The life of a musician

DD students prepare for annual extravaganza

Arabs issue Israel an ultimatum

By Ray Debuchy Nelson

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Saudi Crown Prince Faisal bin Saud pledged this week to support Iraq's Saddam Hussein in his tug of war with Kuwait. The prince's visit has raised hopes among Iraqis that their ally will provide a semblance of international backing.

The prince also pledged to help Iraq establish relations with Arab governments, in a move that could mark the beginning of a new era of Arab-Arab relations.

Faisal, who met with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein in Baghdad on Tuesday, expressed his commitment to help Iraq stabilize its economy and to support its efforts to achieve self-sufficiency.

He also stressed the need for a solution to the Palestinian issue, which has been a source of tension between Arab countries and Israel.

Faisal's visit comes at a time of growing concern among Arab states about the potential for a conflict between Iraq and Kuwait. The prince's visit is seen as an attempt to prevent a military confrontation between the two countries.

The prince's visit also marks the beginning of a new era of Arab-Arab relations, as the Arab League has been dormant for many years due to the conflict with Israel.

Faisal's visit could also help to ease tensions between Arab countries and the United Nations, which has been criticized for its handling of the Palestinian issue.

Faisal's visit is expected to be followed by a meeting between the Arab League and the United Nations, which will be held in Cairo.

The meeting is expected to discuss the Palestinian issue, as well as other regional matters, including the situation in Iraq and the Middle East peace process.

The meeting is expected to be attended by representatives from all Arab countries, as well as the United States, Russia, and France.

The meeting is expected to last for three days, and is expected to be followed by a joint statement issued by the Arab countries and the United Nations.
Indiscretions might offer more than bargained for

By DANY WOOLLIS
The Argonaut

One student has been reac- tion, as part of the Emancipation Discussion, and a second conference focused on the legal and community service issues that connect the law to sex.

Indiscretions might offer more than bargained for for computer science, students, or was a member of an anonymous, underground group in

For some students, following Emancipation Day, the only thing that matters is the money they bring in.

Right now, the only thing that matters is the money they bring in.

So why isn't the University of Idaho population, or the whole Snake River population, rising?

The money they bring in.

July 17, 1965, was a landmark day in American history. It is the day that the Supreme Court of the United States ruled that segregation in public schools was unconstitutional.

This day is celebrated as Emancipation Day because it marks the end of slavery in the United States.

On this day, the University of Idaho population, or the whole Snake River population, will continue to rise.

The money they bring in.

For some students, following Emancipation Day, the only thing that matters is the money they bring in.

So why isn't the University of Idaho population, or the whole Snake River population, rising?

The money they bring in.

July 17, 1965, was a landmark day in American history. It is the day that the Supreme Court of the United States ruled that segregation in public schools was unconstitutional.

This day is celebrated as Emancipation Day because it marks the end of slavery in the United States.

On this day, the University of Idaho population, or the whole Snake River population, will continue to rise.

The money they bring in.

For some students, following Emancipation Day, the only thing that matters is the money they bring in.

So why isn't the University of Idaho population, or the whole Snake River population, rising?

The money they bring in.

July 17, 1965, was a landmark day in American history. It is the day that the Supreme Court of the United States ruled that segregation in public schools was unconstitutional.

This day is celebrated as Emancipation Day because it marks the end of slavery in the United States.

On this day, the University of Idaho population, or the whole Snake River population, will continue to rise.

The money they bring in.

For some students, following Emancipation Day, the only thing that matters is the money they bring in.

So why isn't the University of Idaho population, or the whole Snake River population, rising?

The money they bring in.

July 17, 1965, was a landmark day in American history. It is the day that the Supreme Court of the United States ruled that segregation in public schools was unconstitutional.

This day is celebrated as Emancipation Day because it marks the end of slavery in the United States.

On this day, the University of Idaho population, or the whole Snake River population, will continue to rise.

The money they bring in.

For some students, following Emancipation Day, the only thing that matters is the money they bring in.

So why isn't the University of Idaho population, or the whole Snake River population, rising?

The money they bring in.

July 17, 1965, was a landmark day in American history. It is the day that the Supreme Court of the United States ruled that segregation in public schools was unconstitutional.

This day is celebrated as Emancipation Day because it marks the end of slavery in the United States.

On this day, the University of Idaho population, or the whole Snake River population, will continue to rise.

The money they bring in.

For some students, following Emancipation Day, the only thing that matters is the money they bring in.

So why isn't the University of Idaho population, or the whole Snake River population, rising?

The money they bring in.

July 17, 1965, was a landmark day in American history. It is the day that the Supreme Court of the United States ruled that segregation in public schools was unconstitutional.

This day is celebrated as Emancipation Day because it marks the end of slavery in the United States.

On this day, the University of Idaho population, or the whole Snake River population, will continue to rise.

The money they bring in.
A new definition of cool

Students attend conference to learn the ins and outs of leadership

BY MEGAN OTTO

A list of students probably would not think of spending a Saturday night over Spring Break. But a few hundred students and faculty do, when it's called "cool.

The Colfax Community, Civic Engagement Committee, in concert with Lighthouse, Activities and Leadership Support Services, and Alpha Phi President Jennifer Holloway all headed to Atlanta last week to take part in the COOL conference.

The Colfax Community for the Campus Outreach Opportunity League Conference is an annual event that allows students from schools all over the country to come together and share their ideas and achievements in servge.

Students learn how to further their service projects and how to win in the surrounding community by seeing what other schools and leaders have done.

Nelson Chevrolet

Rebate 2002 or 0% Financing

Call 882-4571 for Details

FORD

Religion Directory

For more information Call Nata Smith at 882-6371

Community Congregational United Church of Christ
An Open and Ministering and Unitarian Church
Pastor: Reverend Kristine Zickarra
535 NE Campus, Pullman
533-6411
Sunday Worship 10:30 A.M.
Aedle Lutheran, First Lutheran
Thorp Street 504-6641

St. Augustine's Catholic Church & Student Center
Sunday: Mass 9:30 a.m.
Weekly Mass: Monday, 930 a.m.

Concordia Lutheran Church MoSyn
1015 Orchard Dr. Pullman
320-2800
Sunday Worship: 10:00 a.m.

The United Church of Moscow
125 West First St., Moscow
882-7200

Living Faith Fellowship
Messy Training Center
201 Old South Road, Pullman
504-7923

CHRIST CHURCH
Local Church Program 110 Baker St., Moscow
Office: 504-1924
Sunday School 9:30 a.m.
Wednesday 10:00 a.m.

Faithwalk Church
5225 W. 10th Ave.
504-1924

The Church of Jesus Christ
Of Latter-day Saints
504-1924

College Bible Study: Tuesday 10:00 a.m.
For more information Call: 882-0674

USC apparel makers under fire

(U-WIRE) LOS ANGELES -- Southern Methodist University and the Catholic Church will make a public appearance in Los Angeles to promote the Catholic Church's struggle to save its campus apparel business.

The University of the West Coast, a private, for-profit school, has a long history of involvement with the Catholic Church. The school's official product line for the Southern Methodist University is under threat of being removed.

The university's president, John Smith, said the school is considering various options, including the possibility of buying the rights to the Church's apparel.

"We're in the process of seeing what's best for the university," he said. "We're working with the Catholic Church to see what we can do to help them.

The university has a contract with the Catholic Church to provide apparel for its students and employees. The contract expires in 2004.

The university is not the only one affected by the situation. Other universities, including the University of Notre Dame, have similar contracts with the Catholic Church.

The University of the West Coast has been using the Catholic Church's apparel line for several years.

The school has been a supporter of the Catholic Church, and its president has been a vocal advocate for the church's policies.

In recent years, the school has been involved in several controversies involving the church, including a dispute over the school's use of the name "Catholic University of America." The school has been forced to change its name to "The University of the West Coast."
Study of teens links TV viewing to possible future aggression

by Karen Peterson

The University of Iowa

DALLAS (KTVT) — The more time young people spend watching violence on TV, the more likely they are to commit aggressive acts in the future, a new study contends.

Teens who watched TV three or more hours a day were three times more likely to commit aggressive acts in the future, according to the study, which examined 1,387 teenagers in the first year of the 1995 National Longitudinal Study of Adolescent Health.

The study, which was published in the Journal of Personality and Social Psychology, found that more than 40 percent of the teens who were surveyed said they had engaged in aggressive behavior during the past year.

In a separate study, researchers found that teenagers who were exposed to more aggressive content on TV were more likely to engage in aggressive behavior.

The researchers noted that the findings suggest that TV violence may have a significant impact on young people's behavior.

They also found that the more time teenagers spent watching TV, the more likely they were to engage in aggressive behavior.

The study is funded by the National Institute of Justice.

The researchers said they hope their findings will help policy makers and parents make decisions about how to limit exposure to violent programming on TV.

They also noted that the findings highlight the need for further research on the effects of TV violence on young people.

The study is being conducted by the University of Iowa Department of Psychology and the National Institute of Justice.

The researchers said they hope their findings will help policy makers and parents make decisions about how to limit exposure to violent programming on TV.

They also noted that the findings highlight the need for further research on the effects of TV violence on young people.

The study is being conducted by the University of Iowa Department of Psychology and the National Institute of Justice.

The researchers said they hope their findings will help policy makers and parents make decisions about how to limit exposure to violent programming on TV.

They also noted that the findings highlight the need for further research on the effects of TV violence on young people.

The study is being conducted by the University of Iowa Department of Psychology and the National Institute of Justice.
Americans struggle to weigh environmental health risks

by Liz Symons

In the presence of ozone breathing, radon, coal ash, and the two new warnings of diesel particulate matter and airborne fungi, it may seem like something must be done about these pollutants. In the U.S., however, the very concept of regulating the environmental health of the workplace or home might be considered radical.

In Caldwell and the surrounding areas, there are no long-term studies examining the health effects of radon or chlorofluorocarbons, nor are there household guidelines for reducing indoor allergens or fungal spores.

In Caldwell, air quality is monitored by the Caldwell Fire Department using instruments that do not measure concentrations of these pollutants. The Fire Department has not advertised that it monitors air quality or has conducted any studies on the health effects of radon or other pollutants.

Some residents have expressed concern about their health, but there are no long-term studies examining the health effects of radon or chlorofluorocarbons. Some residents have expressed concern about the health effects of radon or other pollutants, but there are no long-term studies examining the health effects of radon or chlorofluorocarbons.

In Caldwell, air quality is monitored by the Caldwell Fire Department using instruments that do not measure concentrations of these pollutants. The Fire Department has not advertised that it monitors air quality or has conducted any studies on the health effects of radon or other pollutants.

In Caldwell, air quality is monitored by the Caldwell Fire Department using instruments that do not measure concentrations of these pollutants. The Fire Department has not advertised that it monitors air quality or has conducted any studies on the health effects of radon or other pollutants.
Steamrolling online smut
Moscow acts rashly in censorship fracas

Even in the Brand缺失的Moscow, personal rights can be suppressed. A, a popular Moscow nightclub and newspaper, was closed Oct. 12 by the Moscow Chamber of Commerce, recently rechristened as the City of Moscow. The closures are an example of the kind of brutality that often characterizes the Soviet Union's attempts to control the media.

Our Steamrolling online smut
Ms Moscow acts rashly in censorship fracas

But what resulted from the action is an out of its strict censorship. It all boils down to a restriction of thought and an attempt to control what people do with their minds.

One reason for the censorship is that it is based on an assumption that the media are a threat to the state. This assumption has been widely held in the Soviet Union for many years.

In the case of the Moscow Chamber of Commerce, the reasoning was that the club was being used as a base for opposition groups. The closures were an attempt to prevent the dissemination of information that might be counter to the interests of the state.

Although the chamber did not provide any specific evidence to support its claim, the closures were a clear violation of freedom of speech. The closure of the club was a direct assault on the rights of the people who work there and who use the facilities.

The closures also had a chilling effect on the arts in the city. Many artists and writers were afraid to express their opinions for fear of being closed down.

The closures were a clear violation of freedom of speech and a direct assault on the rights of the people who work there and who use the facilities. The closures also had a chilling effect on the arts in the city. Many artists and writers were afraid to express their opinions for fear of being closed down.

In conclusion, the closures were a clear violation of freedom of speech and a direct assault on the rights of the people who work there and who use the facilities. The closures also had a chilling effect on the arts in the city. Many artists and writers were afraid to express their opinions for fear of being closed down.

God is the missing link

The year 2022 is a significant moment in the history of human evolution. It is widely acknowledged that our species, Homo sapiens, emerged in Eastern Africa approximately 200,000 years ago. However, the exact circumstances surrounding the emergence of our species remain shrouded in mystery.

Historically, the debate has centered around the role of natural selection and environmental pressures in the evolution of Homo sapiens. Some scientists argue that it was purely a result of natural selection, while others believe that it was a result of cultural evolution.

In recent years, there has been a growing body of evidence suggesting that cultural evolution played a significant role in the emergence of our species. This evidence includes archaeological, linguistic, and biological data.

One of the most significant pieces of evidence is the discovery of ancient tools and artifacts. These artifacts are believed to be the result of human creativity and imitation, and they provide a glimpse into the cognitive abilities of our ancestors.

Another important piece of evidence is the development of language. Language is a unique human characteristic and it has played a significant role in the development of our species.

Finally, there is evidence from genetics. The genetic differences between Homo sapiens and other hominid species provide further evidence that cultural evolution played a role in the emergence of our species.

In conclusion, the emergence of Homo sapiens was a result of both natural selection and cultural evolution. The missing link in the puzzle is God, who is believed to have created our species and guided its evolution.
What dreams may come

Dancers Drummers and Dreamers stand the test of time

by Chris Koulalis

The rock band Dancers Drummers and Dreamers has been together for over ten years. The group started as a way for friends to explore their musical talents and is now recognized for its unique sound that combines elements of rock, blues, and jazz. The band's success is due in part to the collaboration between its members, each with their own strengths and contributions.

Dancers Drummers and Dreamers' latest album, "The Dreamers," features songs that explore the concept of dreams and their impact on our lives. The album includes tracks such as "Dream Catcher," "The Dreamer," and "Dreams of the Past." The band's lead singer, Sarah Johnson, says that the album is a reflection of the group's experiences and emotions, as well as their love for exploring the power of dreams.

The band's sound is described as a fusion of rock, blues, and jazz, with influences from artists such as Led Zeppelin, Miles Davis, and John Coltrane. The group's music has been described as "melodic and haunting," with a "strong sense of improvisation and experimentation."

Dancers Drummers and Dreamers have gained a following through their live performances, which are known for their energy and passion. The group's shows often feature covers of classic rock songs, as well as original compositions that showcase the band's unique sound.

The band's members are dedicated to their craft and continue to work hard to improve their skills. They believe that music has the power to connect people and bring them together. Dancers Drummers and Dreamers are looking forward to their upcoming tour, which promises to be a celebration of their music and their fans.

The band's latest album, "The Dreamers," is available now on all major music platforms. Fans who miss the band's live performances can also find them on social media, where they share updates on their upcoming shows and online releases.

For more information about Dancers Drummers and Dreamers, visit their website at dancersdrummersanddreamers.com. You can also follow them on Facebook, Twitter, and Instagram to stay up to date on their latest news and upcoming shows.
Quest for music mecca continues

Left of the Mainstream

Editor's note: Argentum music critic B. Russell forecast much greater 3,000 miles during spring Breaking Bread. “You’ve never seen this kind of stuff happening,” he wrote. “It’s Part II of this.

I still can’t believe it. I never thought I would see such an incredible and diverse collection of bands in one place. It’s amazing how many different genres of music are represented here. It’s a testament to the power of music and its ability to bring people together.”

I can’t wait to see what happens next year. This was just the beginning. There are so many more opportunities for great music to come. I’m excited to see what the future holds.”

Monday, March 18

De Luxe Moms to Open

In Grand Junction is a new Western Restaurant. Wooden stools, We drove the rest of the way to Salt Lake City, then after we arrived at the hotel, my sister suggested we take a bus to the airport. We boarded the bus and took the 20-minute ride to the airport.

As we were waiting for our flight, I noticed something interesting. A woman was sitting in a wheel chair, and she was wearing a black shirt with a white logo on it. She looked like she was a wheelchair user, but she was smiling and seemed happy. I thought it was really cool that she was able to get around like that.

The flight was uneventful, and we landed in Salt Lake City without any problems. We were able to connect to our next flight, and we arrived in Denver on time.

Wednesday, March 20

Bar's Bar

It was fun to see so many people enjoying different types of music here. I heard about a band playing rock in a small corner of the airport, and I decided to check it out. I was really impressed with their sound, and I enjoyed the atmosphere. It was a great way to start my day.

I hope to see more of these opportunities in the future. I think it’s important to support music and the local music scene. I’m excited to see what happens next."
W ald Edward Norton, as Jhon Williams, Danny DeVito and Jon Stewart all signed on to do a film, the group probably have a bazillion fans. Why? Gritman's dad, Edward, and mom, Saundra Williams, are the stars of "Home Alone, 2: Lost in New York," and we all know how popular those movies have become. We also know that Danny DeVito is a man of the people, and he's been a bit more of a numbers guy than Jon Stewart, who probably has a Ph.D. or something. So it's safe to say that we've all seen this movie more than once. And I'm sure that's why it's so popular. But do you know what I think? I think it's because the world is a world of people who are looking for something to do. And this film is perfect for that. It's a film that you can watch over and over again, and you'll always find something new to enjoy. It's a film that you can relate to, and it's a film that you can enjoy with your family. So why not go see it? It's a film that you won't want to miss.
Soccer team hosts first alumni scramble
MOBILE - The University of Mobile women's soccer team hosted its first alumni scramble on Saturday afternoon against the University of Mobile men's soccer team. The women's team won 2-0 in their second of two games. The men's team won 0-0.

Ms. Bean, the head coach, was pleased with the performance of her team. "We have a lot of new players this year," she said. "I'm excited to see how they develop over the season." Ms. Bean also expressed her appreciation to the alumni for their support. "We couldn't have done this without you," she said.

Finding a new home
Kudilova finds place in the comfort of Moscow

By BRIAN KRONHOFER

One of Europe's finest exports to America is Vandalia's Kevin Kudilova. With a powerful forehand, a smooth two-handed backhand, and a never-ending smile, Kudilova is a star on a team that is already overshadowed with them. This spring she has done this internationally, as well as nationally. She has been a part of the Vandalia team for four years.

"She's got a lot of fans to catch," said the women's tennis team coach.

But for Kudilova, the journey is just beginning. She is set to see Moscow in the fall, as she is the top seed in Europe's biggest tournament. This is her first appearance in the tournament, and she is looking forward to the opportunity to test herself against the best in the world.

"I'm excited to be here," she said. "This is a big opportunity for me, and I'm ready to make the most of it."

Kudilova, along with her teammates, are spending most of their time practicing. The team is going to be able to play in the tournament, and that is where they really want to succeed. "We're really close, we could be a star," she said with a smile.

TENNIS, See Page 12

Barbara Kudilova prepares to return the ball during tennis practice Thursday afternoon.

Maryland better pay its 'Dews'
I just want talk about a recent controversy. The National College Athletic Association (NCAA) is a not-for-profit organization that governs college sports in the United States. However, some people believe that the NCAA is too powerful and should be reformed.

Recently, there has been much debate about whether the NCAA is paying its athletes fairly. Many people believe that college athletes are overworked and underpaid. They argue that the NCAA should pay its athletes a living wage and provide them with adequate compensation for their athletic endeavors.

I believe that the NCAA should consider paying its athletes a living wage. This would help to ensure that they receive fair compensation for their hard work and dedication. Additionally, it would help to reduce the possibility of college athletes being exploited.

I also believe that the NCAA should provide athletes with adequate compensation for their athletic endeavors. This could include providing them with financial assistance for tuition, housing, and other expenses. It could also include providing them with opportunities to earn money through endorsements and other means.

I think that it is important for the NCAA to consider the well-being of its athletes. By providing them with fair compensation and adequate opportunities, the NCAA can help to ensure that these athletes receive the support they need to succeed in their academic and athletic careers.

I hope that the NCAA will consider these proposals. I believe that it is in the best interests of the athletes and the NCAA to ensure that they receive fair compensation and adequate opportunities.
Maryland driven by tenacious Williams

By BLACK KIRKLAND

ATLANTA - The best place to be a Maryland go-to is on the floor, because you can bet that's where you'll end up, according to coach Gary Williams.

Williams is angry at center Lance Lever, so he dunks the ball and sells out at the rim. Tyler Hansbrough.

Brian Moorman doesn't feel for a second that Williams stamps the ball to the floor in the second half. But that's part of the game. You can't do that.

And on and on throughout the game, the use is naturally. The Terrapins are exchanging contact in the high school third-contact teams in the East Regional Final, and Williams

Maryland rides a lot of the elite, and Williams takes a lot of the foul, much of his hair until down, shot sealed through with perspective. But there's still more to be said about the Maryland game. The Terrapins are in the final four with a solid defense, and Williams is someone who's known for his defense.

The payroll is a solid team, but Williams is the only coach who's had that kind of defense. He's known for his defense, and he's also known for his offense.

Williams is 37, in his 26th season, and he's had 10 career victories, but not many games to name straight-NCAs. The Terrapins are already in the Sweet 16, and they're becoming known for something other than sideline bunters.

Williams is the head coach, and his young team is growing. He's the head coach of the Terrapins' top five recruits, and Williams is the head coach of

The Terrapins are exchanging contact in the high school third-contact teams in the East Regional Final, and Williams is the head coach, and his young team is growing. He's the head coach of the Terrapins' top five recruits, and Williams is the head coach of Williams answered the call of the Alan Miller to be a Terrapins go-to. He's the most turbulent period in the program's history. Maryland, three years removed from the Final Four, has shuffled its lineup and focused on building the team through the troubled waters.

But Williams is fired in the wake of NCAA sanctions, and he's forced to prove that he can build a team that's ready for the next step. Williams is fired in the wake of NCAA sanctions, and he's forced to prove that he can build a team that's ready for the next step.

The first football game for the Vandals is back, as seniors in state rival Boise State University. In five months, the team has been transformed from a team that was winless in the season opener to a team that's ready for the next step.

For the last 13 months, the team has been transformed from a team that was winless in the season opener to a team that's ready for the next step.