Campus groups celebrate their heritage and the Mexican victory in 18th century invasion

BY ANNE GUARDIN

One-hundred forty years after the Battle of Puebla, University of Idaho students, faculty and community members gathered to celebrate Mexico's victory over France, commonly known as Cinco de Mayo.

"A lot of people think it's an independence day for Mexico, but it's not," said Fabiola Moreno, a junior studying journalism.

The day commemorates the day in 1862 when a small group of Mexican patriots successfully fought all the French army at the Battle of Puebla on May 5th.

Moreno comes from Redwood City, Calif., where she attended much larger Cinco de Mayo (Fifth of May) festivities but said she enjoyed UI's celebration at the SUB Ballroom.

"I've been to the Cinco de Mayo at the university," she said, adding that Cinco de Mayo is a bigger holiday for American Mexicans.

A Miss Guadalupe de Mayo pageant, traditional Mexican food and arts were some of the highlights of UI's celebration, sponsored by ASUI, Organizaciones de Estudiantes Latinoamericanos, CULTURAL, a student organization, and the Office of Multicultural Affairs.

Carmen Lavello, a junior in Chhong, textiles and design, was a contestant in the pageant, which was judged on talent, a presentation and participation in the overall event.

"They really love Cinco de Mayo. It's a different day for us Americans. It's a promotion on," Lavello said. The presentation was described by Lavello as a celebration of the holiday. The important part was not winning but browsing people about Cinco de Mayo, she said. Guadalupe Ramirez, who was crowned Miss Guadalupe de Mayo was the winner of the pageant. She said she did not get to represent the Hispanic people at UI. "I hope I can handle this," Angel said. She also said the pageant was not meant to be competitive, as all the participants knew each other. Bolero had fun," she said.

One President Jaime Barajas estimated about 300 people came and went throughout the day, saying that it was probably the biggest Cinco de Mayo celebration on campus.

"Last year we had it at the Whitewater (in the Commons) and it was packed," he said, which is why the groups decided on the SUB Ballroom this year.

"Cinco de Mayo is a very important right now for Hispanic students."

Member of Sister de la Raza perform "Tamales" Saturday during Cinco de Mayo festivities in the SUB Ballroom.

"This is a Band-Aid on a huge problem. It won't accomplish much," said TAYLOR ADELE.

"We need to focus on the issues, the problems, and the things that need to be done. This is not going to help," said ADELE.

Moscow, Idaho — A 50-year-old man shot himself to death Monday night in a residence in the 100 block of 17th Avenue in downtown Moscow.

A 50-year-old man shot himself in the chest Monday night in a residence in the 100 block of 17th Avenue in downtown Moscow.

The man, who was the owner of the residence, was pronounced dead at the scene by Moscow Police Department and Moscow Fire Rescue personnel.

According to Moscow Police Department, the man was found dead inside the residence by family members.

The incident is being investigated by the Moscow Police Department and the Latah County Coroner's Office.

The man's name has not been released at this time.

In a statement released by the Moscow Police Department, Chief Tim Brawley said:

"We are currently working with the Latah County Coroner's Office to determine the cause of death. We extend our condolences to the family and friends of the deceased.

We ask that the public respect the privacy of the family during this difficult time.

We will provide updates as more information becomes available.

Should anyone have information related to this incident, they are encouraged to contact the Moscow Police Department at 208-882-7033 or anonymously through our tip line at 208-882-70331.

"We are committed to ensuring the safety and well-being of our community. We encourage anyone struggling with mental health issues to seek help at local resources such as the Latah County Suicide Prevention hotline at 208-884-5517 or the National Suicide Prevention Lifeline at 1-800-273-TALK (8255)."

Egg donor program searches for participants

BY SUE BROWN
STAFF ASSOCIATE

CORVALLIS, Ore. — The opportunity for women to help an infertile couple experience childbirth through egg donation is on nearly everyone's radar screen. Oregon Health and Science University is currently advertising an egg donor program, looking for as many donors as possible.

"All egg donors (one I have 25 to 35 people on my waiting list for donors," said Terri Lynn Hickerson, OHSU.

Donors typically receive between $2,500 and $5,000, depending on the donor's age, marital status, and the level of training. Hickerson said the average age of a donor is roughly 30, and donors must be of normal weight and be healthy.

Once the donors have undergone the necessary testing and evaluation, they will undergo a procedure to harvest their eggs. The eggs are then frozen and used to help infertile couples conceive.

The next steps for the donors are to go through a series of health screenings, including blood tests, ultrasounds, and genetic testing. If all goes well, the donors will be matched with a couple and will undergo a series of medical procedures to help them conceive.

The rewards for donors include a modest fee, which can range from $2,500 to $5,000, depending on the program.

We are always looking for new egg donors, Hickerson said. If you or someone you know is interested in becoming an egg donor, please contact us at 885-6469.

It's that time of year again.

horing up our spirits as we enter the holiday season, we must remember that not everyone is blessed with the same opportunities or challenges that we face. We all have our unique stories, and it's important to be mindful of the struggles that others may be facing. In this spirit of giving, let's work to make sure that everyone has a chance to enjoy the holidays as much as we do.

It's the time of year to reach out and show our support for those in need. Whether it's through volunteering, donating to a local charity, or simply spreading kindness through words of encouragement, we can make a difference in someone's life. Let's come together as a community and make this holiday season one of kindness and compassion.

We wish you all a safe and joyful holiday season. Thank you for your support and for being a part of our community. Let's continue to work together to make a positive impact in the world.

Variety, culture warm up Renaissance Fair

BY BRIAN PARREY

E ven the cold weather Saturday and Sunday didn’t stop the crowds from coming over the weekend as food vendors, artisans, musicians and theatrical performers converged in downtown Austin to celebrate art, music and culture.
“Attendance was pretty good considering the weather,” said J.R. Brown, the festival’s general director. “Saturday, however, did seem to be somewhat affected by the weather.”
But the variety offered by the fair was still there to entertain and amuse.
Many fairgoers were appalled in Renaissance era fashion and atmosphere to embrace a Renaissance fest in celebration of the arts.
Being and bluegrass fairs were set up around the fair and vendors sold and served food and drinks.

“We worked together and pulled off another great Renaissance Fair.”

PETER BADGA PERFORMER DIRECTOR

There were workshops of various activities, from running the stand to selling art, also activities in a Ren fest kids area where children could make and experience all sorts of crafts.

The opportunity to see and perform in a traditional fair with actors, artisans, musicians and other performers from across the United States was the inspiration for Renaissance Fairs. They are popular events that attract thousands of visitors each year.

'Spider-Man' spins gold at the box office as it swings into theaters

Though, that he is still young and not at the superhuman level. There will be plenty of room for growth and development in the sequels.

The chemistry between Maguire and Duvall is evident in every scene, even in the times when the former is not quite right for his character. In what will probably be the best role of the year as Mary Jane, Duvall perfectly embodies the spiky, sharp-edged Mary Jane Parker, a shy but shrewd and extremely intelligent high school student. Maguire's screen presence is completely believable, just as Parker. As Spider-Man, Maguire still seems like the kid in the mask, not only when he's wussing, but when he's acting as an actress, he works as a Writers' Room, and has an idealistic natural quality that makes him the perfect fit for Spider-Man's anti-hero role.

There's a scene where Spider-Man reveals his identity to a group of his friends and the way that it's handled is perfect. It's a scene that's both funny and serious, and it's a moment that's really moving for the audience.

The film is about power, and it's about the idea that power doesn't come from being a superhero, but from being a human being.

MTV: The bad and ugly of family life is now cool

MTV has big plans for the future. It's not just about music and entertainment anymore. The network is planning to take on new challenges and explore new frontiers.

MTV's new approach is all about the family. The network is planning to release a new series called "The Bad and the Ugly of Family Life," which will explore the complex and often tumultuous relationship between parents and children.

The show will be a reality series that will follow a family as they navigate the challenges of raising children in today's society. The series will feature different families from different backgrounds and with different lifestyles, but all with one thing in common: the desire to do what's best for their children.

The series will be produced by MTV's new vice president of unscripted programming, who is a former executive at NBC Universal.

The show is set to premiere in the fall, and will air on MTV. It will be a 13-episode series, and the network is planning to release it simultaneously in multiple countries around the world.

"The Bad and the Ugly of Family Life" is just the beginning of MTV's new approach. The network is planning to release several more reality series that will explore different aspects of family life, including parenting, marriage, and healthcare.

The network is also planning to release a new reality series called "The Family Life Challenge," which will follow a family as they learn to live with their own unique set of challenges.

"The Family Life Challenge" will be produced by a different executive, and will air on a different network. The show is set to premiere in the spring.

MTV is planning to release several more reality series throughout the year, and is looking to expand its audience to include a wider range of viewers.

The network is also looking to explore new markets, such as the Middle East, where it has seen significant growth in recent years.

Overall, MTV is planning to take on new challenges and explore new frontiers. The network is looking to expand its audience and to create new content that will appeal to a wider range of viewers.

Track and field notch solid performances at Vandal Jamboree

BY JAKE ALCUT

ARGONAUT SPORTS

Saturday's track and field meet at Mesa College featured several solid performances from UI's four conference teams.

The Vandals have only this Saturday's McDonald's Outdoor here before the Big West Championships May 15-16 in Irvine, Calif.

At Sunday's meet, which took place at Ben Christo Track and Field Complex, four teams in the Pacific-10 were in attendance.

At the women's meet, Washington State did its best to give neutral fans a show.

The Washington State team was led by three seniors, including 360-pounder Jeff Johnson, the team's most impressive, who won the 440-meter hurdles with a time of 54.8 seconds.

The University of Utah

The University of Utah is also on the rise, according to the latest polls.

The Utes are ranked fourth in the country, one spot behind the second-place team, the University of Arizona.

The team has taken three of its last six meets, including a win over Oregon State last weekend.

If Utah can continue to perform well, it could become a factor in the conference championships.

The University of Oregon

The University of Oregon, which was ranked third in the country last season, has struggled to reproduce its previous success.

The team is currently ranked 13th, but has performed well in recent meets.

In its last meet, Oregon faced off against Washington State and scored 180 points, compared to Washington State's 130.

The meet was held at the University of Oregon's Hayward Field.

The men's team is led by junior Jeff Peterson, who has won three conference titles this season.

The women's team is led by freshman Marie Phipps, who has won three conference titles this season.
