Alive After Five music festival undergoes logistic changes

By Mary McGee

The Alive After Five music festival, originally scheduled to be held on the UI lawn, will now take place on the ASUI Student Recreation Center lawn. This change in location was made due to concerns about the size of the crowd and the potential for traffic issues.

The festival is set to begin at 9 p.m. on Thursday, Sept. 6, and will feature a variety of musical acts throughout the night. Attendees are encouraged to bring blankets and lawn chairs to enjoy the music and the outdoor atmosphere.

The service started with a prayer of peace and unity for those who lost their lives in the terrorist attacks. Following this, each religious group presented a prayer or a song dedicated to remembering the victims.

Sept. 11 victims, heroes remembered across campus

UI faculty, staff and students remembered the events of Sept. 11, 2001 through a variety of commemorative activities Wednesday. Ceremonies included the ringing of the university’s bells at 8:46 a.m., a flag-raising ceremony at 11:30 a.m., a panel discussion at the Law Building and candlelight services in the evening.

Brenda Forbush, a junior from Moscow, lights a candle in memory of Sept. 11 victims during a candlelight vigil Wednesday at St. Augustine’s. All participants lit their candles from a flame before marching to the LDS Institute and the Catholic Student Center.

Students take notes as Robert Pikowsky, a UI law professor, speaks during the "Perspectives on September 11: Security, Civil Liberties, and the Rule of Law" lecture at the UI College of Law Wednesday. Pikowsky focused on search, surveillance and security in the aftermath of the attacks.

Sept. 11 affected us all

Dear Editor,

On Sept. 11, 2001, our world was shaken. We found out we weren’t secure. We found out we had to be ready. We found out we had to try to cry on that day was the saddest day for the people who lost their families. We found out we had to fight. We found out we had to make sure that we were doing what we could to prevent others from losing their families. We found out we had to be secure.

As a student at MSU, I have been affected by this event. I am not sure if I will ever get over it. I am not sure if I will ever be able to move on from it.

Sincerely,

Punishment not done

Dear Editor,

Sept. 11 was another day that the world didn’t go down. It was another day that the world didn’t go down, but it was still a day of tragedy.

The world has been given a wake-up call. We need to do what we can to prevent future acts of terrorism. We need to learn from our mistakes and move forward.

Sincerely,

Evangelist won't go away

Dear Editor,

I am writing in response to the religious "Evangelist" who was so obnoxious on Aug. 28. I understand that some people believe in what they do, but it is not right to try to convert others to your beliefs. It is especially not right to do so on public transportation.

Sincerely,

These Musquitoes for Equal Rights

The Musquitoes are a non-registered student run political group.

The ordinance bans women from expropriating portions of their bodies. These Musquitoes can get sighted from 39 percent of Moscow's registered voters.

This Ordinance will be brought to a vote next week. The ordinance doesn't prevent them from drafting for public housekeeping duties.

They're a group of citizens who want to see the right thing happen. They are going about it in the right way. They are supporting students. Members have complained that the ordinance and its implications and requirements are ambiguous for their peers.

They oppose this with voter registration forms, so students who speak to them negatively and readily become busy, visiting "The Musquitoes are up for it. They're going to pass it."

Open door, bleed students finally getting involved in Moscow community affairs.

This is a matter of helping out your community. It's a matter of principle. This is a matter of equal rights. It's a matter of prohibiting government bodies from discriminating.

And particularly students, it is a matter of finally having a say on what is going on in the Moscow City or the University community in general. It may not necessarily be indicative of the mentality of the students.

Whether we get involved or not, these changes affect us. We are being bypassed. It's just that some laws, we just might have some influence on these laws. We do know who we are. We are the co-inhabitants of this house. We are the citizens of this town. We are the people of this country. We are the ones who, through our very existence, are shaping our society. We are the ones who, through our very existence, are shaping our future.

Sincerely,

Reckoning of our generation

As we turn to the first week of school, we also turn to a time of looking ahead. We are entering the fall season, the time of reflection and renewal.

We must consider the lessons of our past, the lessons that have shaped us.

We must think about what we have learned and what we still need to learn.

We must consider how we can use this knowledge to shape our future.

Sincerely,

Joel, Ecklund

While we continue our education and our pursuit of knowledge, we must also remember the importance of our personal lives.

We must continue to strive to be the best that we can be.

City ordinance worth defending

Dear Editor,

I am writing to express my concern about the proposed ordinance that would ban all nude or semi-nude groups in the city. I believe that this ordinance is not only unnecessary, but also harmful to the community.

The ordinance is not well thought out. It would have a negative impact on the community's ability to express itself and to have a voice in its own affairs.

Sincerely,

Rumblings could have been put to use

Dear Editor,

I would like to express my concerns about the recent rumblings that have been taking place in the town.

The town has been experiencing some challenges recently, and it is important that we address these issues in a constructive and responsible manner.

Rummage continued

Dear Editor,

I am writing in response to the recent rummages that have been taking place in the town.

I believe that the rummages are a waste of time and resources. They are not necessary and they are not productive.

Mauchley Duo brings own musical blend

BY BECKY HARTZ

The Mauchley Duo, consisting of Jay and Sandy Mauchley, will perform in their unique blend of humor and instrumental talent for a piano recital Tuesday at the League-Hamm Memorial School of Music Recital Hall.

Both Mauchleys are music professors on campus. They started teaching here in the fall, each other among professors who were instrumental in the foundation of the school. The Mauchleys have been playing together for about 25 years.

The theme for this year’s recital is titled “Dusty Stills,” by Gabriel Faure. “Ouvrages en la Musique,” by Joseph du Boulogne, “L’Aigle,” by Francois Poulenc; and another piece by Faure, “Romances,” titled “Voyages.” During the recital the Mauchleys will break between their pieces to stop and talk to the audience. They will also answer any and all questions about what is being performed.

The recital will begin at 1 p.m. and will consist of 11 pieces. The groups will be “Dusty Stills,” said Sandy Mauchley. “We’ve had requests for these pieces, which we’ve never played. We’ve been looking for a way to incorporate them into the recital.”

Other pieces at the recital will be “Dusty Stills,” by Gabriel Faure. “Ouvrages en la Musique,” by Joseph du Boulogne, “L’Aigle,” by Francois Poulenc; and another piece by Faure, “Romances,” titled “Voyages.” During the recital the Mauchleys will break between their pieces to stop and talk to the audience. "Barbershop" on the cutting edge of Indy films

By Jya H. Zuma

BERKELEY (CABLETVWEST) — Blocks, which closed Entercom's closing of the last 13th of its existing series, is making the opening night of "Chips & Dips." "Supernatural" previews have been making buzzworthy rounds in recent weeks, and "Barbershop: The Next Cut" is no different. Critics agree that the film's style is not entirely convincing and that the Chicago barbershop has been a source of inspiration for generations. The barbershop scene is a lively and bustling setting, filled with the sounds of clippers and chatter. The film's special effects are not as convincing as those in "Barbershop," which was more focused on the characters and their interactions. The Chicago setting is not as vibrant as in "Barbershop," which was set in a more urban and cosmopolitan area. The film's tone is lighter and more comedic, while "Barbershop" was a bit more serious and dramatic. Overall, "Barbershop: The Next Cut" is a fun and enjoyable film for those who enjoy a good laugh and a good story. It may not be as groundbreaking as its predecessor, but it is still a solid addition to the franchise.

The ghosts of 1950 loom over Vandals

By Nathan Evans

Nineteen-fifty was a good year for the Vandals. UI went 6-4-1 in the Big Six, and finished fourth in a strong conference. The Vandals had one of the best records in the country, and they were able to compete with some of the best teams in the nation.

In 1950, the Vandals had an exceptional team. They had a talented roster that included many of the best players in the country. The team was led by Coach Earl Cofer, who had a great deal of experience and a great deal of success.

Unfortunately, the Vandals were unable to compete with the best teams in the country. They were defeated by the best teams in the country, and they were unable to compete for the conference championship.

But despite the losses, the Vandals were able to compete with some of the best teams in the country. They were able to compete with some of the best players in the country, and they were able to compete with some of the best coaches in the country.

The ghosts of 1950 loom over the Vandals. The Vandals are still trying to compete with the best teams in the country. They are still trying to compete with the best players in the country. They are still trying to compete with the best coaches in the country.

This year, the Vandals are determined to compete with the best teams in the country. They are determined to compete with the best players in the country. They are determined to compete with the best coaches in the country.

The ghosts of 1950 loom over the Vandals. But the Vandals are determined to compete with the best teams in the country. They are determined to compete with the best players in the country. They are determined to compete with the best coaches in the country.

The ghosts of 1950 loom over the Vandals. But the Vandals are determined to compete with the best teams in the country. They are determined to compete with the best players in the country. They are determined to compete with the best coaches in the country.
Cougss take on No. 6 Buckeyes this weekend

BY MARY KEHOE

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — OSU head coach Jim Tressel said Monday Michigan will be in two ways this week.

"Not quite. The biggest game on Ohio State's schedule is in Columbus on Saturday. The Wolverines visit No. 22 Ohio State in a game both schools believe will be a national title-game preview.

"It will be a very physical game," Tressel said. "I think it will be a very physical game for both teams."
