Smaller crowd shows for ticket giveaway

BY ANNE BAGDON
ASSISTANT EDITOR

There were only 1,000 tickets given away for the Washington State University football game Thursday afternoon, a marked drop from last year’s giveaway.

“A year ago we sold out early and a lot of people were upset,” said Assistant Student Activity Manager Joel Yasman.

And David Pulha wanted to make sure that didn’t happen.

Pulha, a freshman from The Dalles, Ore., is one of the organizers and was on duty outside the Student Center. He was the only person standing at the ticket booth Thursday afternoon.

“We were here last year for the Wildcat game,” he said. “We sold out. I think we are going to sell out again this year.”

“I wanted to catch the football game,” said Bradly Nettles, a student from Pullman. “I have been to a lot of football games and this one looks good.”

“Everyone I know wants to go,” said Katie Miller, a student from Moscow.

“I would say we sold out,” said Joel Yasman.

The tickets were $20 per person and $10 for children. They were given away at the Student Center.

The students who showed up to get tickets were lined up outside the Student Center. They were given tickets on a first-come, first-serve basis.

The tickets were not used for anything else. They were given away for the sole purpose of being able to attend the football game.

The Student Center was closed for the day due to the ticket giveaway.

Online laundry technology takes out of washing

BY MIKE LANGBECK

่าวorable (KSTD) — College students sitting in their dorms, waiting patiently for their clothes to finish washing, is soon a thing of the past. This fall, Boise State University is rolling out new laundry machines that will allow students to do their laundry without ever leaving their dorms. The new machines, which will be installed in the student union building and in several residence halls, will offer students the convenience of washing their clothes without having to leave their rooms.

The new machines are Internet-enabled, allowing students to schedule their laundry times online and receive text messages when their laundry is ready. In addition, the machines are energy-efficient and use less water and energy than traditional washing machines.

"Our goal is to make laundry as easy and convenient as possible for our students," said Boise State Vice President for Student Affairs, Bob Kustra.

The new laundry machines are part of a larger initiative at Boise State to improve student services and facilities. Other initiatives include the construction of a new student center, the expansion of the student union building, and the addition of more study spaces on campus.

The new laundry machines are expected to be popular among students, who have been waiting for such a convenience for years. According to a survey conducted by the university, 80% of students reported that doing laundry is one of their least favorite activities.

"Now we can finally do our laundry without having to leave our dorms," said junior, Sarah Jones.

The new laundry machines will be available to all Boise State students, including residential and commuter students. The university is also considering adding similar machines to other community colleges and universities in the region.

For more information, please visit the Boise State University website or contact the university's student affairs department.
Basketball players fail to represent UI well

My response to join the Argonaut's 20-Second Quiz of their April 18th edition was probably the closest thing they've had to a search for highly visible alumni—except one other time, when I was appointed the Denver Nuggets' general manager.

To be fair to the Argonaut's quiz, it just seemed to want to know if I was interested in doing anything in basketball for the University of Idaho. (The University of Idaho's basketball website is still the biggest source of information I can get on basketball in Idaho.)

But if I had to pick one word to describe the basketball players I've known, it would be "unique." And the same is true of the University of Idaho in general.

Offensive Player of the Week

Jae Hull, Idaho State Jr., 3-1, 8-1, 26. Hull is the newest receiver in an Idaho State receiving corps that includes Wally Kaufman, Lance Galway and Davei Vango. Hull had 13 catches for 159 yards and a 90-yard TD in the Bengals’ 36-10 loss to Washington State, the first of two losses on the road for Idaho State.

Defensive Player of the Week

Kurt Peterson, Idaho State Jr., 11-2, 14-2, 7. Peterson, a 6-foot-1, 205-pound linebacker, was named the Idaho State Newcomer of the Year in 2000 after missing the last two games of the season due to injury. He led the Bengals in tackles with 156 in 1999, a number that included 26 tackles for losses, and had 7.0 sacks. Peterson tied for the team lead in tackles for loss against Washington State with 6.0 and had 12 total tackles in the game.

Frosh once again powers UI women’s soccer to victory

By Brian Armstrong

Despite a sluggish effort, the Vandals men and women soccer teams continued their unbeaten streak by beating Oregon State and Oregon, respectively. The women’s team scored two goals on 11 shots, while the men’s team scored two goals on 16 shots.

The women’s team is now 3-0-1 on the season and has scored six goals in three games. The men’s team is 3-1-1 and has scored 11 goals in four games.

UI looks down the barrel of a loaded gun

By Nate Jensen

The Washington State Cougars are an athletic and talented team. UI is not. According to many experts, the Cougars will play a difficult game this weekend against the Cougars.

The Wolves have a lot of experience and depth. They are led by senior quarterback Ryan Linehan, who has completed over 60% of his passes this season. The Wolves also have a strong defense led by linebacker Chad Culp, who has 11 sacks on the season.

The Wolves have a lot of offensive firepower, including running back Jared Zylstra, who has rushed for over 1000 yards this season. The Wolves also have a strong receiving corps led by wide receiver Blake Johnson, who has over 1000 yards receiving this season.

The Wolves are a tough team to beat and have been ranked in the top 10 in the country for most of the season. They are coming off a 38-28 win over Oregon State last weekend and are looking to continue their winning streak.

UI is coming off a tough 34-3 loss to Washington State and will be looking to bounce back against the Cougars. The Wolves have lost three straight games to the Cougars, including a 34-17 loss last year.

UI will need to put together a solid performance on both offense and defense to have a chance against the Cougars. The Wolves have struggled offensively this season, averaging just 12.2 points per game.

On defense, the Wolves have been solid, allowing just 17.1 points per game. The Wolves will need to be able to stop the Cougars’ high-powered offense if they want to have a chance to win.

The game will be held at Martin Stadium in Pullman, Wash. Kickoff is set for 2 p.m. MT.

Vandals can beat Cougars

By Nate Jensen

The Vandals have never had a head-to-head win over the Cougars, but they have won two of the last three meetings. The last meeting was in 2011 in the country with an opportunity for a major upset.

The Vandals’ game plan is to play a possession-type game and make sure they have a lead heading into the fourth quarter. The Vandals will need to make sure they don’t turn the ball over and make the most of their opportunities.

On the offensive side of the ball, the Vandals are still waiting for the leadership of quarterback Daven Hauver, who is on the mend. Hauver’s status for the game is still up in the air, but he is expected to play.

The game is a must-win for both teams, with the Cougars ranked 12th and the Vandals ranked 25th. The Vandals have the advantage in the running game, but the Cougars have the advantage in the passing game.

This game is an important non-conference game, but it is also a rivalry game. The Vandals have never won a game against the Cougars, but they have a chance to do so on Friday.

A: "The expectation around is just that we take the field everyday and play as hard as we can. I don't like to set specific expectations, as far as making it to any summer tournaments or anything of that nature, because I think that's where we're not necessarily in control of the outcome. I think that if we go out and play as hard as we can, every day, lots of things will take care of them- selves.

Q. What are some new places and experiences you have for your players this year?

A: "We've expanded our training for the Big West title. That's going to be our goal as we continue to build this program. I think the players are in place now just so as to be able to challenge for that. There's going to be a great deal of competition within the conference, with the conference being a lot bigger. So I think that the bar gets pretty high for ourselves. That's what their goals were and I'm writing mine with them thinking we can challenge for the Big West title and hopefully play in the NCAA tournament game or get to be a part of the NCAA tournament."

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Vendor week after his dismissal from Kentucky's sidelines, former Wildcat coach Mike Preston has staked out at South Carolina.

After Kentucky granted Preston a layoff agreement, he confirmed he would be back in good academic standing, meaning he will be able to return as an assistant coach after a 90-day period.

Under NCAA transfer rules, he cannot be on the team for 120 days prior to the start of the 2020-21 season and his family will not be his housekeeper. Because he received a medical redshirt during a previous season, he will have two years of eligibility left by the end of the 2020-21 season.

An NCAA medical panel medically, Parker praised practices with the Gamecocks and in on the heels of home games. NCAA rules prevent him from talking with Kentucky, Parker said.

Parker will play for former Wake Forest coach Dave Odom at South Carolina, who is the head coach for the Gamecocks.

So far this season, Preston has made 2475CS, 2016-34. Parker is a graduate assistant at South Carolina. After he was dismissed last week, Parker watched the Gamecocks practice at the South Carolina athletic department's interservice meeting, Parker reinstalled the former Gamecocks family member and lost last season.

 layoffs, his team, which has won or shared the Mountain West Conference title in the past two seasons, is off to a hot start this season. But Preston has been dealing with several injuries to key players. He is also trying to find a way to get more production from his younger players.

Preston said he is happy to be back in Kentucky, where he spent four seasons as an assistant coach under John Calipari. He also worked as an assistant coach at Northeastern and Temple.
