeatedly broke down and bellowed fake smoke from the engine. The dead cab driver ignored Martin’s plea to turn the cab around when he intentionally drove in the wrong direction.

Martin strolled into the restaurant ready to

UI student runs for county commissioner

Michelle Kahlehtzer

Uncan Palmatier, a University of Idaho undergraduate student, hopes to secure a seat on Latah County commissioner after elections Nov. 8th.

Palmatier was appointed to the position last June by the governor to replace Mark Solomon as county commissioner.

The most important duty of a county commissioner is setting the entire county’s budget.

If a person needs health care but cannot afford it, it is the county commissioner’s responsibility to appropriate the funds necessary to care for the person’s medical needs.

“One of the problems we have is so many students choose not to take the insurance,” Palmatier said. “What happens is they end up as four of my patients to pay for their medical bills, because of the short-term decision they make not to take the insurance.”

Two of the main issues being addressed by Palmatier and his opponent, Tom Spangler, in the upcoming elections are growth and taxes.

Palmatier recognizes the housing crisis in Latah County. He said “growth is the issue that got us here in this race. I want to bring strong and effective plans to Latah County to make sure this is a pleasant place to live twenty years from now.”

It is more difficult to find affordable housing while the property taxes are skyrocketing. “We need to make policies that give a break to those that can’t pay their taxes because of the spiraling costs,” Palmatier said.

Palmatier has a broad spectrum of public service. He has been a lawyer for the past ten years dealing mainly in public interest law. He worked in New York for one year in support of Catholic charities.

Palmatier spent another four years as a public defender in the Bronx. At that same time, he was an elected representative in United Auto Workers union.

He then moved to California and worked several years for a civil rights firm which specialized in sex- and age-discrimination suits and class actions.

Palmatier started classes at UI in January of 1993. He hopes to take the paten bar next summer to further his experience.

Palmatier says, “I hope students will vote. There is no excuse (not to vote), all you need is to proof that you have been in this county for thirty days.”

NCAA shoots down UI Pullman proposal

Joey Wellman

The interpretations Committee of the National Collegiate Athletic Association unanimously voted to reject the University of Idaho’s request to play home football games in Martin Stadium on Washington State University campus last Thursday’s decision poses a problem as the move to Division I-A requires playing in a 30,000-seat stadium.

Had Godwin, vice president of Student Affairs, said the university asked to play in Martin Stadium as a home field one year only. The NCAA denied the request only allowing occasional play.

“The change in plans means we have to stop and evaluate how we go about joining,” said Godwin, “and whether or not we join.”

UI has been anticipating moving from 1-AA to Big Sky Conference to 1-AA Big West in 1996.

UI has a number of options to consider in order to achieve 1-A status. “The college in order to become 1-A is to achieve paid attendance of 17,000 attendees in each of the upcoming, consecutive four years,” said UI President Elizabeth Zimmer. “We have 1200 student fans in those numbers, but if a person purchases six tickets and only he shows up the game, we still count six attendees.”

The Ebbie Dome seats less than 17,000 but minor modifications for seating have been discussed. “We haven’t committed to being 1-A,” said Zimmer. Concerns about attendance also involve a decline in student interest. “We are forming focus groups to represent students on and off campus to figure out what would be more attractive to motivate and encourage attend-
Bystander tackles gunman

Harry hit him high, in the back. I grabbed his legs as he went down. He kicked a tiny bit and stopped.

—Kenneth Davis

Gunman kills recycler of can of beer

Nicholas Riccardi

Los Angeles Times

HAIKOU, China—David Stewart's blue plastic shopping cart, the one he used to collect cans and bottles to recycle for cash, still sat in the neighborhood Sunday afternoon. On July 3, the gun- man, a 46-year-old Chinese national, shot Stewart after he refused to give up the recycler.

As of Sunday night, sheriff's deputy Brian Jones said, there were no suspects.

The gunman "was seen drinking the beer and calmly walking away," Jones reported.

When Stewart, 42, refused to give up the beer, his assailant shot him several times, witnesses told sheriff's deputies.

Then, the gunman "grabbed the beer and left... He walked away like it was nothing," said one eyewitness.

As of Sunday night, sheriff's deputy Brian Jones said, there were no suspects.

The gunman was seen drinking the beer and calmly walking away," Jones reported.

Witnesses told sheriff's deputies that when Stewart, 42, refused to give up the beer, his assailant shot him several times.

Then, the gunman "grabbed the beer and left... He walked away like it was nothing," said one eyewitness.

As of Sunday night, sheriff's deputy Brian Jones said, there were no suspects.

The gunman was seen drinking the beer and calmly walking away," Jones reported.

Witnesses told sheriff's deputies that when Stewart, 42, refused to give up the beer, his assailant shot him several times.

Then, the gunman "grabbed the beer and left... He walked away like it was nothing," said one eyewitness.

As of Sunday night, sheriff's deputy Brian Jones said, there were no suspects.

The gunman was seen drinking the beer and calmly walking away," Jones reported.

Witnesses told sheriff's deputies that when Stewart, 42, refused to give up the beer, his assailant shot him several times.

Then, the gunman "grabbed the beer and left... He walked away like it was nothing," said one eyewitness.

As of Sunday night, sheriff's deputy Brian Jones said, there were no suspects.

The gunman was seen drinking the beer and calmly walking away," Jones reported.

Witnesses told sheriff's deputies that when Stewart, 42, refused to give up the beer, his assailant shot him several times.

Then, the gunman "grabbed the beer and left... He walked away like it was nothing," said one eyewitness.

As of Sunday night, sheriff's deputy Brian Jones said, there were no suspects.

The gunman was seen drinking the beer and calmly walking away," Jones reported.

Witnesses told sheriff's deputies that when Stewart, 42, refused to give up the beer, his assailant shot him several times.

Then, the gunman "grabbed the beer and left... He walked away like it was nothing," said one eyewitness.

As of Sunday night, sheriff's deputy Brian Jones said, there were no suspects.

The gunman was seen drinking the beer and calmly walking away," Jones reported.

Witnesses told sheriff's deputies that when Stewart, 42, refused to give up the beer, his assailant shot him several times.

Then, the gunman "grabbed the beer and left... He walked away like it was nothing," said one eyewitness.

As of Sunday night, sheriff's deputy Brian Jones said, there were no suspects.

The gunman was seen drinking the beer and calmly walking away," Jones reported.

Witnesses told sheriff's deputies that when Stewart, 42, refused to give up the beer, his assailant shot him several times.

Then, the gunman "grabbed the beer and left... He walked away like it was nothing," said one eyewitness.

As of Sunday night, sheriff's deputy Brian Jones said, there were no suspects.

The gunman was seen drinking the beer and calmly walking away," Jones reported.

Witnesses told sheriff's deputies that when Stewart, 42, refused to give up the beer, his assailant shot him several times.

Then, the gunman "grabbed the beer and left... He walked away like it was nothing," said one eyewitness.

As of Sunday night, sheriff's deputy Brian Jones said, there were no suspects.

The gunman was seen drinking the beer and calmly walking away," Jones reported.

Witnesses told sheriff's deputies that when Stewart, 42, refused to give up the beer, his assailant shot him several times.

Then, the gunman "grabbed the beer and left... He walked away like it was nothing," said one eyewitness.

As of Sunday night, sheriff's deputy Brian Jones said, there were no suspects.

The gunman was seen drinking the beer and calmly walking away," Jones reported.

Witnesses told sheriff's deputies that when Stewart, 42, refused to give up the beer, his assailant shot him several times.

Then, the gunman "grabbed the beer and left... He walked away like it was nothing," said one eyewitness.

As of Sunday night, sheriff's deputy Brian Jones said, there were no suspects.

The gunman was seen drinking the beer and calmly walking away," Jones reported.

Witnesses told sheriff's deputies that when Stewart, 42, refused to give up the beer, his assailant shot him several times.

Then, the gunman "grabbed the beer and left... He walked away like it was nothing," said one eyewitness.

As of Sunday night, sheriff's deputy Brian Jones said, there were no suspects.

The gunman was seen drinking the beer and calmly walking away," Jones reported.

Witnesses told sheriff's deputies that when Stewart, 42, refused to give up the beer, his assailant shot him several times.

Then, the gunman "grabbed the beer and left... He walked away like it was nothing," said one eyewitness.

As of Sunday night, sheriff's deputy Brian Jones said, there were no suspects.

The gunman was seen drinking the beer and calmly walking away," Jones reported.

Witnesses told sheriff's deputies that when Stewart, 42, refused to give up the beer, his assailant shot him several times.

Then, the gunman "grabbed the beer and left... He walked away like it was nothing," said one eyewitness.
Walton seeks to gather support for Prop. One

Sam Woodbury

K elly Walton is a prominent leader of the Idaho Citizens’ Alliance. ICA is currently leading the fight to pass Proposition One. Walton was a vice-chairman of the Idaho Citizens’ Alliance. He is the office manager of his family construction business in Idaho Falls, married and has four children. Raised in north San Diego County, Walton returned to Idaho in 1975 and enrolled at the University of Idaho. While a student at the school, Walton was a member of the Delta Sigma Phi fraternity.

Argonaut: What exactly is the Idaho Citizens’ Alliance? Walton: We are a statewide conservative grassroots group designed to defend and promote true values, the values we feel that our founding fathers used. It has chapters in Idaho’s major counties and hopefully we will establish chapters in all of Idaho’s counties. Since we floated Proposition One, we have had 6,000 volunteers work for us in support of Proposition One.

Argonaut: Why do you feel that Idaho needs Proposition One? Walton: As I look around the community and the state, I see various evidences that demonstrate the need for it. Nationally, there are eight states that have added the phrase “sexual orientation” to their civil rights statutes. An adding that does not give homosexuality a new status as a minority group to various legal and perks that go along with it.

Everyone should be treated equally under the protection of the law. There is another member of a new emerging minority—whether it’s fly fishermen or hunters or homosexuals.
The constitution is more than adequate to protect the goal of one—and that includes homosexuals. We go out of our way to say we’re not picking on them, but we are preventing what appears to us as an agenda, a quest to change the status law, status law nationally and statewide as well.

Several specific incidents have occurred here in Idaho to demonstr-
Cooperative Ed announcements

University of Idaho Cooperative Education is offering the following this week: Orientation, today at 12:30 p.m., in Education 106; Westlinghouse Hospitality Center recruiting information session Thursday in UCC 307; Workshop—Finding Local Internships—Thursday at 7 p.m., in the Student Union Apaccoloa Room. Call 883-5822 for more information.

Graduate Ed Session held

Those considering graduate education are encouraged to attend a presentation at 3:30 in the Student Union Gold Room. Graduate education, information resources, application procedures and financing will be the topics of discussion.

Engineering colloquium offered

Dr. Sallie Gordon and Rick Gill will present a lecture titled "(Re)Designing Technology to Support Learning" at 3:30 p.m. in Room 26 of the Janssen Engineering Building.

Students rally for LaRocco

The University of Idaho Student Association for LaRocco will be holding a rally in support of First District Representative Larry LaRocco tomorrow at 2:15 p.m. in between the Library and the UCC. All students, faculty and staff are invited to attend to show support for LaRocco.

Foreign study funds available

The National Security Education Program is offering full funding for study and research in Latin America, Africa, Asia and the former Soviet Union. Application deadline is Dec. 1. Call 885-8984 for more information.

ID card issue postponed

Tim Taylor of the University of Idaho Vandal Card Office, wants this fall's returning students to know the new ID cards will not be available for issue until sometime next spring. Due to unforeseen circumstances, the new ID cards cannot be integrated into student systems until at least until the middle of next semester. Taylor says he will issue an announcement when the issue date firm up.

Readers to write works

The "Share Our Strength Writers' Harvest" will be held tomorrow at 8 p.m. in the Beamen. Admission is $3 and a can of food or $5 without. Readers include Ron McFarland, Ricardo Sanchez, Warren Heyman, Abby, Tim Waterman and more. Proceeds will go to benefit the YWCA of the Palouse. Call 883-3438 for more information.

Apologetics course open

"Can you defend your faith" is the title of a course being held Tuesdays from 4 - 5 p.m. The class focuses on defending your beliefs on a basis of logic and reason. Chris Schieft is leading the course at Redhawk Crossing on Sixth Street (across from Taco Time). Please call 882-6786 for more information. The class is open to anyone interested.

Enrichment Program offers courses

The University of Idaho Enrichment Program is offering the following courses: Basket Weaving Nov. 5 & 12, 9 a.m. - 12 noon (must be at Coop Energy Level Thursday, 7-9 p.m.; Discharge Prevention Nov. 10, 7-9 p.m.; Fats and Their Role in Your Health Nov. 17, 7-9 p.m.; and Creating the Body that is Right for You Dec. 1, 7-9 p.m. For more information or to register for any of these classes, call 885-6466.

NOW holding exchange

The Pallian chapter of the National Organization for Women is sponsoring a "feminist information exchange" Thursday in the Bundy Reading Room, Avery Hall on the Washington State University campus at 5 p.m. The goal of the meeting is to bring any information or goods which another feminist may purchase. Call 334-7759 for more information.

WWW subject of colloquium

A colloquium titled "An Intro to Multimedia Browsing on the Internet using MOSaic" will be given Friday at 4:30 p.m. in Room 26 of the Janssen Engineering Building. Don Story will present the lecture, focusing on the World Wide Web interface to the Internet, entitled "How to Surf the Net Without Cerebral Hemorrhaging".

English teacher workshop this Friday

Students interested in teaching English overseas should attend an information session presented by a representative of the Japan Exchange and Teaching Program. Friday at 10:30 a.m. in the Brink Hall Faculty Lounge. For more information, contact Career Services at 883-6511.

LWV sponsors forum

The Moscow League of Women Voters is sponsoring a forum featuring national, state and local candidates. The forum will be held at the Moscow High School auditorium tonight at 7-10. Contact Lorna Cheney 882-6758 for more information.

Midterm grades available

Midterm grades and Spring '95 Time Schedule are now available in the basement of the Administration Building Annex between the hours of 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Photo ID is required for release of midterm grade reports. The last day to withdraw from a course (does not cover the university) is this Friday. The fee is $5; grade of "W" recorded. Preregistration advising during semester begins Nov. 7. Please meet with your advisor.

Late trick-or-treat party

RedHawk Crossing (on Sixth Street across from Taco Time) is holding a party on Thursday, 7-11 p.m. for anyone that didn't have a chance to go trick-or-treating (for those with jobs). Come by any time for snacks, coffee, music, and fun. Call 882-6786 for more information.

Forum to be held Thursday

The Idaho Public Employees Association is sponsoring a 5th District legislative forum on Thursday at 7 p.m. in the Brink Hall Faculty Lounge. Incumbent candidates and candidates for two Idaho House of Representative seats and one Senate seat will be present to answer questions. Refreshments will be served and the public will have a chance to engage in informal conversation with the candidates before the forum at 6:30 p.m.

News Briefs

Party hosted by Democrats

The University of Idaho Democrats will be holding a tailgate party Saturday before the football game against Northern Iowa. The party to support Democratic candidates will begin at 11:30 a.m.

Outdoor Ed

Outdoor Ed offers a new course next month. "Survival Skills" is an outdoor course to learn survival techniques and skills in the wilderness. The course costs $10 for IDU students and $15 for non-students. Registration is ongoing, and the course is limited to 20 students. Contact LaRocco at 883-5822 or at the Department of Earth and Atmospheric Sciences at 885-6348.

In Memoriam

The family of Judge Joseph W. Graham is saddened to announce the death of Judge Graham, who passed away Friday, Nov. 11. Judge Graham was a former Justice of the State of Idaho Supreme Court and a member of the Idaho State Bar. He was a dedicated family man, a wonderful husband, father and teacher. Judge Graham will be deeply missed by his family, friends and colleagues. The family requests that memorials be made to the Idaho Prairie Health Services, 4526 North 21st St., Boise, Idaho 83702.
ANNOUNCING
THE DISCOVER® CARD
$25 NEW MEMBER
REBATE.

(Hurry, it won’t be here for long.)

Apply for the Discover® Card
by November 10.

Spend $75. Get $25 back.*

NO Annual Fee.

WHERE TO GO TO GET IT:
Idaho Union, 9am - 5pm, Monday thru Wednesday, October 31 – November 2
Orange Bowl has new home

College Press Service
MIAMI—Beginning in 1997, the Orange Bowl (the football game) will not be played in the Orange Bowl (the stadium).

The New Year's Day showdown has been held at the Orange Bowl in Miami for the past 61 years, but after a two-hour meeting this month, the Orange Bowl Committee voted by secret ballot to move its game to the four-year-old Joe Robbie Stadium, located a few miles north of the city.

OBC President Ed Williamson admitted he had mixed emotions when voting with the majority to move but said the decision was "forced by the change in college athletics."

Earlier this year, college officials formed the Bowl Alliance as a way to ensure a championship matchup on New Year's Day between the nation's top two ranked teams.

The Orange, Fiesta and Sugar bowls are given the championship rotation in the six-year agreement.

But the Orange Bowl's inclusion in the Bowl Alliance depended on this month's decision. Had the OCB voted to keep the game at the "Grand Old Dame of Forty Street," Bowl Alliance commissioners said they would have offered the championship game slot to the Gator Bowl in Jacksonville, Fla., which offered $15 million to $20 million more for the event.

Miami Mayor Steve Clark and City Manager Cesar Odio said that they doubted the Bowl Alliance would have abandoned the Orange Bowl if the committee decided to keep the game in Miami. They also indicated that the city would no longer support the Orange Bowl parade if the game moved.

"The soul of Miami has been sold down the river," Odio said, adding that the city may seek legal action against the OBC and the Bowl Alliance.

meet the stranger. "She passed by me," said Mazeyrac who had his back turned to her at the time.

She turned around and recognized her boyfriend sitting where her blind date was supposed to be. She screamed in excitement.

Mazeyrac said he then planted the transplanted smoker right on her lips—and front of the camera.

The couple sat down and tried to eat. "We couldn't eat anything because we were so nervous," he said. "This was a private moment with her boyfriend, turned to the cameras and asked, "Aren't you guys going to stop filming us?"

The married couple were interviewed the next day on the show "All You Need Is Love."

"The show is like a meat market—guys are on one side and girls are on the other side. The guys can pick the girls out using binoculars and then they go dancing," said Annette Asness, a 1-U student from the Netherlands.

"They sell romance and television it. It's a show for everybody," she said.

Later that evening, Marvin and Marvin watched the show on TV with the girls at her house, which he likened to a sorority.

NCAA

dance at games," said Godwin. "Presently, the attendance isn't very good."

"It is going to take a lot of marketing and student support to see this go through," said Zinzser.

According to Godwin, another option would be going into the Big West as a 1-AA institution. "We never found this to be an acceptable way as there may be disadvantages including recruiting and scheduling."

"We are much better off becoming 1-A," said Zinzser.

Godwin plans on consultation among faculty, students, alumni and boosters to air necessary comments and concerns. "We need to review the pros and cons of any prospective next move. Ultimately, it is the president's decision," he said.

SOMETHING SPECIAL

100th ANNIVERSARY
of Idaho Football

COME IN AND CHECK OUT
THE SWEATSHIRTS

Through Sat.
5th of November
Iowa Hawkeye Fans Take Aim at Cheerleaders

Alcohol and audience causing problems
Kathryn Phillips
Galena

IOWA CITY, Iowa—Flying raw chicken and beer bottles from the student section at Kinnick Stadium has forced University of Iowa cheerleaders to seek a safer place to perform.

There were no injuries during the Iowa-Michigan game, but the ongoing problem has caught the eye of those in charge of security at UI football games.

Alcohol is forbidden in the stadium, but evidence of its consumption has caused problems. Last season, projectiles caused two cheerleaders to be injured, said UI cheerleading coach Michele Anderson. Trainers treated both cheerleaders, and they didn’t require further medical attention.

“Last year, one of the girls was hit in the face with a can, and I was hit in the face with a broken bottle,” Anderson said. “Alcohol is not allowed in the stadium, but they are getting it in somehow.”

Cheerleaders were distracted Saturday not only by flying beer bottles but also by marshmallows, hot dogs, nachos and raw chicken during their routines.

“It was like we were in a target range,” said UI cheerleader Vu Nguyen. “We had the girls 6 or 7 feet in the air, and it was like, ‘See who can get the best shot.’ Throwing things has doubled since last year. We don’t understand what’s going on.”

The squad collectively decided to sacrifice traditional routines to create a safer cheering area for safety reasons.

“We decided this year to move immediately if things were thrown,” Anderson said. “It is unsafe,” Anderson said. “There is no reason to stand there and risk losing somebody.”

To prevent the move from becoming permanent, security will be increased at the games to protect the cheerleaders from the fans.

The university cannot afford to hire additional full-time officers with powers of arrest, so adjustments are being made with the available staff, said Lt. Duane Papke of campus security. Security personnel from other stadium areas will be on call for student crowd control if needed.

“Security will be monitored much more closely in the student section,” Papke added. They will be ready to take appropriate action from the game’s start to finish.

Students needing disciplinary action will be ejected from the stadium, and their ticket and student IDs will be confiscated and turned over to UI Deans of Student Philip Jones.

Seven to 12 IDs are collected each game, which frustrates Jones.

“This is a very serious safety issue. We will not tolerate people throwing things,” Jones said. Other disciplinary action can be taken in addition to confiscating the game ticket.

“Someone is hit with a bottle, and they get hurt, that is assault. We will file assault cases. This is dangerous and thoughtless behavior,” Anderson said.

Sophomore Steve Thill attended Tuesday’s game and said his sympathies are with the cheerleaders.

“Last year one guy in the crowd (a complete idiot),” said Thill. “He physically antagonized people into throwing stuff at him. But the cheerleaders are there to cheer for the students and then people ruin it for the rest of the running chickens. If it was a cheerleader, I would fear for my safety on the field.”

The UI Department of Public Safety said the UI Police should monitor each other.

“When kids throw things, their peers should not condone it,” Papke said. “They laugh it off when they should be accepting responsibility to stop it.”

Papke said there is a need for more personnel to work in conjunction with the University of Iowa Medical School and would be the first medical school in the state of Iowa.

The University of Idaho, however, has also presented a proposal to the board for a medical school.

The UI proposal would form a medical school in partnership with the University of Washington.

The board did not decide which school will be allowed to have the medical school, but it is expected to decide at the November meeting in Boise.

ISU President Richard Bowen said the decision between the two schools will be difficult to make. He said there is no way to know which of the two proposals will be accepted, but having the medical program at ISU would be very beneficial to the school.

State Board debates UI/ISU medical school possibilities

Denise Ditto
IU Bloomington

Editors note: in a cooperative effort between The University of Idaho Argonaut and the Idaho State University Bengal, articles of interest to students statewide will be shared between the two publications.

The State Board of Education held its monthly meeting at Idaho State University’s new Sport and Orthopedic Center on Oct 25-26. One of the main issues discussed by the board was the proposal made by ISU for a medical school.

The program would run in conjunction with the University of Idaho Medical School and would be the first medical school in the state of Idaho.

The University of Idaho, however, has also presented a proposal to the board for a medical school. The UI proposal would form a medical school in partnership with the University of Washington.

The board did not decide which school will be allowed to have the medical school, but it is expected to decide at the November meeting in Boise.

ISU President Richard Bowen said the decision between the two schools will be difficult to make. He said there is no way to know which of the two proposals will be accepted, but having the medical program at ISU would be very beneficial to the school.

Student brings raft to campus

College Press Service
Boca Raton, Fla.—Florida Atlantic University junior Jeff Shapiro is trying to humanize the immigration debate on his campus by displaying a raft that once carried Cuban refugees.

When Shapiro noticed police inspecting a raft that had washed ashore on South Inlet Park Beach last month, he was that was surprised.

“Out here, you almost have to expect things like that when you live by the ocean,” he said, especially if you follow the news and realize how many people are trying to come to this country.

When Shapiro came closer to the sunken vessel, though, he said he felt differently. “I had this really weird feeling, which was kind of frightening,” he said. “I just imagined the horrible things someone would have to go through in their own country to risk their life on a raft that can come to our.”

Made from wood and sheet metal, the raft is 12 feet long and stayed afloat with the aid of three truck tire inner tubes. Shapiro estimates that a dozen people may have traveled to the U.S. on the raft.

When the police began to tow the raft from the water, Shapiro had an idea. “I figured this would be a good image for people at school,” he said. “The raft itself was so compelling, I just felt like other people should have a chance to see it.”

Shapiro made a quick trip to the Boca Raton’s mayor and was approval to keep the raft. When he approached university officials with his idea, they were enthusiastic as well.

“Shapiro said he was not sure if he was overstepping his bounds, but everyone seemed to be on the same page. “The raft is a living artifact of human history,” said Lynn Laurenti, a FAU spokesperson.

“People are talking about it, which is something that speaks directly to our students’ hearts.”

According to Laurenti, the raft is currently being cleaned and disinfected and will be put on display for a temporary period in a high traffic area on campus.

Shapiro, 21, said plans for the display have met with little resistance.

“I’ve heard from some people who say we have to fix our borders immediately before we start letting other people in,” he said. “The raft itself was so compelling, I just felt like other people should have a chance to see it.”

Shapiro, a vocal supporter of an open-door immigration policy, said he hopes the raft has an impact.

“It would be great if they come from their stomachs, not from the waist,” he said. “That’s when they see this, they’ll start letting other people in.”

But Shapiro is not sure if it will make a difference. “I think it will be thoughtless, but I don’t seem to object to the poignancy of the raft.”

Shapi, a vocal supporter of an open-door immigration policy, said he hopes the raft has an impact.

“I’ve heard from some people who say we have to fix our borders immediately before we start letting other people in,” he said. “The raft itself was so compelling, I just felt like other people should have a chance to see it.”

Shapiro made a quick trip to the Boca Raton’s mayor and was approval to keep the raft. When he approached university officials with his idea, they were enthusiastic as well.

“Shapiro said he was not sure if he was overstepping his bounds, but everyone seemed to be on the same page. “The raft is a living artifact of human history,” said Lynn Laurenti, a FAU spokesperson.

“People are talking about it, which is something that speaks directly to our students’ hearts.”

According to Laurenti, the raft is currently being cleaned and disinfect and will be put on display for a temporary period in a high traffic area on campus.

Shapiro, 21, said plans for the display have met with little resistance.

“I’ve heard from some people who say we have to fix our borders immediately before we start letting other people in,” he said. “The raft itself was so compelling, I just felt like other people should have a chance to see it.”

Shapiro, a vocal supporter of an open-door immigration policy, said he hopes the raft has an impact.

“I’ve heard from some people who say we have to fix our borders immediately before we start letting other people in,” he said. “The raft itself was so compelling, I just felt like other people should have a chance to see it.”

Shapiro, a vocal supporter of an open-door immigration policy, said he hopes the raft has an impact.

“I’ve heard from some people who say we have to fix our borders immediately before we start letting other people in,” he said. “The raft itself was so compelling, I just felt like other people should have a chance to see it.”

Shapiro, a vocal supporter of an open-door immigration policy, said he hopes the raft has an impact.

“I’ve heard from some people who say we have to fix our borders immediately before we start letting other people in,” he said. "The raft itself was so compelling, I just felt like other people should have a chance to see it.“
Our society is very politically correct in saying “friends don’t let friends drive drunk.” It is not a safe thing to let a friend take off in a car drunk. However, when we try to expose the dangers of homosexuality, we’re ridiculed and persecuted for being a hate-filled bigot—the KKK without a hood, according to Governor Andrus. I don’t think he wants to debate the issue when he doesn’t feel like it.

We will continue to put out the facts. One of the sad facts of medicine is whenever a doctor sticks his head up and says that this is what’s going on, this culture needs to be aware of this danger. He’s got thirty AIDS activists on his front door for two weeks trying to scare all of his customers away. There is a lot of intimidation going on.

There are a lot of “No on One” signs around town. Some of our supporters decided to answer that. We’re going to make our own signs and put them up. Nobody is tearing down “No on One” signs, but as soon as one of our “Yes on One” signs goes up, they went over the line. Where is this tolerance exhibited by our opponents? These guys are so intolerant, it’s incredible.

So the question is: where’s the hate? We allow their signs to stay up, we’re not telling our people to tear them down. Our people wouldn’t tear them down even if I told them to. Yet their side tears down our signs. Argonaut: What exactly was your involvement in Oregon in 1988? Walto: In 1988, Governor Goldschmidt put out an executive order giving homosexuals special rights in the executive branch of the government in Oregon. It added the term “sexual orientation” to the personnel rules. What the homosexual activists want is public affirmation of the way they have figured this out is to have the term “sexual orientation” added to local ordinance codes and bills for cities, states and counties. We’re out to fight that. We think they ought to be protected on the basis of their citizenship.

Nobody is tearing down “No on One” signs, but as soon as one of our “Yes on One” signs goes up, they are gone overnight.

—Kelly Walto

In Oregon, we beat that. We passed a referendum on the executive order with 53 percent of the vote.

Argonaut: What are special rights? Walto: Whenever a group gets a right like affirmative action, where a certain percentage of the employees of a business or a government agency have to be part of (a particular) group, it’s a significant right. Especially when a new minority is added because many businesses do not have one person from that particular minority working for them, so they almost have to go out and search for a member of that minority to qualify under the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission regulations.

I believe homosexual activists know this, and I remind them of this all of the time, but in 1965, President Johnson signed an Executive Order stating that any group added to the civil rights list automatically gets affirmative action quotas in federal contracts with contractors around the country. As a federal contractor, every time I submit a bid that is government funded, I have to sign an “Executive Order 11246” stating how many subcontractors and suppliers I am using on this contract, and I had to give a percentage of how many minority-owned businesses are participating with our firm in this project.

Another special right is what I would refer to as hate-crime legislation. Why should a homosexual getting mugged be three times as important as my grandmother getting mugged? Both cases are equally wrong. Someone who hurts a homosexual should be prosecuted just like someone who hurts me or my family. But it should not form the basis for triple damages.

Argonaut: The proposition mentions an instance of a public school counselor working with a homosexual child, yet he cannot sanction the child’s sexual orientation. What do you have to say about this? Walto: What would society say about that counselor if it said “Do get drunk and get in your car and drive off.” It’s okay, it’s just an alternative form of driving. Society would ream the counselor for saying such a thing, and society should do the same thing to a counselor who tells a kid that this lifestyle is healthy.

We’re giving Idaho voters an opportunity to vote on creating a statewide community standard. This standard is not going to isolate a certain segment of society like they’re trying to say. We go out of our way to make sure everybody is protected.

I agree with those laws, but we are creating a standard that the state will not promote this behavior, and I think the majority of the polls show we will prevail. We feel good about doing what we’ve done, and we will do it again. If we happen to lose, you can count on seeing it again in the 1996 election cycle.

Simply Nails
Specializing in:
- ARTIFICIAL NAILS
- MANICURES
- PEDICURES

Two great locations!
Call Today!

The Garden Lounge
Tuesday:
$1 wells & drafts all day

Hair, Etc...
A Visible Difference

Your Salon Inside The Student Union Building
882-1212 Tues - Fri 9am - 5pm
Evenings & Saturday By Appointment

Turkey Tuesday
2 Foot Long Turkey Subs

$6.39
Plus Tax
Subway
We Deliver

Save Time & Money
with the Vandal Card Account

Vandal Card

Student

001-00101 2
SHERI R
STUDENT

Where can you use your Vandal Card Account?
- Coffee
- Golf Course - 19th Hole
- Tennis Courts
- Campuses
- Laundry & Vending Machines - SUB Underground
- Student Health - Kibbie Dome Concessions
- Vandal Cafe - Blue Bucket - Satellite Sub
- Registrar’s Office - Espresso Shop
- Controller’s Office - Cellar
- UI Bookstore

Open your account today at the Vandal Card Office in Wallace Complex or at our new office in the Student Union Building.
Questions? Call 885-7522 or 885-2688
Sex study reveals young adults not promiscuous

Marco Buscaglia

College Press Service

CHICAGO—Tell your mom and dad not to worry. Not all young adults are the sex-crazed pleasure seekers they see on the "Oprah" and "Donahue" talk shows.

In fact, sexual promiscuity among Americans between the ages of 18-34 actually decreased in the past decade, according to 10 University of Chicago researchers.

Their landmark report, the National Health and Social Life Survey, is billed as the most comprehensive survey of sexual behavior and debunks many notions of whom is doing what with whom.

The 722-page report was based on seven years worth of data from 90-minute, face-to-face interviews with 5,432 randomly selected Americans between 18-59.

According to the report, young adults value fidelity, have one sex partner at a time and plan to marry before they're 35.

But morality and ethics have little to do with the decline in sexual partners among members of Generation X, said Dr. Robert Libby, a former University of Georgia human sexuality professor who lectures college students on sex in the 1990s.

Instead, the fear of AIDS and other sexually transmitted diseases has slowed the sexual revolution.

"The scare of AIDS has caused a lot of people to pull back," said Libby. "It's no longer a question of religious beliefs. It's just practical concerns about safety."

While today's young adults are losing their virginity earlier than their parents did, it's only by about six months. The average age for white females and males to first have intercourse is 17.5 years.

Average African-American males start having sex just before the age of 16, while African-American families begin at 16.5 years.

When giving their reasons for first having intercourse, only 25 percent of the men said it was out of affection for their partner, while 46 percent of the women said the same thing.

Four percent of the men and 3 percent of the women attributed their first sexual encounter to peer pressure; 51 percent of the men and 24 percent of the women said it was out of curiosity, and 12 percent of the men and 3 percent of the women said it was because of physical pleasure.

Only 1 percent of the men surveyed said they lost their virginity because they were under the influence of alcohol. Zero percent of the women said the same.

While, however, Americans between the ages of 18 and 30, like their parents and grandparents, remain committed to the idea of staying true to one partner, the way they go about it has changed, said the study's authors.

Young adults are more likely to live with a partner before marriage, while their parents were more likely to marry. Two-thirds of young adults said their first live-in partnership did not involve marriage, while only 15 percent of men and 6 percent of women in their 30s said they lived together with a partner.

By contrast, more than half of women in their 50s were married by the time they were 20 years old, compared to only one-fifth of those in their 20s.

But because young adults are delaying marriage longer than their parents did, they are more likely to engage in premarital sex more often and with more partners, said the study's co-author Steve Laumann.

While 84 percent of men and 94 percent of women in their 50s said their first encounter was while they were married, only a third of those in their 20s said the same.

"They go through a much longer period before deciding about such issues as career and final residence," Laumann recently told the "Chicago Tribune."

Yet, according to the study, Americans are mostly monogamous, as more than seven out of 10 people said they disapprove of extramarital affairs.

And contrary to popular opinion, single people are having less sex than married individuals.

Thirty-six percent of married men and 32 percent of married women reported they have sex two to three times a week, while 19 percent of single men and 15 percent of single women said they have sex that often.

Libby said that the plain vanilla nature of most American's sex lives are a result of today's changing society. "Being promiscuous, which continues to take up more and more time, we now don't have enough time for sex," he said. "People come home, watch television and go to sleep. We don't have the time to have fun with one partner, much less three or four."

The survey indicated that over a lifetime, a typical man has six sexual partners, while a woman has two.

Three percent of men and women have had no sexual partners; 20 percent of the men and 31 percent of the women had one; 21 percent of the men and 36 percent of the women have had 24 partners; 23 percent of the men and 20 percent of the women have had 5-10; 16 percent of the men's 6 percent of the women have had 11-20; and 17 percent of the men and 15 percent of the women have had 21 or more sexual partners.
Idaho's I-A dream unrealistic

At the University of Idaho, football battles aren't just waged on the field. The halls of power have brewed their own struggle with the NCAA.

First, UI President Elisabeth Zinder spearheaded an attempt to promote UI into I-A status—an attempt that failed when the NCAA pointed out that the Kibbie Dome was 13,000 seats short of meeting minimum seating standards. A subsequent go at getting a waiver failed, for the same reason. No one is quite sure what UI will do next.

A proposal to allow UI and Washington State University to enter into an agreement was made, which would make Washington State (which seats around 37,000) the home stadium of UI. It seems like a good idea; WSU and UI are nowhere near the same league. Nevertheless, the NCAA also decided against that proposal, apparently due to a lack of belief that UI can consistently draw 17,000 screaming fans or more.

This may be a valid point; the record high for a Vandals game was a paltry 17,600, set just five years ago. Still, UI is considering other options in the pursuit of I-A status.

Zinder, without a doubt, is to be commended for her persistence. However, the benefits of upgrading to I-A status are dubious at best. If the move is successful, UI would be unable to play in any I-A playoff games; no players from UI could be recognized for I-A honors; and whether UI would be allowed to play in any Bowl games is doubtful. In fact, the only clear benefit UI would receive is an increase of 20 football scholarships.

What the issue boils down to is support. The Vandals are clearly a powerhouse; a record of 7-1 is impressive, and not something I randomly find. The ability of the Vandals to smash nearly every opponent they face is not in question. The NCAA requires a stadium of 30,000 or more and a consistent support of 17,000 or more in order to play with the big boys of the I-A. Regardless of anything the Vandals may do, the support is not there.

Part of the reason for this is the fact that the population base of the area is small; Latah County has around 30,000 people, and rarely will you find an area where 60% or better of one area's population shows up consistently for any event. Another problem is that promotion of athletic events has been...well, less than spectacular. The Athletic Department should do a better job at making athletes and students realize that the Vandals are a great team in any sport isn't enough; start promoting more, and the needed support should materialize.

Until it does, any attempts to push the Vandals into I-A status will be only a dream. It would be unfair to force them by not allowing them the honor and recognition they deserve. Let them be; when the support is there, then UI can become I-A. The Vandals will be ready.

Brandon Nolta

Creative Sleeping #01: Section Z

A s we all know, the only time a college student actually sleeps is when there are no worries, no responsibilities, and no papers due. It seems there are far too many things to do in any given twenty-four hour period, so sometimes we don't get to sleep. Of course, we would never admit this to our mothers, or anyone at all if we thought we might get away with it, but unfortunately, sleep is sacrificed for UI stresses and responsibilities. We have been putting off for a month, a semester, a year, or more, and the occasional party. In order to overcome these difficulties, college students have evolved into creatures able to sleep anywhere, anytime and drop off at first sign of a opportunity for twenty uninterrupted minutes. It is evident who the freshmen are, those who have sloppy form and slumber, those who can sleep during class without stirring, and those, who are all asleep. Those who have achieved deep sleep with their eyes open.

There is a grading system involved with successful napping. The ability to sleep anywhere is not the only qualification for an A. That is only the first step. Those who have long recognized the advantage in the ability to hide the face, while sleeping, are awarded a B. Those that are visibly fatigued, but don't sleep, get a C. An F is given to the person who is discovered sleeping in the library, the hallway or the classroom. To sleep and not show it, in this case, is a bad idea.

From classroom to library, this method will not only improve your chances of not being noticed, but also become a widely opportunity to catch up on needed sleep. This position can also be adapted to use the check

Jennifer Swift

Christian wackos are sucking life out of Halloween

Halloween used to be a great and innocent holiday—before I was growing up. I remember costumes of cowboys who wore snowsuits because it was snowing, and moreover, I couldn't deal with rain. I remember Halloween when for a brief moment I was Luke Skywalker, a дисней pumpkin and other assorted monsters. I enjoyed dressing up, and candy was pretty good, too.

Now, though, Halloween is dying a horrid and well-deserved death because I'm getting too old to trick-or-treating. It seems that the only way to deal with the hair actually refused to give me candy last year, but that's beyond the point. It seems that the current factors that are sucking the life from our Halloween holiday: a few misguided Christians, and a few others.

The wacks are the least insidious of the two. Wackos are the guys who insert needles and razor blades into candy they give to kids. These twisted people are purely cruel, and will, of course, die a fiery death in Hell. Wacks simply do the fun for the Vandals for making students and teachers kids must now wait until their parents look closely at the bags their kids have changed, and better yet, have it x-rayed at the fire station.

Non-thinking Christians have the audacity to believe that Halloween is the religious right, or at least a few misguided Christians who have managed to work their way onto the school board. It's important to distinguish between thinking Christians and non-thinking Christians, the former of which often get lumped together with the latter.

Non-thinking Christians have the audacity to believe that Halloween is the religious right, or at least a few misguided Christians who have managed to work their way onto the school board. It's important to distinguish between thinking Christians and non-thinking Christians, the former of which often get lumped together with the latter.

Non-thinking Christians have the audacity to believe that Halloween is the religious right, or at least a few misguided Christians who have managed to work their way onto the school board. It's important to distinguish between thinking Christians and non-thinking Christians, the former of which often get lumped together with the latter.

Non-thinking Christians have the audacity to believe that Halloween is the religious right, or at least a few misguided Christians who have managed to work their way onto the school board. It's important to distinguish between thinking Christians and non-thinking Christians, the former of which often get lumped together with the latter.

Non-thinking Christians have the audacity to believe that Halloween is the religious right, or at least a few misguided Christians who have managed to work their way onto the school board. It's important to distinguish between thinking Christians and non-thinking Christians, the former of which often get lumped together with the latter.

Non-thinking Christians have the audacity to believe that Halloween is the religious right, or at least a few misguided Christians who have managed to work their way onto the school board. It's important to distinguish between thinking Christians and non-thinking Christians, the former of which often get lumped together with the latter.

Non-thinking Christians have the audacity to believe that Halloween is the religious right, or at least a few misguided Christians who have managed to work their way onto the school board. It's important to distinguish between thinking Christians and non-thinking Christians, the former of which often get lumped together with the latter.

Non-thinking Christians have the audacity to believe that Halloween is the religious right, or at least a few misguided Christians who have managed to work their way onto the school board. It's important to distinguish between thinking Christians and non-thinking Christians, the former of which often get lumped together with the latter.

Non-thinking Christians have the audacity to believe that Halloween is the religious right, or at least a few misguided Christians who have managed to work their way onto the school board. It's important to distinguish between thinking Christians and non-thinking Christians, the former of which often get lumped together with the latter.

Non-thinking Christians have the audacity to believe that Halloween is the religious right, or at least a few misguided Christians who have managed to work their way onto the school board. It's important to distinguish between thinking Christians and non-thinking Christians, the former of which often get lumped together with the latter.

Non-thinking Christians have the audacity to believe that Halloween is the religious right, or at least a few misguided Christians who have managed to work their way onto the school board. It's important to distinguish between thinking Christians and non-thinking Christians, the former of which often get lumped together with the latter.

Non-thinking Christians have the audacity to believe that Halloween is the religious right, or at least a few misguided Christians who have managed to work their way onto the school board. It's important to distinguish between thinking Christians and non-thinking Christians, the former of which often get lumped together with the latter.

Non-thinking Christians have the audacity to believe that Halloween is the religious right, or at least a few misguided Christians who have managed to work their way onto the school board. It's important to distinguish between thinking Christians and non-thinking Christians, the former of which often get lumped together with the latter.

Non-thinking Christians have the audacity to believe that Halloween is the religious right, or at least a few misguided Christians who have managed to work their way onto the school board. It's important to distinguish between thinking Christians and non-thinking Christians, the former of which often get lumped together with the latter.

Non-thinking Christians have the audacity to believe that Halloween is the religious right, or at least a few misguided Christians who have managed to work their way onto the school board. It's important to distinguish between thinking Christians and non-thinking Christians, the former of which often get lumped together with the latter.

Non-thinking Christians have the audacity to believe that Halloween is the religious right, or at least a few misguided Christians who have managed to work their way onto the school board. It's important to distinguish between thinking Christians and non-thinking Christians, the former of which often get lumped together with the latter.

Non-thinking Christians have the audacity to believe that Halloween is the religious right, or at least a few misguided Christians who have managed to work their way onto the school board. It's important to distinguish between thinking Christians and non-thinking Christians, the former of which often get lumped together with the latter.

Non-thinking Christians have the audacity to believe that Halloween is the religious right, or at least a few misguided Christians who have managed to work their way onto the school board. It's important to distinguish between thinking Christians and non-thinking Christians, the former of which often get lumped together with the latter.

Non-thinking Christians have the audacity to believe that Halloween is the religious right, or at least a few misguided Christians who have managed to work their way onto the school board. It's important to distinguish between thinking Christians and non-thinking Christians, the former of which often get lumped together with the latter.

Non-thinking Christians have the audacity to believe that Halloween is the religious right, or at least a few misguided Christians who have managed to work their way onto the school board. It's important to distinguish between thinking Christians and non-thinking Christians, the former of which often get lumped together with the latter.

Non-thinking Christians have the audacity to believe that Halloween is the religious right, or at least a few misguided Christians who have managed to work their way onto the school board. It's important to distinguish between thinking Christians and non-thinking Christians, the former of which often get lumped together with the latter.

Non-thinking Christians have the audacity to believe that Halloween is the religious right, or at least a few misguided Christians who have managed to work their way onto the school board. It's important to distinguish between thinking Christians and non-thinking Christians, the former of which often get lumped together with the latter.
Investigation into UI needed

I am concerned about the alleged mistreatment of "fluorine group" students at the University of Idaho. According to a headline article in the Lewiston Tribune last Monday ("Bad Chemicals Used at UI...), the researchers in Professor Jeane Strewe's "fluorine group" are required to work excessive hours that may violate the U.S. government's Exchange Visitor Program. This program is supposed to include reasonable hours for work AND social, cultural and recreational activities. In addition, when a recent post-doc from Britain named Lee Proctor disagreed with Strewe about the rigidity of the hours in her lab, Strewe fired him, offering separation pay only if he would keep quiet. He was forced to return to England with no separation pay, money, but his reputation apparently intact.

It should be noted that UI President Elizabeth Zintzen recently tried to explain the separation pay-for-violence issue by claiming that Strewe only wanted to protect academic freedom. If this is true, then why did UI legal aid clinic lawyer Ken Gallant and others see the separation agreement as a gag order against Dr. Proctor?

In a follow-up opinion on Tuesday, Oct. 18 (Research...UI Foreign Student Swathorst), the editor-in-chief suggests that Mihaldin deserve an explanation, that is, an investigation should begin that is independent of the UI senate and the UI Chemistry department owes Dr. Proctor at least an apology for the shabby treatment he received while in Moscow.

I urge citizens of our university community to read the Tribune articles, then contact the Idaho Board of Education, UI President Elizabeth Zintzen or the Moscow - Pullman Daily News to voice your concerns.

—Jim LaFortune

Batt best for Governor

In all the hype surrounding the Idaho Governor's race, there is an interesting paradox. Even though polls show Beefy Hawkins leading, I have yet to see any evidence of his support. There are very few yard signs or bumper stickers around, and no one to my knowledge has written letters in any of the regional papers saying why people should support him. Also, over 45% of Beefy's money comes from out of Idaho, while Phil Batt's funding comes almost exclusively from within Idaho (over 93%).

The reason for this, and the issue that the press seems to be ignoring, is the question of who would make a better governor. This should be the central theme in any race, but Beefy Hawkins and the press continues to make the race about who has the nicest personality and who over-came difficulties to get where they are today and other things that really do not matter. The fact is there is so little popular support for Beefy because no one knows why they should vote for him or why he would make the better governor.

Phil Batt has the skills, ideas, and experience to be the best possible governor of Idaho. As a member of the legislature and the present governor, he saved the taxpayers of this state money, something neither of his opponents can claim to have done. He also wrote the state's first civil rights law and produced legislation to protect farm workers. He even earned the retirement fund for state workers from involvency and protected it later when it came under attack. Batt wants responsive state government that will do its job taking as little tax money as possible, and represents the best hope for Idaho's future. Vote for Phil Batt on Nov. 8.

—Eric Bennett

Games may hurt commitment

During is both fun and anxiety provoking, and often full of games—particularly at the beginning. Game playing prevents us from getting to know each other AT THE MOST CRITICAL TIME. The game begins at the moment you say "hello" and with some people can go indefinitely. If you believe a sincere rapport immediately, you have misunderstood the relationship, involvement and respect.

Most people play these games in order to protect themselves from potential rejection or undesired emotional involvement with a wrong person. Although you cannot eliminate games, you can minimize them considerably. The more straightforward you are, the more the other person will be comfortable in being natural.

I believe minimum game playing at the start of a relationship because ONLY those relationships which are founded on a genuine and mutual respect and trust exist forever. Perhaps because of this game playing (at a deeper level), many relationships just seem to go on and on and on. The result is that too many of them are remaining fluid and not solidifying into genuine commitments. The real losers in this game are women, because they invest their golden years of youth in relationships which may not bear any long term fruits except some temporary satisfaction and companionship. Is this what they want?

The real dilemma is this: with the high rate of pre-marital and marital break-ups, it is not wise to put all your trust in your partner and give him (her) 100% of yourself. On the other hand, if you don't trust him fully and don't put 100% into the relationship, then the relationship will not fully develop and you will never achieve the perfect harmony and fulfillment of sharing life with another human being.

—Hassein Latifi

Lucas backs his word with action

Please consider supporting Jim "Doc" Lucas in his race for Fifth District State Representative. Doc Lucas has been a lifetime advocate for education in the State of Idaho. While many politicians merely talk about supporting education, Doc has consistently backed up his words with actions.

For example, Representative Lucas was instrumental in the passage of the Equine Education Bill, which utilized revenues from horse-related activities such as racing to fund equine research and education in the state. This legislation has benefitted existing research programs at the University of Idaho and has supported numerous "hands on" equine educational opportunities for groups as diverse as kindergartners and practicing veterinarians. This opportunity to strengthen and diversify existing educational programs has been real and utilized without Representative Lucas' support.

—Jim Weber and Gordon Woods

Fox a breath of fresh air

Having run for the office, I am really appreciating the Fox vs. Sullivan campaign for State Superintendent of Public Instruction. Dr. Fox is an incredible breath of fresh air for a stagnate public school system. She is correct on every turn: more phonics, higher standards, less junk in the curriculum, etc. It will be tough, but I believe that she has garnered experience and ability can make a real difference for the better. Not a change for change's sake.

Sullivan, on the other hand, has only one thing going for him. He is a long-time pawn of the IEA/NEA. Ask anyone who really knows him. If Dr. Fox does not get elected—State Superintendent on Nov. 8, this state will deserve what it will get. It will be a long time before anyone of her caliber runs again.

—Richard D. Nelson, Ed.D.
Letters to the Editor

Tuesday, November 1, 1994

Value is where you find it

I'm writing in response to Amy Riddle's Oct. 18 article, "What ever happened to the value of an education?" Amy feels she hasn't learned anything here at the University of Idaho, but how to cram and barf up her results on a test, so she can forget it three weeks later. Well, Amy, if that is how you study, then you probably DON'T learn anything. You also say that you want instruction with the information you learn. You want to discuss it, think about it, enjoy it. Well, there really isn't time to do all that in class. If we spent all our time discussing how wonderful something is, or how it is constantly affecting us, then how would we ever learn anything new? We would be arguing on the same topic. There is a time to move on.

However, if you want to discuss, interact, or whatever with your subject material, go find your instructor and talk with him/her about it. You would be surprised how many professors would be just delighted to have a student come in all interested and ready to discuss their area of expertise. Discuss it with fellow classmates, graduate students, your mom. If you really are interested in your subject material, you will most likely learn it simply because you are interested.

I really love my major and my classes. I've learned so much and I'm really happy with the quality of education I've received. I sit and take notes, and ask questions if something strikes me. I think about the information as I write it down. I study every day, so I don't need to stay up all night for my tests cramming. That isn't to say I never get behind or never cram. I'm not a perfect student. I just put all the responsibility of my education on my own shoulders. If I'm having trouble, I take the responsibility to fix things. If I'm not interested in the class, I find other ways to make it interesting. Amy, you really need to take more responsibility for your learning instead of blaming your boredom.

Face it, UU can't change anything soon. Lectures have probably been this way since the first university was established. If students get bored during interesting class, then that will be great, but in the meantime, just put out some real facts to learn, not to cram and barf. If you are a future educator—like I am—then you should already know every thing I've pointed out. The most successful people put out EFFORT and take RESPONSIBILITY for their own successes and failures. Blaming an institution like UI is just a cop out.

And Amy, take your own advice: "Don't go through college with a robot, interact, discuss, imagine, feel, and learn." Amy, wake up: it's time for a change.

—Cathleen Berrett

Genetics bad basis for leader

It should be obvious even to the most obtuse Idaho voter that natural candidate Larry EchoHawk is the best choice of out-of-state power brokers. Those hundreds of thousands of dollars of campaign contributions are well documented, $100,000 from Clinton dinners, $25,000 from Dustin Hoffman, $30,000 from a Connecticut Indian tribe, and many others. So, let's look at EchoHawk's qualifications. He's a lawyer, ex-convict, ex-urbanite, ex-Indian, and State Attorney General. However, as governor, he wouldn't be trying any cases in court, he wouldn't be running any plays out of the shotgun, and he wouldn't be negotiating any treaties with the cavalry. He is among a group of probably two or three hundred lawyers in Idaho that are as well qualified to be Attorney General. Face it, folks, he is where he is today because he is an member of an ethnic minority. Several years ago, when the political underpinnings of this country were starting to crumble, Mr. EchoHawk surfaced into politics on a quota system tidal wave. And even though those waters have long since ebbed, he cannot return to the beach once more without getting dumped. It can be safely assumed that this is the agenda, with its abundance of money, will support his candidacy. Interestingly, his main tactic on the first draft ICA initiative before he was on it like a duck on a June bug. He's being sponsored by Hollywood, Hollywood, and the scandal-ridden stamp traders in Washington. He's been pushed by our 43 Percent Freeparty and the other good old boys of Whiteswatergirls, Trooperget, Cigarette, Hoopdiego and that Cabinet of misfits in the White House. As is the case with so many things, EchoHawk just can't seem to commit himself to the Mountain Home AFB training range. The reason is obvious. You know that if he is elected he will team up with Bobba and Bebbe to engineer the end of any future range expansion. That will be the beginning of the end for the Air Base, and the decriminalization of Idaho. Idaho would be locked up as a playground for the rich and famous—and that's pretty embarrassing.

Indian reservation boundaries are already being used to entrap the tribes by the tribes to include sacred burial grounds under every patch of cattle grazing. The state. The leader of the Pequot tribe is thirteen years old and 20,000 from their Connecticut gambling casino into EchoHawk campaign coffers. As our governor, we surely imagine where his obligations will lie.

We know that EchoHawk is short on loyalty. He accepted Clinton's $100,000 from the Pequot tribe, then castigated Slick Willy for his dealings with "the rich and famous." We know that EchoHawk is long a separation of church and state, except in Utah where he used church facilities for campaign stamping, then later blasted the leaders for their error in judgment. This year Democrats are in the world of hurt. They are hearing the rumbles of a homophobic voter backlash against money and the source of Slick's Willy's, the patriotic performance of that circus of liberal Democrats in the Capitol, and the trail of corruption from Arkansas to Washington, D.C. Democrat party hacks in Idaho bumped the other qualified gubernatorial candidates out of the picture in favor of EchoHawk. Interestingly, they would have decay the inverted notion of that strategy. The Party poobahs are playing EchoHawk as a lackey to Saddam Hussein and the criminal-ridden stamp traders in Washington. They are guessing that more Idahoans will make the ultimate fashion statement by voting for the "First Indian governor in the nation." Should we elect a man to the most powerful office in the state because of his genetic makeup? I think not. It would be absolutely the worst reason to put a man in power. It would be a miscarriage of our political system. It would be wrong. Only.... Vote for Phil Batt.

—Jack Lintelman

Bible misinterpreted on gays

While a recent Time/CNN poll said that the gay lifestyle was called acceptable by 52 percent of Americans, up from 35 percent in 1978, a majority still said that gay relationships are morally wrong. Such moral condemnation is based on a misinterpretation of the Bible. Arthur Feder projects in his book Zoor and Her Sisters: The Bible, Homosexuality and Jesus Christ claims that, "in neither Leviticus 18:22 nor Deuterononomy 23:20 is there a reference to homosexuality. The term is kedesh: cult prostitute." Cult prostitutes were seen as sacred and were forbidden in purity codes. Yale University history professor John Boswell writes in his book Christianity, Social Tolerance, and Homosexuality that Leviticus "purposes to elaborate a system of ritual cleanliness whereby the Jews will be distinguished from neighboring peoples." He points out that there is a distinction between intrinsic wrong and ritual impurity. Prof. Boswell puts Leviticus' prohibition of cult prostitution on a par with its other prohibitions against the consumption of pork, shellfish, and rabbit and its condemnations of hybridization, clothing of more than one type of fabric, and cutting off the tassels of the tabernacle. Even sodomy is a misnomer. In Matthew 10:14-13 and Luke 10:10-12, Jesus publicly stated that Sodom and Gomorrah were destroyed because of their inhumanity to strangers. Dr. Ide even charges that, "The Sodom story is a true to cover the incest of Lot and his daughters" in Genesis 19:32-38.

Prof. Boswell writes that the people of Sodom wanted to know who the foreign strangers were rather than desiring carnal knowledge of them. The Hebrew verb "yada" is very rarely used in a sexual sense. Dr. Ide spends two chapters on Romans 1:27-29. The denunciation was against heterosexuality who voluntarily chose to engage in homosexual activity. This is perverted—conscious choice—as opposed to inversion—unconscious/biologically choice. Dr. Ide's Rank-normalizing book Eunuchs for the Kingdom of Heaven explains how the taboos against masturbation, condoms, and contraception in general are based on the false audience of Oss in Genesis 38:7-10, which should properly be interpreted as a violation of the Jewish custom of levirate marriage prescribed in Deuteronomy 25:5-10.

Moreover, there are positive homosexual affairs reported in the Bible, such as that between King David and Saul's son Jonathan in 1 Samuel 18:1-4, 20:41-42, and 2 Samuel 1:15-27. So the distinctions between Naomi and Ruth in the Book of Ruth, King Solomon even wrote homosexual poetry in the Song of Solomon 5:4-8, 5:10-16, and 8:1-3. Dr. Ide even portrays Jesus as a gay male who lived nearly exclusively in the company of men and even had a beloved disciple who was allowed to lay his head on Jesus' breast. Dr. Ide has talked as described in John 11:36, 13:25, 21:7, and 21:20.

—Jim Sennayn

Student portraits for the UI yearbook will be taken soon.

Don't miss your chance to appear in the Gem of the Mountains.

The 1994-95 Gem of the Mountain portraits will be taken UI students on Nov. 29, Nov. 30 and Dec. 1 in the Student Union and Wallace Complex.

Watch this spot for more details in the next few weeks.

School portraits for the UI yearbook will be taken soon. Don't miss your chance to appear in the Gem of the Mountains.

The 1994-95 Gem of the Mountain portraits will be taken UI students on Nov. 29, Nov. 30 and Dec. 1 in the Student Union and Wallace Complex.

Visit this spot for more details in the next few weeks.
Batt best for Idaho

On Nov. 8, voters in Idaho will have the opportunity to end twenty-four years of Democratic control of the Idaho Governor's office by voting in Phil Batt for Governor.

Many people do not see the differences between Phil Batt and his opponent, Larry Echohawk. The fact is, Larry Echohawk has aligned himself with Bill Clinton and Eastern liberals. Bill Clinton has endorsed Larry Echohawk and has even appointed him as his fundraising chairman.

Bill Clinton supports Echohawk, not because he is a nice guy, but because Echohawk subscribes to his liberal agenda. On the other hand, Phil Batt is a native Idahoan and farmer who opposes Idaho values.

Here are some examples:

- Phil Batt opposes gas control. Echohawk voted to allow cities and counties in Idaho to regulate firearms.
- Phil Batt favors protecting Idaho's rainforests. Echohawk was ranked one of the six worst legislators on water rights issues by the Idaho Water Users Association.
- Phil Batt favors limiting the size and scope of government. Echohawk supported a $200 million increase in the state budget last year. From 1982-1986, Echohawk voted for $324 million more in state government spending.
- Phil Batt is a registered Democrat. Echohawk is a two-term member of the Idaho Human Rights Commission.
- Phil Batt is a practicing Catholic. Echohawk is an agnostic.

Phil Batt backed Idaho in the recent environment battles. He is known for his strong stand on environmental problems.

In conclusion, voters in Idaho should support Phil Batt for Governor. He will stand up for our values and protect our natural resources.

--Phil Batt for Governor

Chenoweth short-sighted

In response to Damon Durakij's response to Nancy Schaffer's letter concerning Helen Chenoweth, I would like to thank Damon for again bringing up the "Endangered Salmon Bake" Chenoweth attended. I am thanking him because the more people who have this situation, the better. I don't believe that any of the salmon that you and Chenoweth are so pleased to point out you can purchase at Albertson's. If you purchase sockeye salmon or any of the other species listed as endangered. Insuring from your and Chenoweth's comments, then, as they commonly do, would be the same as buying an Albertson's, who cares if the species native to our state are in trouble? The salmon you buy at Albertson's come from Canada and Alaska. But wait! There's a lot of grizzlies in Alaska, so how could they possibly be considered endangered?

The purpose of the Endangered Species Act is to preserve what plant and animal species we have not already destroyed, and to preserve them for whatever natural habitat they need to survive. You and Chenoweth obviously have no appreciation for the importance of biodiversity as an indicator of the health of the earth. But, then again, concern for the health of the earth would be a little long term for your short sighted position.

--John Hintz

I-A status won't improve UI

In my 15 years here at the University of Idaho, I have written a letter to the editor. Maybe I should have before now, but your lead article from the Oct. 14 paper, "NCAA turns down waiver request," forces a response from a senior faculty member. I am the director of the Center for ETHICS (Ethical Theory and Honors in Competitive Sports) at the university and I am a fully tenured professor. I am noted as one of the leading authorities in moral education and character development in America, especially directed toward competition. I am disturbed through my professional core with the printed comments from Dr. Hal Godwin. Surely he is misquoted, for I know he thinks better of the students and faculty of UI. He has quoted as saying, 'This is a fact: athletics are anwires in our society. The athletic company you keep is not a university' is often equaled with the quality of the institution.'

To put facts to light, I refer the reader to the following professional journals and social science data about perceptions of athletic departments and academic qualities: The Journal of Sport and Society, the text, North American Sport Society by Segge and Eitzen; the text Sport and Higher Education, by Chu, Seggrave, and Becker; the text, College Sports, Soc. by Sprecher; the text, Sport in Society, by Coakley; the text, Restraining College Athletics, by Andre & Andre; the text Athletics and Academics and Bailey & Lilienthal; who all note that perceived importance does not appear to have any link to athletic teams. For example, the creme de la creme of academic societies are schools like Harvard, UC Berkeley, Yale, Princeton, Brown, University of Chicago, and so forth, who either have no teams or are not noted for their athletic teams. The sociological text also note that membership in the NCAA at Division I-A, considers the amount of NCAA rule violations, may have a negative effect on perceived academic importance because of questions about integrity and academic excellence.

To say that athletic teams is the key to perceived importance of scholarly and academic excellence is begging the question with non-factual material. Dr. Godwin's just is quoted as saying, a move to I-A would lead in the "possibility of attracting better student and faculty," I may take exception to this statement. The capitally noted university that the students of the UI are fine young people and I find them to be quite competent. I just spent a year as a visiting professor at what is considered one of the elite schools of the East, the United States Military Academy. My husband and I have said about once a week, as I graded papers or finished a class, that I thought the kids at Idaho on the whole were just as academically prepared as the cadets I worked with.

As to the quality of the faculty at the UI, we are not second class. Many of us could choose any university or public sector in the world to work—the demand is there for us because we are well-respected and highly competent. We choose, however, to stay here because we love the State of Idaho has to offer us—her children, her resources, and her crime-free environment. To say that going to Division I-A athletics will bring in better faculty is a rebuff to all of us educators as well as being unsupported drive.

My comments here are not a reflection about athletics per se. I respect and admire our young people and the programs we support for our teams. I support our coaches and athletic program in their endeavors. However, I do not believe that moving to Division I-A is the best policy, better founded arguments are made for what I do not question the integrity or the quality of the UI faculty, staff, student and student athletes. We all deserve better.

--Dr. Sharon Kay Stoll
Director of ETHICS

Argonaut Letters Policy

The Argonaut welcomes reader letters. They must be one page or less typed, double spaced. Letters will be signed and in the number and address of each writer. Letters may also be submitted by e-mail to argonaut@uidaho.edu or by fax to (208) 885-2222. The Argonaut reserves the right to refuse or edit letters. Multiple letters with the same position on a topic may be represented by one letter.
Rice’s ‘Taltos’ lacks substance depth

Shelby Beck

Staff

Finishing Anne Rice’s latest novel, Taltos, left me with the impression that following the success of her first book in this series, The Witching Hour, the author has garnered a publishing contract with a time limit. Published less than a year after The Witching Hour’s sequel, Lasher, the novel contains a wealth of historical background, but simply lacks the richness and subtlety that has established Rice in modern literature.

The book picks up where Lasher left the Mayfair family of witches—a raid and deeply saddened about recent events. In the case of Rowan Mayfair, ingenuous in the Mayfair saga, the confrontation at the end of Lasher has left her a silent, warm body that does nothing but exude itself and sit in the garden. Meanwhile, thirteen-year-old Moon is overcome with guilt for having seduced Rowan’s husband, Michael, and tends to Rowan’s every need.

When a dear friend, one that helped Rowan and Michael through their struggle with Lasher, dies in the streets of New Orleans after a car runs him down, making two more passes just to ensure the job is done, Rowan returns to the living, heat on revenge. She travels with Michael to London and the headquarters of the Talassa, that ancient, secular order of scholars studying psychic phenomena, to establish their powers to seek out and destroy those who killed her friend.

There they encounter the being for which Rice’s novel is titled, Mr. Ash. He is the real St. Ashlar, the sole survivor of the human-like species, the Taltos, and the head of a great corporate and governmental empire. As it is called, visits, Britain and France, where he has heard that another Taltos, namely Lasher, was spotted there a couple of months earlier. In the case of the Taltasa and the organization of those who would corrupt its principles.

The problem with Rice’s novel is that she attempts to weave three threads of plot, resulting in a skeleton of a story instead of a living, breathing, sensual tale. In, at an always and unquestionable end, they all come together. But this is not to tell the story of the main trials while Rowan and Michael are away, that of the disloyal members of the Talassa, what Rowan and Michael go through, is in the past history, 467 pages and simply not enough to add details to her events and characters. Where Rice’s new book gets is a streamlined story with none of the lush description of scene and character for which Rice is known. She is saved by the fact that she has two previous novels to develop up three of her four main characters. Taltos is still very readable. Rice creates some poignant and humorous moments where her audience cannot help but be moved by her characters’ behavior.

Although the plot sometimes progresses too rapidly, it succeeds in gripping and keeping the reader’s attention. In the end, however, Taltos is like peeling an orange, expecting succulence but instead biting into dry pulp.

Bandung: an old town in an era of modernization

When traveling abroad, I have often been asked the location of my home country relative to that of a continent besides Asia. Those who already know of its location associate Indonesia with the island of Bali. The worst case scenario is if they ask what the location of Indonesia is relative to Bali. Bali itself is a part of Indonesia, a paradise island that has been a tourist destination for years. Could it be possible that Indonesia only has one pretty beach and beautiful island called Bali? Does Indonesia essentially consist of this one island? Fortunately not. Among many. I traveled to the island that is the capital of the country, Jakarta, to find out. The story of the island is told in the origin of the mountain.

According to the legend, the mountain came into existence. Bandung was a big take. Astonishingly there is geological evidence supporting the claim (made by the legend). In the colonial age, Bandung was a small town. It was a combination of two distinct worlds: a small town to the west in the western portion of the town and a place of relaxation in the northern portion. Military-based infrastructure, such as "army" industry and military schools, continue to exist in the western part of town and its sub-international column

International Column

The hectic lifestyle of the complicated military in the west is made by the influx of tourists and foreigners. A quiet and peaceful town reminiscent of old Dutch counterparts. Unfortunately, most of them have been unable to stand in the way of advancement. For example, Dago Tea House in Dago Hill, is located in the West at a vantage point from where you can see the whole town. This used to be a place where many people and students used to hang around and simply enjoy the view. Today, with the modernization, newer style cafes seem to draw a much larger crowd. It seems these advancements will eventually destroy the cultural, social and historical values of Bandung, once acknowledged, "The Flower City," and "Paris of Java." There is no Malacca River anymore where people used to spend their leisure time. Only a statue of its Dutch founder still remains covered by dust and surrounded by polluted air, looking over a deserted park. He stands, a stranger, watching the gradual destruction of the old Bandung.

Bandung is changing into a modern town, a town with a modern innovation of culture. The old cultural values of Bandung are gradually vanishing. But, there, under its roads, beneath its layers of dust, in its stones, the story is still alive. It will lie there in the cold ground forever. It will be forever buried under Bandung.

—Andreas Suryawana

...
L7 rocks ‘Hungry for Stink’ with pure primal feminism

Matt Baldwin

An ear splitting scream and a thrashing mosh pit that threatens to tear down the steel barrier separating the crowd from the stage is how the band, L7, introduced themselves. L7 is pure primal feminism. With vocals that threaten to tear at some points and set sometimes melodious, L7 has released a CD, Hungry For Stink, which is climbing the punk charts while the band is on a national tour. I got a chance to speak to them when they were in Charleston.

L7 is comprised of four individuals: Suzi Gardner, Jennifer Finch, Dee Plakas, and Donita Sparks. This year they appeared at the Lollapalooza show along with smashing pumpkins, beastie Boys, green day, and other bands. The members played in countless bands before the emergence of L7, which formed through mutual friends and connections. As Donita puts it “I met Suzi through friends and filled in for her in a band that we used to play for. Jennifer came in about a year after we started and Dee came in about three years after we started. We had a different drummer and bass player.”

L7 formed in 1985 in L.A. They played clubs before signing with Epitaph, which was the first indie company they signed onto. Jennifer knew Boett, the guy that owns it. We were doing a demo down in his studio and he heard it and he liked it.

Currently L7 is on Slash records. Donita started out playing guitar at the young age of 16, receiving her guitar as a birthday present from her mother. From then on, Donita was learning and playing. L7’s inspiration comes from punk. They all listened to punk as they grew up, so they have become one of the biggest punk bands. They began playing in the L.A. dives, places that police would raid and the fire department would shut down. In fact, during that time, Suzy dated Chuck Dukowski from the icon punk band Black Flag.

This year L7 also had the chance to appear in John Waters’ film Serial Mom. In the film L7 play the roles of a band by the name of Canal Lips. When asked about Serial Mom, Donita responded with “it was cool, but more work than I thought it would be. I would like to do some more stuff actually.”

L7 has had a busy year with touring, releasing their album, and also appearing at the Elvis Presley tribute with other musical acts that included Jerry Lee Lewis, Billy Ray Cyrus, and Iggy Pop. That show was bizarre as described by Donita: “we didn’t know how we got onto that gig.” L7 will be appearing in Seattle Nov. 9 with the Melvins and Wool. Tickets are on sale for $16. The show will be in the club DV8 located at 131 Taylor Ave. N at 7:30 p.m.

Two essential ingredients for a perfect date:

A date and this.

It’s everywhere you want to be.
Hargrove Quintet releases well balanced jazz

Lee Edward Nort

The Roy Hargrove Quintet recently released "Mish-nam-misha," their latest album, which features a wide range of musicians and styles. The album is a collection of original compositions, showcasing Hargrove's skill as a composer and bandleader.

The album features guest artists such as Mandy Hariton, Loretta Panetti, and Callie Strong, all of whom contribute significantly to the overall sound of the album. The music is a mix of jazz, blues, and world music, with Hargrove's characteristic horn playing and the group's harmonious interplay.

The album is a testament to Hargrove's ability to bring together different musical styles and create a cohesive and balanced sound. It is a must-listen for fans of jazz and world music.

---

Umatilla language becoming lost with the youth

Welcome to our second article of four about Native American Heritage Month. Our club's first full week of activities was a busy one. I would like to extend more words of thanks to the Argonaut for allowing this column to be featured in the Lifestyles section. I am writing today about some Indian words that are basic to the Nez Perce and Umatilla Tribes and will tell about next week's activities.

The first words of Indian I would like to use are basic greeting words that the Nez Perce and Umatilla Tribes use. Before any treaties were signed with a lot of tribes, it still means one of how the white man and Indian negotiated them at all with little knowledge of each other's languages.

The first word that I will explain is Futa-Mish-We. The word means "good morning." The dialect of a language is different for each tribe, but the Indians east of the Cascade mountains were put in a category called the Sahaptian languages.

My tribe is the Umatilla and our greeting words are Mish-pam-misha and Mish-pam-neza. The "mish" is singular for "you," while "pam" is plural for "folks" or "people." Mish is for "how are you doing?" and "Mish-pam-misha?" or "how are you folks doing?"

The language of tribes is being lost. The tribes that speak fluently are our elders, but we are losing more than we gain as the years go by, especially when a lot of Indian youth are moving off the Indian Reservations to get a job and start a career.

One other word is: Tur-ak-bin-ma or "Place of small whitetail deer cows" located here in Moscow, when meadows were prevalent rather than the wheat fields of today. Thlap-Thlap means "the place of butterflies" located near Lapwai near the site that the Nez Perce students here live; Mats-h-lya means "up river people" where my wife's people come from at Kamiah, Idaho, and I will tell my own Indian name of White Feather.

My Indian name of Wish-push is a name borrowed from my father's family.
Doom II violent, interactive

Jeremy Chase
Contributed story

If things like violence, deadly foes, and networking with others are your cup of tea, then perhaps you should check out Doom II "Hell on Earth," the latest release from ID Software.

Like its predecessor, Doom II's storyline centers around a lone human (you) pitted against a host of human and alien foes in a series of maze-like levels. Your objective is to eliminate all of the foes in your path, get through the levels, and then defeat a "super enemy" at the end in order to win.

To aid in your mission, your character is armed with weapons ranging from pistols to plasma rifles. Chances to attain new and more powerful weapons are given on many levels if you hunt hard. Nevertheless, your character is armed well enough to turn any of your enemies into a gory mess.

Matt Boom, a sophomore Computer Engineering major, said that Doom II's appeal is in its violence and animation. "It's the realism of how the game moves,"Boom said. "You have different characters, better guns, and more intricate levels."

The content of violence in Doom II (or Doom for that matter) is probably more than substantial. While playing the game, I didn't know what I was more afraid of—getting killed or seeing what it was like killing something. The game does feature different levels of skill that can be toggled to alter the amount of carnage that is displayed.

Doom II's appeal also lies in its networking capabilities. With network, a user may play the game interactively with up to three others. As a group, players act cooperatively or in "death match" tournaments.

In death match, the game keeps track of how many "kills" you score against the others networked, and how many times you have been killed.

At the same time, a networked player still has to worry about the scores of other enemies that are already in the game.

"It's a lot more fun because you have actual competition between friends," Boom said. "It makes it more of a group experience."

Scott Nelson, a sophomore Public Relations major, agree. "Network allows you to hunt down your friends and the monsters that are already there... Doom II has been on the market since early October and can be found at most major software retailers priced around $50.

For those with e-mail accounts, a shareware version of the game could be on Internet soon.

HERITAGE
FROM PAGE 16

With-youth comes from my Dad's mom's grandfather who was a Wocanian. His wife was Illo-skool, which one of my first coins has today, and they both lived from the mouth of the Snake river in the Alpwo mountains west of Lewiston.

Indian names are for keep sake in one's own family to retrace or a new name can be used. These names are made public with a Giveaway ceremony for the family and people to celebrate. One can ask most Indians and they will tell you their Indian name. Even an Indian's list name can be explained.

Tonight is the next evening of our Indian Film Festival, Where The Spirit Lives and In The White Man's Image are the two films. These two films are about the onset of boarding schools for Indian people. The big change the Indian people had to adopt was Christianity. Missionary schools were developed on every Reservation for Indians to assimilate with mainstream America. Most boarding schools were shut down from the Indian Reorganization Act of 1934. Today through the choice of Indians who are usually from a broken family and attend the Native American boarding schools in the United States. The nearest one from here is Chemawa Indian Boarding School located near Salem, Ore., and the schools go up through high school.

On Nov. 4 at the Student Union Lounge, Patricia Riley will be speaking. Patricia is a part of the faculty here at the UI and she will be doing a series of storytelling about Native Americans. Her daughter is Catherine Harly, who is a student here at UI, and we are glad that Patricia can weaved her storytelling because Oratory or telling is the Indian way of passing down their own history. Contact the call to find more information are Catherine Attono, President of NASA, at 882-4993 or Iubile Bond, NASA faculty advisor, at 885-6205 during the day.

Liz Young art on display

Liz Young creates art from junk. The Los Angeles sculptor, who has been confined in a wheelchair since a car accident in 1976, will speak on her disability and how it influences her art November 4 at 11:30 a.m. in the Chief's Room of the Student Union Building.

"Her artwork is often more easily measured in tons than in inches. Her artist's materials are more likely to be gathered from grime scrap yards and alleys near downtown Los Angeles than from art store aisles," wrote Bob Poo of the Los Angeles Times.

Young's discussion will include slides of her work.

The presentation is sponsored by the Disabled Students' Association of UI and the Disability Action Center of Moscow.

Season tickets on sale

Season tickets are still available for the Washington Idaho Symphony's 1994-1995 concert season. Season ticket prices are for the five remaining concerts: $40 Adult, $35 Senior Citizens (65+), $20 college, $12.50 youth, $90 for family.

Contact the Washington Idaho Symphony office for more information about tickets or a season brochure at 882-6655, or 1-800-949-ARTS.
Dickenson, miscues haunt Idaho

Andrew Longetelig
Sports Editor

While driving in the the parking lot at Washington-Grizzly stadium before the game, an intemperate Montana Grizzly fan yelled at me in a drunken stupor, "Idaho sucks!"

After a brief exchange of obscenities, it was realistic to say that he was a bit harsh. Idaho doesn't "suck." However, the Vandals football team sure didn't play like the No. 3 team in Division I-AA as quarterback Dave Dickenson struck again, leading Montana to a 45-21 victory Saturday in Missoula and sole possession of first place in the Big Sky.

UM, ranked first in the Division I-AA polls improves to 8-0 overall and 4-0 in the Big Sky.

"They beat the crap out of us today," head coach John L. Smith said.

The Vandals (7-1, 4-1) actually beat the crap out of themselves. Dropped balls, a penalty nullifying a touchdown, failure to score on four downs from the 3-yard line and a roughing the kicker penalty were just a few of Idaho's many mishaps.

"We shot ourselves in the foot far too many times today," said quarterback Eric Hisaw, who started his first game since suffering a knee injury Oct. 6. "We didn't take advantage of golden opportunities."

Smith added, "You make a mistake against these guys and they'll kill you."

Dickenson established himself as one of the best quarterbacks in college football by completing 38 of 52 passes for 510 yards. His 510 yards passing was two short of the school record set against Idaho last season. Dickenson's 38 completions broke the UM record.

Van Haverbeke, Rice too tough on EWU

Dan Eckles
Staff

The Idaho Vandals made Eastern Washington look more like outfits with their heads buried in the sand than fighting Eagles Friday night in a 15-8, 15-11, 15-8 Big Sky Conference drubbing.

The Eagles were never in contention as Idaho jumped out to a 9-0 lead in game one. EWU did manage to overcome the Vandals 8-4 over the next stretch, but the early margin was too much to overcome.

The two teams traded points evenly in game two, but the Vandals broke a 4-4 tie to take a 13-7 edge and held on for the game-two lead. Game three was much the same as neither team could put together a big run, but the Vandals outscored the Eagles nearly 2-1 for the easy win.

Morris Rice and Brittany Van Haverbeke were the offensive stars once again for Idaho, combining for 30 of the Vandals 54 kills. Rice had 16 and hit .392 on the night while Van Haverbeke pounded 14 and hit .310, adding a game-high 11 digs.

"I think Brittany ended up with a pretty good match after a slow start," Vandals coach Tom Hilbert said. "Mindy also played great. She was off-balance and making plays, she was just all over the court."

Idaho setter Lynne, who was second in the nation in assists per game last week with a 14.4 average, dished out 45 in the winning effort.

The 21st-ranked Vandals (22-2-9 BSC), who also swept the Eagles in Cheney earlier this season, outhit their border foes .248 to .113 and outlocked the Eagles 12-4.

EWU (9-15, 3-7 BSC) became the 25 straight victim to lose to the Vandals in the friendly confines of Memorial Gym, where the Vandals are 33-3 over the last three years.

"It was a much better match than the last time," Hilbert said. "Our kids really had a good understanding of what Eastern was going to do, and I think that really showed."

The Vandals have swept seven of their 10 conference matches and of their 22 wins this fall 15 have come in three games. Idaho has only been taken to five games in five occasions this year, winning four.

Vandal quarterback Eric Hisaw searches downfield as a Montana defensive lineman hangs on Hisaw hoping for a sack. Hisaw was making his first start since suffering a knee injury Oct. 8.

Jeff Curtis
Senior outside hitter Mindy Rice blocks the kill attempt by EWU's Carly Killen-Curtis. UL's Brittany Van Haverbeke provides assistance. of 36. His three touchdown passes gave him 27 for his career, break-ning another school record.

"I wish somebody would come up and tell me how to stop that guy," Smith said. "If we had 16 guys we could’ve gotten it done."

"We put on a zone for this game to try to contain him," said UI safety Jeff Hill. "It didn’t work too well
this game."

In the first quarter, Dickenson was unstoppable. At one point he tossed 19 of 21 passes in leading the Grizzlies to three first quarter touchdowns that forced the Vandals to play catch-up—something they’re not accustomed to.

This forced Idaho to abandon their running game—the ignition in their finely-tuned offense. Sherriden May rushed for a season-low 65 yards. He also failed to score a touchdown for the second straight game as he is still two scores from the 1-AA scoring record.

Montana, meanwhile, continued to pass like they forgot about their running backs. Grizzly receivers were completely wide open on many occasions. Also, Vandals defenders would often slip on the cold, wet grass.

Hill said it was tough to keep his footing, and added that the Montana receivers have a low center of gravity which makes it easier to stay on their feet.

Six Montana receivers had at least five receptions. Matt Wells, a 5-foot-7.160-pound junior, was catching everything like he had
Super Glue smeared on his hands.

He finished with eight receptions for 120 yards.

Idaho was within striking distance most of the game, trailing 24-14 late in the third quarter. The Vandal defense made a crucial defensive stand. However, on fourth down, UI was questionably flagged for a roughing the kicker penalty which put Montana a first down. They eventually scored on an 11-yard option pitch from Dickenson to Kelly Strumad.

The Vandal defensive line was having a hard time penetrating Montana’s powerful offensive front. Defensive ends Ryan Phillips and Barry Mitchell, who lead the team in sacks with seven, failed to sack Dickenson. They combined for six tackles.

Idaho’s defense surrendered 586 yards, the most since the second game of 1993 against Southwest
Texas State.

Something funny has to be going on around here if the Vandals’ leading tackler was Cole Wilson, a free safety.

The safety position is fairly self-explaining—they back up the front seven in case a big play results. The problem was, UI made too many big plays. Wilson recorded a career-high 15 tackles.

After the game, Wilson expressed his disappointment. “It’s (the loss) real disheartening because we were so hard this week. We were the Vandals gave a lot of yards, they did produce key turnovers. Unfortunately, the offense didn’t capitalize on Montana’s misfortunes.

After a Tommy Knecht interception return that put the Vandals on the Grizzly 3-yard line, Idaho failed to put any points on the scoreboard.

McKinzie was stuffed on two carrys and a UI backfield batted down a Hilaw pass in the end zone. Ryan Woolverton’s field goal attempts failed left.

Hilaw was mediocris, perhaps feeling the effects of not seeing action for three weeks. He completed 17 of 36 passes for 272 yards, but didn’t use his scrambling ability even enough times to create open receivers.

The UI offensive line, gave rea-nsonable protection, but broke down on several instances. Montana sacked Hilaw six times.

It appeared Idaho lacked confidence in their offense on several plays. Twice the Vandals punched inside the Grizzlies’ 40-yard line, stiffing effective drives—and momentum.

Vandal Vibes—
Montana drew 15,466 people, the second largest crowd in UM history.

—This is the fourth consecutive victory for UM against Idaho.

——That Vandals failed to score in the third quarter for the first time this year.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>U of I</th>
<th>Montana</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>7</td>
<td>21</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7</td>
<td>2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>0</td>
<td>21</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7</td>
<td>45</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Scoring
UI — Wells 15 pass from Dickenson (kick failed)
UI — McKinzie 65 pass from Hilaw (Woolverton kick)
UM — Gummery 12 pass from Dickenson (Sternard run)
UM — Baker 18 pass from Dickenson (Larson kick)
UM — Larson 42 FG
UI — Gilroy 14 pass from Hilaw (Woolverton kick)
UI — Sternard 11 run (Larson kick)
UM — Dickenson 5 run (Larson kick)
UI — Sternard 1 run (Larson kick)
UI — Gilroy 14 pass from Brennan (Woolverton kick)

Individual statistics
RUSHING — UI, May 16-65, Thomas 5-1, Hilaw 7-47, Brennan 1-15, UM, Bodie 7-25, Stermand 8-42, Dickenson 4-4, Morton 2-3, Wilberger 1-0.
PASSING — UI, Hilaw 17-36-0 272, Brennan 6-10-0 92, UM, Dickenson 38-52-2 510.
RECEIVING — UI, McKinzie 6-132, Gary 6-84, Neal 7-71, May 2-44, Gilroy 2-28, Griffin 1-5, UM, Wells 8-120, Gummery 7-118, Baker 6-86, Erhardt 5-96, Bohde 5-55, Sternard 7-35.

Senior Idaho running back Sherriden May lunes for all he’s worth. May rushed for a season-low 65 yards in the Vandals’ loss to Montana Saturday. May remains two touchdowns short of becoming the all-time leading scorer in Division I-AA history.
Sports

THE ARGONAUT

Tuesday, November 1, 1994

---

Big Sky Conference Football Standings

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Team</th>
<th>W</th>
<th>L</th>
<th>Overall</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Montana</td>
<td>4</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>1.000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Idaho</td>
<td>4</td>
<td>1</td>
<td>0.800</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Boise State</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>1</td>
<td>0.750</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Idaho State</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>0.600</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Northern Arizona</td>
<td>4</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>0.571</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Eastern Washington</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>4</td>
<td>0.500</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Weber State</td>
<td>1</td>
<td>4</td>
<td>0.250</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Montana State</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>6</td>
<td>0.000</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Saturday's results

EWU 34, Montana State 33, 3OT
Northern Arizona 24, Weber State 20
Portland State 38, Idaho State 21
Boise State, idle

---

Big Sky Conference Volleyball Standings

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Team</th>
<th>W</th>
<th>L</th>
<th>Overall</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Montana</td>
<td>9</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>1.000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Idaho</td>
<td>9</td>
<td>1</td>
<td>0.900</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Idaho State</td>
<td>8</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>0.727</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Weber State</td>
<td>7</td>
<td>6</td>
<td>0.588</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Eastern Arizona</td>
<td>7</td>
<td>9</td>
<td>0.455</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Northern Arizona</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>8</td>
<td>0.273</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Boise State</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>8</td>
<td>0.273</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Montana State</td>
<td>1</td>
<td>8</td>
<td>0.111</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Today's Game

Montana State at Montana
Thursday: Happy Hour prices till 10 p.m.

---

Gem of the Mountains

Bought your ‘95 Gem yet?

For just $32.50 you can be part of a 91-year UI tradition and carry your memories of college with you throughout the rest of your life. Remember how you looked, what you did, who you hung out with. Your memories are too valuable to let slip through your hands.

Visit the Gem Office on the 3rd floor of the Student Union or call 885-6372.

---

Job Openings!

If you're looking to gain job experience while still in school, the Argonaut may have your answer. We are looking for motivated students with a team attitude. If you're interested in one of the following positions, stop by our office on the 3rd floor of the Student Union.

- Outdoors Editor
- News Staff Writers (2)
- Lifestyles Staff Writers (2)
- Sports Staff Writer

---

The #1 Selection is Pizza Perfection

Open 11am Daily
Tax included on all prices

ORDER A

TUESDAY PIZZAZZ!!!

New Sauces
Garlic, Pesto, and Cajun Fire

PAY FOR A SMALL WITH TWO FREE BEVERAGES

Free Delivery

---

Middle blocker Brittany Van Haverbeke leaps to spike the ball down the Eagles' throats. The 5-foot-11 senior was second on the team with 14 kills and first with 11 digs in helping Idaho to a 15-8, 15-11, 15-8 victory over EWU. The Vandals, ranked No. 21 in the nation are 22-2.

---

Garden Lounge

Thursday: Happy Hour prices till 10 p.m.

In the Moscow hotel - downtown Moscow

---

Students Union Office

Stop by our office on the 3rd floor of the Student Union. We are looking for motivated students with a team attitude. If you're interested in one of the following positions, stop by our office on the 3rd floor of the Student Union.

- Outdoors Editor
- News Staff Writers (2)
- Lifestyles Staff Writers (2)
- Sports Staff Writer
Intramural refs don't have it easy

If we did not have the officials, we wouldn't have the intramural program. They run the program.

—Greg Morrison
Director of Intramural Program

One of the policies that will be initiated will be the sportsmanship rule. This will go into effect during intramural basketball. Teams will be graded on sportsmanship and must have a "B" grading to be allowed to continue on into the playoffs.

Team attitudes are sure to change due to this rule. The abuse, which includes verbal and sometimes even physical abuse, will be reduced according to Morrison. Morrison also sees the referee having control on how much abuse they have to take over the course of a game.

The intramural department is trying to "keep abuse to a mini-mum."
This Comics Page Is Proudly
Sponsored By

UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO
BOOKSTORE

Deakin Ave  • Across From The Student Union
885-6469

Bound & Gagged  Dana Summers

The UI Bookstore

Great Gift Ideas From
The University of Idaho
Come See Them
Today!
ROOMMATES
Roommate needed; older, responsible student wanted $205/mo. + 1/2 utilities. Available now, no smoking. Danielle 882-2968.

FOR SALE
300
AUTOS
8’7 Ford Ranger XLT, 2dr, black, A/C, good radio, new, new tires. runs excellent. 123K $3950/OBO. Call Nikki, 883-3824.

CLOTHING

COMPUTERS

387-40 performance system mini-tower 4MB RAM 230 MB Hard Drive, Modern Windows, Microsoft applications, etc. $850/OBO. Call 885-8137

FURNITURE

MUSICAL EQUIPMENT
JIBANE DESTROYER II Electric Guitar; Red/white case, $250/OBO. CRATE GL30 Guitar Amplifier; 2 channel, closed/distortion, $225/OBO. Scott, 852-5687 after 5pm.

Brand New! Dynastar 185 Omega carbon downhill skit (no bindings) $155/OEO. Please call (208)746-4170.

500 SERVICES
House Cleaning. Need your apartment, house or garage cleaned? Give Melvina or Gima a call at 882-8713 (you provide the supplies.)

Heathcare
Nutrition Counseling available Student Health Services *Eating disorders *Weight issues *Heart disease *Cancer prevention *Sports diets Make appointments by calling 885-6693

PHOTOGRAPHY
Hotography
Any Event, Special Occasion or for Portrait. Call 208/625-6723 for more information.

Typing
Typing; papers, theses, whatever. Good and Quick! Inkjet color available. Call in time, 882-9471

800 LOST & FOUND
Found: Giorgio Armani reading glasses in leather case in Home Economics Bldg. 10/26/94. Call 885-6944

SALES REP WANTED
We’re looking for a dynamic, dedicated & hardworking person to sell advertising. Must have a team attitude & be a registered UI student. Stop by the Argonaut offices Student Union-3rd floor.

$1500 weekly possible making our circulars! For info call 852-8995.

Wanted: House Cleaner for 2 brm, 2 bath apartment. Approximately 2 hours/week.

Cleaning supplies provided. Call 883-3493.

NANNY OPPORTUNITIES!
Pre-screened families looking for caring individuals to spend a year as a nanny, $750-3550薪水 per, R & B and aircraf included. Childcare 1-800-937-6264.

2 positions open; working with 5 developmentally disabled adults in group home setting, 6-9am, Mon.-Fri. Afternoon/Evening, Sunday-Thursday. Epton House Association, 332-7653.

1-800-937-6264.

FURNITURE

MUSICAL EQUIPMENT
JIBANE DESTROYER II Electric Guitar; Red/white case, $250/OBO. CRATE GL30 Guitar Amplifier; 2 channel, closed/distortion, $225/OBO. Scott, 852-5687 after 5pm.

Brand New! Dynastar 185 Omega carbon downhill skit (no bindings) $155/OEO. Please call (208)746-4170.

500 SERVICES
House Cleaning. Need your apartment, house or garage cleaned? Give Melvina or Gima a call at 882-8713 (you provide the supplies.)

Heathcare
Nutrition Counseling available Student Health Services *Eating disorders *Weight issues *Heart disease *Cancer prevention *Sports diets Make appointments by calling 885-6693

PHOTOGRAPHY
Any Event, Special Occasion or for Portrait. Call 208/625-6723 for more information.

Typing
Typing; papers, theses, whatever. Good and Quick! Inkjet color available. Call in time, 882-9471

800 LOST & FOUND
Found: Giorgio Armani reading glasses in leather case in Home Economics Bldg. 10/26/94. Call 885-6944

SALES REP WANTED
We’re looking for a dynamic, dedicated & hardworking person to sell advertising. Must have a team attitude & be a registered UI student. Stop by the Argonaut offices Student Union-3rd floor.

$1500 weekly possible making our circulars! For info call 852-8995.

Wanted: House Cleaner for 2 brm, 2 bath apartment. Approximately 2 hours/week.

Cleaning supplies provided. Call 883-3493.

NANNY OPPORTUNITIES!
Pre-screened families looking for caring individuals to spend a year as a nanny, $750-3550薪水 per, R & B and aircraf included. Childcare 1-800-937-6264.

2 positions open; working with 5 developmentally disabled adults in group home setting, 6-9am, Mon.-Fri. Afternoon/Evening, Sunday-Thursday. Epton House Association, 332-7653.

1-800-937-6264.

FURNITURE

MUSICAL EQUIPMENT
JIBANE DESTROYER II Electric Guitar; Red/white case, $250/OBO. CRATE GL30 Guitar Amplifier; 2 channel, closed/distortion, $225/OBO. Scott, 852-5687 after 5pm.

Brand New! Dynastar 185 Omega carbon downhill skit (no bindings) $155/OEO. Please call (208)746-4170.

500 SERVICES
House Cleaning. Need your apartment, house or garage cleaned? Give Melvina or Gima a call at 882-8713 (you provide the supplies.)

Heathcare
Nutrition Counseling available Student Health Services *Eating disorders *Weight issues *Heart disease *Cancer prevention *Sports diets Make appointments by calling 885-6693

PHOTOGRAPHY
Any Event, Special Occasion or for Portrait. Call 208/625-6723 for more information.

Typing
Typing; papers, theses, whatever. Good and Quick! Inkjet color available. Call in time, 882-9471

800 LOST & FOUND
Found: Giorgio Armani reading glasses in leather case in Home Economics Bldg. 10/26/94. Call 885-6944

SALES REP WANTED
We’re looking for a dynamic, dedicated & hardworking person to sell advertising. Must have a team attitude & be a registered UI student. Stop by the Argonaut offices Student Union-3rd floor.

$1500 weekly possible making our circulars! For info call 852-8995.

Wanted: House Cleaner for 2 brm, 2 bath apartment. Approximately 2 hours/week.

Cleaning supplies provided. Call 883-3493.

NANNY OPPORTUNITIES!
Pre-screened families looking for caring individuals to spend a year as a nanny, $750-3550薪水 per, R & B and aircraf included. Childcare 1-800-937-6264.

2 positions open; working with 5 developmentally disabled adults in group home setting, 6-9am, Mon.-Fri. Afternoon/Evening, Sunday-Thursday. Epton House Association, 332-7653.

1-800-937-6264.
FEEL THE POWER OF FRIENDSHIP...
FEEL THE POWER OF CARING...
FEEL THE POWER OF POSITIVE CHOICES.

YOU HAVE THE POWER TO...

CHOOSE a healthy lifestyle for yourself.

CHOOSE if, when, and how much you are going to drink.

CHOOSE to stay out of dangerous situations involving alcohol, whether in a car, a bar or a bedroom.

CHOOSE to tell a friend how you feel about her or his drinking, and encourage people close to you to take care of themselves.

CHOOSE to manage your time and priorities, balancing studying and socializing.

CHOOSE positive relationships with diverse people who respect and support the decisions you make.

CHOOSE not to drink without feeling pressure from others.

CHOOSE! it is your right. You have power. Don’t give it away.

For more information contact
Student Advisory Services,
UCC 241, Moscow, Idaho 83844-2431
or call (208) 885-6757