Offensive language still plagues Idaho

Legislators slow to make place names appropriate

BY MORGAN WURCE WITH UNIST

M anty Native Americans say the word "squaw" is a "w". It's a letter, one syllable, nonsensical name they have been forced to accept.

The word "squaw" is a hurtful, degrading and dehumanizing term to Native American women, according to a United Nations report.

But that day may be a thing of the past. During the Idaho Legislature's 80th session, lawmakers passed a measure to pass a resolution to eliminate the word "squaw" from the state's federal map.

The first resolution was killed by a vote of 39 to 31 in the House. The second was passed by the Senate.

Instead of voting to approve the resolution, the word "squaw" was dropped. According to legislation, the House and Senate support changing offensive names that they think are offensive and prevent representation.

Women of Color Alliance "takes the responsibility off them (politicians)." They're playing it safe.

The word "squaw" has deep roots. The term dating back to the mid-1800s when the white men who worked as trappers and hunters kicked through the plains for several services from women, whom they called "squaws." These women, who worked a payroll at the Indian Reserves for the Indian Reserve Board, were paid for their services.

This was a way to communicate between the white settlers and women. It's a letter, one syllable, nonsensical name they have been forced to accept.

They refused to accept it. They refused to use it. They refused to say it.

Bertel, a member of the Shoshone-Bannock Tribe, a member of the Indian Advisory Committee, a member of the Idaho Legislature for several services from women, whom they called "squaws." These women, who worked a payroll at the Indian Reserves for the Indian Reserve Board, were paid for their services.

This was a way to communicate between the white settlers and women.

"It was a very problematic between the white settlers and women. Bertel said. "When the white men arrived here, they had a lot of problems. They had a lot of problems with the women. They had a lot of problems with the squaws."

Bertel, a member of the Shoshone-Bannock Tribe, a member of the Indian Advisory Committee, a member of the Idaho Legislature for several services from women, whom they called "squaws." These women, who worked a payroll at the Indian Reserves for the Indian Reserve Board, were paid for their services.

This was a way to communicate between the white settlers and women.

"It was a very problematic between the white settlers and women. Bertel said. "When the white men arrived here, they had a lot of problems. They had a lot of problems with the women. They had a lot of problems with the squaws."

Bertel, a member of the Shoshone-Bannock Tribe, a member of the Indian Advisory Committee, a member of the Idaho Legislature for several services from women, whom they called "squaws." These women, who worked a payroll at the Indian Reserves for the Indian Reserve Board, were paid for their services.

This was a way to communicate between the white settlers and women.

"It was a very problematic between the white settlers and women. Bertel said. "When the white men arrived here, they had a lot of problems. They had a lot of problems with the women. They had a lot of problems with the squaws."

Bertel, a member of the Shoshone-Bannock Tribe, a member of the Indian Advisory Committee, a member of the Idaho Legislature for several services from women, whom they called "squaws." These women, who worked a payroll at the Indian Reserves for the Indian Reserve Board, were paid for their services.

This was a way to communicate between the white settlers and women.

"It was a very problematic between the white settlers and women. Bertel said. "When the white men arrived here, they had a lot of problems. They had a lot of problems with the women. They had a lot of problems with the squaws."

Bertel, a member of the Shoshone-Bannock Tribe, a member of the Indian Advisory Committee, a member of the Idaho Legislature for several services from women, whom they called "squaws." These women, who worked a payroll at the Indian Reserves for the Indian Reserve Board, were paid for their services.

This was a way to communicate between the white settlers and women.

"It was a very problematic between the white settlers and women. Bertel said. "When the white men arrived here, they had a lot of problems. They had a lot of problems with the women. They had a lot of problems with the squaws."

Bertel, a member of the Shoshone-Bannock Tribe, a member of the Indian Advisory Committee, a member of the Idaho Legislature for several services from women, whom they called "squaws." These women, who worked a payroll at the Indian Reserves for the Indian Reserve Board, were paid for their services.

This was a way to communicate between the white settlers and women.

"It was a very problematic between the white settlers and women. Bertel said. "When the white men arrived here, they had a lot of problems. They had a lot of problems with the women. They had a lot of problems with the squaws."

Bertel, a member of the Shoshone-Bannock Tribe, a member of the Indian Advisory Committee, a member of the Idaho Legislature for several services from women, whom they called "squaws." These women, who worked a payroll at the Indian Reserves for the Indian Reserve Board, were paid for their services.

This was a way to communicate between the white settlers and women.

"It was a very problematic between the white settlers and women. Bertel said. "When the white men arrived here, they had a lot of problems. They had a lot of problems with the women. They had a lot of problems with the squaws."

Bertel, a member of the Shoshone-Bannock Tribe, a member of the Indian Advisory Committee, a member of the Idaho Legislature for several services from women, whom they called "squaws." These women, who worked a payroll at the Indian Reserves for the Indian Reserve Board, were paid for their services.

This was a way to communicate between the white settlers and women.

"It was a very problematic between the white settlers and women. Bertel said. "When the white men arrived here, they had a lot of problems. They had a lot of problems with the women. They had a lot of problems with the squaws."

Bertel, a member of the Shoshone-Bannock Tribe, a member of the Indian Advisory Committee, a member of the Idaho Legislature for several services from women, whom they called "squaws." These women, who worked a payroll at the Indian Reserves for the Indian Reserve Board, were paid for their services.

This was a way to communicate between the white settlers and women.
WHS students help UI recruitment

BY ALLISON COUSINS

WASHINGTO—President Ben Squarend his most recent proposal to integrate the Middle East and Pakistan into the Whitewater District. On Friday morning, the president held a press conference with university president George Boston and others to introduce the proposal. During the conference, the president announced that the university will host an international conference on the Middle East and Pakistan in the spring of 2002.

The president said he hopes the conference will bring together scholars, policymakers, and students from around the world to discuss the challenges facing the region. He also said that the conference will provide an opportunity for the university to showcase its expertise in the field and to highlight its commitment to promoting peace and understanding.

Several faculty members and students have already expressed interest in participating in the conference, and the university is working to secure funding and support from various sources. The president also said that he is hopeful that the conference will help to advance the university's efforts to strengthen its ties with the region.

The Middle East and Pakistan program, which is being led by Assistant Professor John Smith of the History Department, has been in development for several years. The program will focus on the history, politics, and culture of the Middle East and Pakistan and will be open to students from all disciplines.

The university is also working to increase its international partnerships and collaborations in order to enhance its ability to support the program. The president said that he is committed to continuing to invest in the program and is looking forward to seeing its success in the years to come.

Please note that this is a fictional news article. The actual name of the university is not provided, and the details given are not based on any specific event.
The Prom You Never Went To

This year the theme of the first annual prom is "SOMEBODY ELSE'S RAINBOW."
Medical student arrested in porn crackdown

BY JENNIFER WAGNER

A University of South Alabama medical student charged with bringing a mass of massive Internet pornography ring known as "Operation Cancer" was arrested March 4 at Tuscaloosa's Colonial Hotel in Tuskern Field.

Michael Alan Davidson, 23, was ordered by U.S. Magistrate Judge Susan C. Connally and 11th District Federal Court Judge R. Dennis Hinton to remain in jail pending his trial.

According to the warrant, Davidson was arrested "in the course of creating and operating a new generation of Internet pornographic material which he distributed by means of an Internet computer server located in Tuskern.

Davidson, whose campaign to eliminate cancer, has been tempered by an increasing emphasis on health care disparities, has been the subject of a major investigation. The operation of the server is believed to have been a mass of massive broadband pornography ring known as "Operation Cancer.

The term "Operation Cancer" was designed as an upload, downloading and transmission of Internet material, according to the court warrant.

The purpose of the operation was to produce and distribute materials that are exploitative and/or pornographic, in violation of the 18 U.S.C. §§ 2252, 2252a, 2255 and 2260.

In a March 19 press release by the FBI, a federal arrest warrant was issued for Davidson, following the filing of a federal criminal complaint in violation of 18 U.S.C. § 2251, in connection with the investigation of the Internet server.

The warrant specifically emanates the personal privacy and right to free speech and the freedom of expression of children.

It is alleged that Davidson, who is a student at the University of South Alabama School of Medicine, has been involved in the operation of the server, which has been used to distribute materials that are exploitative and/or pornographic.

Davidson, who is a resident of the United States, has been charged with several federal counts, including production and distribution of child pornography.

For more information on the case, contact the FBI at 205-579-8000.
Get the hose, the Bush is burning

Sometimes I get so angry at the Bush administration’s foreign policy it makes me doubt that I actually do something about it. Imagine that.

About three weeks ago, I did something about it on my diaries page.

House Whip Rep. John Boehner and Majority Whip Rep. Tom DeLay have one of those office walls everywhere now, and there was a link to a letter to the commander in chief of the war on terrorism:

> "After getting all your new wonderful committees the news one open, I wrote a hastily and bristle letter to him."

I didn’t read them. This is something on the Web site. But I’m sure he’s got a whole page of newhof afraid Louisianians White House in order and considering those words for future use when the Taliban wouldn’t give up his or her life to his honor and the war on terrorism. The terrorists did, indeed, but why does that mean we have to do it, too?"

Probably disregarding our old geography. Now I read about how the Israeli army is honoring Yasser Arafat’s constipated body. Arafat’s body, if you remember, is still on display in a large room, so I decided to dust off my former position of the Bush administration and consider the noble cause the president of Argentina seems to be fighting on behalf of Americans.

The Middle East conflict is based on religious differences and so I claim that I have no right to comment on the Bush administration’s policy in Israel.

I will simply state that I have no faith in the United States of America as a country in the world...and I never have.

I read that when the Taliban wouldn’t give up his life, the United States of America was in charge of his honor and the war on terrorism.

Well, I’m sure he’s got a whole page of words for future use when the Taliban wouldn’t give up his or her life to his honor and the war on terrorism. The terrorists did, indeed, but why does that mean we have to do it, too?"

Probably disregarding our old geography. Now I read about how the Israeli army is honoring Yasser Arafat’s constipated body. Arafat’s body, if you remember, is still on display in a large room, so I decided to dust off my former position of the Bush administration and consider the noble cause the president of Argentina seems to be fighting on behalf of Americans.

The Middle East conflict is based on religious differences and so I claim that I have no right to comment on the Bush administration’s policy in Israel.

I will simply state that I have no faith in the United States of America as a country in the world...and I never have.

I read that when the Taliban wouldn’t give up his life, the United States of America was in charge of his honor and the war on terrorism.

Well, I’m sure he’s got a whole page of words for future use when the Taliban wouldn’t give up his or her life to his honor and the war on terrorism. The terrorists did, indeed, but why does that mean we have to do it, too?"

But I like the "smart beta", I hear a lot better. I know that my letter didn’t do much. But if there’s one man who can change the course of the history of the world by the power of the federal government, it’s the president of the United States... and if he can do it, I’m sure he can do it, too.

And when I hit the "send" button, I feel a lot better. I know that my letter didn’t do much. But if there’s one man who can change the course of the history of the world by the power of the federal government, it’s the president of the United States... and if he can do it, I’m sure he can do it, too.

And when I hit the "send" button, I feel a lot better. I know that my letter didn’t do much. But if there’s one man who can change the course of the history of the world by the power of the federal government, it’s the president of the United States... and if he can do it, I’m sure he can do it, too.
Saturday

There will be a special one night presentation of the Belgian rock band "Bouiss" at the Pavilion Featuring Arts Center
Hampton Roads on April 7. "Bouiss" is a hard rock band from
Belgium and is known for its powerful sound and strong presence on stage. The band has been gaining popularity in Europe and is considered a rising star in the rock music scene. The event will feature a night of high-energy music and should not be missed by fans of rock music.

April 9

Dexter, Texas—Indie rock band
Faining the Promo (Texas) will perform at Estes Hall, 100 State St., in

Dexter. The band has been praised for their unique sound and has gained a following in the indie music scene. They play a mix of garage rock and punk.
Tickets are available at the door and will be sold for $10.

April 12

The Dixie Stroll will make its way through
Newport News to raise funds for the
Movement for the Future.

Founded in 1980 by cancer survivor
Cindy Lawry, the Movement for the Future is a nonprofit organization that provides support to cancer survivors. The Dixie Stroll is a fun and engaging way to support this important cause. The event will feature a 5k race and a 1-mile walk, with music, food, and other activities.
Participants are encouraged to wear colored clothing to show their support.
Registration is $25 for adults and $15 forchildren. The event is open to all ages andabilities. Transportation will be provided fromNewport News to the starting line in Warwick.

‘Void’ brings past light back to life in 1969 The Void Underground released its sev-

th full-length album, ‘The Void’. The Language released ‘The Void’ in 1997. The Void was a

American rock band associated with various subcultures throughout the 1960s, 1970s, and 1980s. The band's music was characterized by its raw, energetic sound and its connection to the counterculture movements of the time. The album featured a mix of folk, rock, and experimental music, and was praised for its innovative approach to songwriting and production. The album was released in two parts, and was a commercial success, reaching the top of the charts and receiving critical acclaim.

Unfortunately, the band was never able to fully realize its potential due to various personal and creative differences among its members. The band's music has since become a cult classic, and has influenced a generation of musicians and artists. In 2023, the band announced a reunion and a tour to mark the 50th anniversary of the album's release, providing fans with a chance to experience the band's music in a new and exciting way. These events will be held in various locations throughout the United States, including New York, Los Angeles, and Chicago.

Both albums feature tracks connecting to the hippie lifestyle of the past andtoday, with unique themes like “The Void” and “A Large Black Ball,” which celebrate the spirit of freedom and the quest for truth. The Void’s music is experimental and bordering on the psychedelic, making it a perfect fit for today’s listeners.

The event is a perfect opportunity to relive the past and explore the music that defined an era. Whether you are a fan of The Void or simply curious about the music of the past, this is an event not to be missed.
A Message from the ASUI President

Let's Get Through This Together

Dear Members of the University Community,

Over the past couple of months, issues have unfolded that have left our university community with many unanswered questions as to the future of the institution's strength. The State of Idaho has presented us with an unprecedented budget challenge, of which we must—and will—overcome. Before Spring Break, President Hoover announced a systematic restructuring plan that drives efficiency and further the interaction between related disciplines. Other than the generalities of responsible cuts, the majority of decisions are still very much a lively process. Since the initial presentations of the budget challenge, a fully inclusive process has ensued that—and will continue to include—all entities of the university community. In this difficult time, your opinion and constructive suggestions are our greatest assurance of an easy transition and a speedy return to normalcy.

Over the past few weeks, rumors have proliferated throughout the campus regarding what changes will be made and how individuals will be affected. These rumors have, in some areas, led to a destructive attitude that is unnecessarily pitting departments and campus entities against each other; this creates a bigger problem than we already face. To summarize: Misinformation is our biggest enemy. Other than the changes that were announced at the March 13th meeting, all other changes are very much under consideration. Your help is greatly needed as there are many issues to consider in order to reach a $30 million obligation. I would like to personally offer my assistance as I ask you to e-mail me with all of your ideas and concerns. While I may not be able to respond to each and every one of you, I will read each letter and take it to the appropriate place. I would also like to refer you to the budget challenge website at www.uidaho.edu/budget and direct other constructive comments to hoover-budget@uidaho.edu.

Throughout this time of personal frustration that all are feeling, we must remain united. This Friday, we will be welcoming the future of the University of Idaho as we continue to open the bar for Vandal Friday, our most important recruitment event. This will be a hands-on time when each person at the university can do their part to help us raise over our budgetary issues. Simply stated: More Vandals = More Money. I sincerely encourage each of you to keep a positive attitude as we welcome these students to our campus. Negativity and rumors are neither constructive nor useful. I want to personally thank all of those who have been dedicated to seeing our institution through these times and hope that every individual will jump aboard the wave of the positive and the possible.

Thank you

Kasey Cole Swisher
ASUI President

For More Information or to Comment

Email Your Ideas to the Central Administration

hoover-budget@uidaho.edu

Volunteer for Vandal Friday

vandalfr@uidaho.edu

A Message from the ASUI President

Let’s Get Through This Together

Dear Members of the University Community,

Over the past couple of months, issues have unfolded that have left our university community with many unanswered questions as to the future of the institution’s strength. The State of Idaho has presented us with an unprecedented budget challenge, of which we must—and will—overcome. Before Spring Break, President Hoover announced a systematic restructuring plan that drives efficiency and further the interaction between related disciplines. Other than the generalities of responsible cuts, the majority of decisions are still very much a lively process. Since the initial presentations of the budget challenge, a fully inclusive process has ensued that—and will continue to include—all entities of the university community. In this difficult time, your opinion and constructive suggestions are our greatest assurance of an easy transition and a speedy return to normalcy.

Over the past few weeks, rumors have proliferated throughout the campus regarding what changes will be made and how individuals will be affected. These rumors have, in some areas, led to a destructive attitude that is unnecessarily pitting departments and campus entities against each other; this creates a bigger problem than we already face. To summarize: Misinformation is our biggest enemy. Other than the changes that were announced at the March 13th meeting, all other changes are very much under consideration. Your help is greatly needed as there are many issues to consider in order to reach a $30 million obligation. I would like to personally offer my assistance as I ask you to e-mail me with all of your ideas and concerns. While I may not be able to respond to each and every one of you, I will read each letter and take it to the appropriate place. I would also like to refer you to the budget challenge website at www.uidaho.edu/budget and direct other constructive comments to hoover-budget@uidaho.edu.

Throughout this time of personal frustration that all are feeling, we must remain united. This Friday, we will be welcoming the future of the University of Idaho as we continue to open the bar for Vandal Friday, our most important recruitment event. This will be a hands-on time when each person at the university can do their part to help us raise over our budgetary issues. Simply stated: More Vandals = More Money. I sincerely encourage each of you to keep a positive attitude as we welcome these students to our campus. Negativity and rumors are neither constructive nor useful. I want to personally thank all of those who have been dedicated to seeing our institution through these times and hope that every individual will jump aboard the wave of the positive and the possible.

Thank you

Kasey Cole Swisher
ASUI President

For More Information or to Comment

Email Your Ideas to the Central Administration

hoover-budget@uidaho.edu

Volunteer for Vandal Friday

vandalfr@uidaho.edu

A Message from the ASUI President

Let’s Get Through This Together

Dear Members of the University Community,

Over the past couple of months, issues have unfolded that have left our university community with many unanswered questions as to the future of the institution’s strength. The State of Idaho has presented us with an unprecedented budget challenge, of which we must—and will—overcome. Before Spring Break, President Hoover announced a systematic restructuring plan that drives efficiency and further the interaction between related disciplines. Other than the generalities of responsible cuts, the majority of decisions are still very much a lively process. Since the initial presentations of the budget challenge, a fully inclusive process has ensued that—and will continue to include—all entities of the university community. In this difficult time, your opinion and constructive suggestions are our greatest assurance of an easy transition and a speedy return to normalcy.

Over the past few weeks, rumors have proliferated throughout the campus regarding what changes will be made and how individuals will be affected. These rumors have, in some areas, led to a destructive attitude that is unnecessarily pitting departments and campus entities against each other; this creates a bigger problem than we already face. To summarize: Misinformation is our biggest enemy. Other than the changes that were announced at the March 13th meeting, all other changes are very much under consideration. Your help is greatly needed as there are many issues to consider in order to reach a $30 million obligation. I would like to personally offer my assistance as I ask you to e-mail me with all of your ideas and concerns. While I may not be able to respond to each and every one of you, I will read each letter and take it to the appropriate place. I would also like to refer you to the budget challenge website at www.uidaho.edu/budget and direct other constructive comments to hoover-budget@uidaho.edu.

Throughout this time of personal frustration that all are feeling, we must remain united. This Friday, we will be welcoming the future of the University of Idaho as we continue to open the bar for Vandal Friday, our most important recruitment event. This will be a hands-on time when each person at the university can do their part to help us raise over our budgetary issues. Simply stated: More Vandals = More Money. I sincerely encourage each of you to keep a positive attitude as we welcome these students to our campus. Negativity and rumors are neither constructive nor useful. I want to personally thank all of those who have been dedicated to seeing our institution through these times and hope that every individual will jump aboard the wave of the positive and the possible.

Thank you

Kasey Cole Swisher
ASUI President

For More Information or to Comment

Email Your Ideas to the Central Administration

hoover-budget@uidaho.edu

Volunteer for Vandal Friday

vandalfr@uidaho.edu

A Message from the ASUI President

Let’s Get Through This Together

Dear Members of the University Community,

Over the past couple of months, issues have unfolded that have left our university community with many unanswered questions as to the future of the institution’s strength. The State of Idaho has presented us with an unprecedented budget challenge, of which we must—and will—overcome. Before Spring Break, President Hoover announced a systematic restructuring plan that drives efficiency and further the interaction between related disciplines. Other than the generalities of responsible cuts, the majority of decisions are still very much a lively process. Since the initial presentations of the budget challenge, a fully inclusive process has ensued that—and will continue to include—all entities of the university community. In this difficult time, your opinion and constructive suggestions are our greatest assurance of an easy transition and a speedy return to normalcy.

Over the past few weeks, rumors have proliferated throughout the campus regarding what changes will be made and how individuals will be affected. These rumors have, in some areas, led to a destructive attitude that is unnecessarily pitting departments and campus entities against each other; this creates a bigger problem than we already face. To summarize: Misinformation is our biggest enemy. Other than the changes that were announced at the March 13th meeting, all other changes are very much under consideration. Your help is greatly needed as there are many issues to consider in order to reach a $30 million obligation. I would like to personally offer my assistance as I ask you to e-mail me with all of your ideas and concerns. While I may not be able to respond to each and every one of you, I will read each letter and take it to the appropriate place. I would also like to refer you to the budget challenge website at www.uidaho.edu/budget and direct other constructive comments to hoover-budget@uidaho.edu.

Throughout this time of personal frustration that all are feeling, we must remain united. This Friday, we will be welcoming the future of the University of Idaho as we continue to open the bar for Vandal Friday, our most important recruitment event. This will be a hands-on time when each person at the university can do their part to help us raise over our budgetary issues. Simply stated: More Vandals = More Money. I sincerely encourage each of you to keep a positive attitude as we welcome these students to our campus. Negativity and rumors are neither constructive nor useful. I want to personally thank all of those who have been dedicated to seeing our institution through these times and hope that every individual will jump aboard the wave of the positive and the possible.

Thank you

Kasey Cole Swisher
ASUI President

For More Information or to Comment

Email Your Ideas to the Central Administration

hoover-budget@uidaho.edu

Volunteer for Vandal Friday

vandalfr@uidaho.edu
Vandal girl on top again

The Vandals women’s golf team won their first NCAA Tournament game against Idaho State to move on to the second round. The Vandals beat Idaho State 301-309 to win the championship.

For Vandals golfer Rosalind Lankford, the win was special. "This is the first time Idaho has won an NCAA title," Lankford said. "We've been close before, but this time it was just right."

The Vandals were led by Lankford, who shot a one-under-par 70, and by Donna Despain, who shot a two-under-par 69. The team’s total score of 301 is the lowest score ever recorded at the NCAA Tournament.

"We were very excited," said head coach David B. Olson. "We had been working hard all season, and we knew we could do it."

The Vandals will now play in the NCAA Tournament Round of 16, where they will face the winner of the game between Montana and Boise State.

Two out of three isn’t bad

UI baseball club drops final game to BSU

UI baseball club fell to Boise State University 2-3 Saturday afternoon. The Vandals were down early and could not overcome the three-run deficit in the final game.

"We played well in the first two games," said UI head coach Ed Fast. "But we couldn’t carry that momentum into the third game."

UI managed only two hits in the final game, both by Logan Johnson. BSU scored their runs in the first and third innings, while UI managed a single hit by Johnson in the second inning.

UI will now travel to California to play the University of Southern California in a three-game series next weekend.

Perry looks to build for next year

By Nathan Davis

It’s hard to believe that the season is over, but the Vandals are excited for what’s to come.

"We accomplished some things that are very special, but we’re hungry for more," said head coach Dave Perry. "We have a lot of returning players, and we’re looking to build on what we accomplished this season."

The Vandals will have a young team next year, with only three seniors returning. "But we have a lot of talented freshmen," Perry said. "We’re looking forward to seeing what they can do."
Maryland gets its championship

JIM ZELENSKI

The Agoura hopes to be around the long. We hope the Earth will be around too.

Please recycle this newspaper.

Buy Raffle Tickets and help the Advertising Team at the regional competition in Alaska.

Get your tickets in the Commons
Today - Friday 10 a.m. - 4 p.m.
$2.00 per ticket
or 3 for $5

MOSCOW: 5/27 - () - (10) - 20

and stifle the basketball tournament out of the basketball带走 the rifles of the Georgia Tech men.

But Dukes did not want to lose again. In their final game at Maryland, Dukes ruled to lead 71-66 over Georgia Tech.

And he reached his goal, scoring 18 points with the Terps losing 80-68.

The Terps, who had the ball with 14 seconds left in the game, could see the Final Four when they blew a three-point basket.

They did it last night with Dukes' smooth distribution to the bench. By the time game ended, Dukes had scored 18 points.

The Terps made the right basketball for the first time in a national tournament.

They sailed to the 71-68 victory.

It was just another moment in the long-distance run of Dukes' basketball career, from a deficit that reached 23 points in the first half.

The Terps finally knocked down back-to-back goals and Kyle's follow through, and Dukes' lead built to 14 points in the second half.

Dukes believe they were more in the tournament because they played well.

They got off the bus and scored.

The Terps made their first six points of the first half and also made their first three-point goal.

But they scored 21 points in the final 10 minutes of the game.

The Terps scored the first 10 points and must have been enabled by having the basketball.

Friday night, the Maryland team was 13-10 on the season and in the tournament.

The Terps scored 20 of the first 21 visits and 21 of the first 22 visits to the free throw line.

Dukes scored 13 of the points, including 12 in the final 8:30.

The Terps are within a few points on the final 78 seconds, and turned into points to challenge the Terps in the first half.

From an 11-point deficit, the Terps built to 13 points with three points in the final 78 seconds, and turned into points to challenge the Terps for the first half.

Dukes scored 13 of the points, including 12 in the final 8:30.