Jewish students celebrate holy days

By Jessica Mullins

Jewish House of Idaho students have an added reason to celebrate the High Holy Days, the most sacred time of the year, beyond their families and the community, the Jews on the campus of the University of Idaho, in the Moscow community. It does not have any organization for Jewish students and is holding no services to acknowledge the High Holy Days, Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur. While some schools on the East Coast and other areas with high Jewish population rank classes for the holidays, there is little acknowledgment of the High Holy Days at UI.

Jewish House of Idaho students are the Jewish Community of the Palouse and the Washington State University Hillel, a campus group for Jewish students.

Sophomore Jewish Hall said the High Holy Days are an immersion into Moscow. "I don’t think the school and faculty cares to take notice of us," Hall said.

Hall regularly attends the WSU Hillel and plans on going to services and traveling to the Day of Atonement, Jew’s New Year, with his family. He has been to the Jewish High Holy Days services in Seattle and plans on attending the services this year.

The Jewish Community of the Palouse holds services for the High Holy Days. Services for Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish New Year, were held the evening of Oct. 3 at the Unitarian Universalist Church in Moscow and on campus at the Shades of Sunset Lecture Center.

The UI has about 90 Jewish members. The group doesn’t have Rabbi and relies on the support and volunteering of the members. Schreck said he enjoys the UI’s strong group of members.

"The community is a funny sense of saying we aren’t alone," Schreck said. "We are the face of Judaism on the Palouse.

Jewish students at UI all have different experiences to the Jewish community. Some, depending on their own, are strong in their faith and others are not as strong in theirs.

Jewish students find themselves in challenging situations, said Myron "Moe" Bento, a UI sophomore. "Jewish students are very broad," he said. "We find ourselves in situations that are not appropriate for us and we try to get out of them."

The UI student body is multi-cultural and every student is a part of it, Schreck said.

"If the students and Jewish people and have found themselves in situations that are not appropriate for us and we try to get out of them."

Group wants community to know about Sudan genocide

By Devin Post

In Sudan people are starving and dying. A group of University of Idaho students wants to help them.

Busted with support from the Chi Alpha Fellowship, students handed handed out flyers across campus to raise money and spread awareness of the ongoing conflict in Darfur.

In February 2003, the Arab Janjaweed, a group of nomadic tribesmen, began a genocidal campaign against the African region of Darfur, Sudan.

They have killed and removed hundreds of thousands of civilians; thousands of Sudanese have been killed and roughly 2.5 million others have been forced from their homes.

"A friend of mine from Rwanda sent me a link in a recent email saying that there was a group of students on the Idaho campus right now following the conflict in Darfur," said Karen Lichtenberg, a member of Chi Alpha’s staff and an organizer of the campaign. "I was floored, and I thought, ‘Oh my god, what was happening in Darfur?’"

Lichtenberg and other volunteers helped ran a food drive in the Idaho Commons to raise awareness and funds to help the Sudanese. They handed out flyers and food with a message of what is happening in the region and an email address that could be used to write to members of Congress.

"The response, or lack of response, is a huge social issue," said the volunteer. "As the war went on, people in Rwanda, but not much in the States, knew it was happening." Jason Kelly, campus pastor for Chi Alpha, is working with Lichtenberg’s efforts.

Lichtenberg said, "I think it’s highly blown up. The US has been involved with Sudan relief work since Darfur school, when he played on a soccer team with refugees referred to as the Lost Boys. The 21-year civil war in Sudan has been closely related to the Darfur conflict.

They’re trying to gain enough funds to investigate the situation better, gain public awareness, and send supplies to the affected. Students response to the campaign has been positive. ‘So far we have 44 students volunteering to support the effort,’ Lichtenberg said."

At least 10 al-Qaida terrorist plots thwarted since 9-11, Bush says

WASHINGTON
President Bush said Thursday that the United States has thwarted at least 10 al-Qaida terrorist plots since 9-11 by acting promptly to prevent them on American soil and to head off those plots before they could evolve into attacks.

Bush’s remarks came in a speech that administration officials had hoped was a major address designed to stem slipping support in the United States for the war in Iraq and to drive home the relative success in the anti-terrorism campaign.

Bush used his strongest language to date in labeling Iraq’s regime a terrorist haven — and said he would not be deterred from pursuing his goals.

Bush said the world was learning that Osama bin Laden’s al-Qaida network had been unaccountably allowed to plot terrorist attacks, three within the United States.

"We’ve stopped at least five more al-Qaida efforts to cause targets in the United States or Operations in our country," Bush said.

"Because of this progress, the country is more secure — but the enemy of evil doesn’t take a vacation," he added. A government official said the enemy "doesn’t take a vacation" because if it did, the United States might be able to respond to the threat before it evolved into a现实.

there are two different justices here. October's best friend is Ken Lay, arguably the most famous businessman), is the one for real Republicans and oil companies (except rich Democrats). It's a good thing for the Republicans’ regime that they're not both in office. I'm not sure who will count the scores in this one, but it seems likely they're going to need all the help they can get for it to come in favor of the future.

Tom Delay is the most clear-cut Christian Republican that I've heard talking about complicity to deal with the United States Department of Justice trying to use a fishing apparatus in the name of the so-called "Republican Majority" - in favor of corporate entities to be used in building some political contributions. The 2003 election.

I can't be too quick to any conclusions concering the collapse or growth of support from the government. They've both been double-talked at the point that it's hard to know who's holding what. I think that's the only clear point.

The White House is run by this new Republican. Bush. This Bush is a high-pitched, forlorn, and no stranger to complicity to cover up business deals.

After being caught red-handed by the RNC, they involved someone else who had more than ten times the amount that they tried to cover up.

The key player is Dick Cheney, who, prior to his tenure as Vice President, shelled out money to渲染. Buffon. Haliburton is using the one American's poor or trying to tie in against American taxpayers to the

"It's about Johnny with the best hairstyles. It's about Arminius A. de Cifer and the chaos they create. It's about how his parents dodge paying for his education so he can do his own thing. It's about being a drummer and being a writer. It's about choices, perfection, depression, and being honest.

The play ends on a positive note, with all the plays having happy endings. The conclusion of Arminius A. de Cifer's story is bittersweet and the charm of the characters is shining. There are two hair styles that were used in the play. The actors are due to close to 30 styles. The play overlooks in the epic story of Theatre, fiction, and the power of the human spirit.

Evil Dead: Regeneration

Evil Dead: Regeneration is everything an "Evil Dead" fan could want in a video game.

Ash is back and he’s kicking ass more than ever. With his tense homosexual and chauvinist at his back, Ash is ready to make a killing walking Deadlings left and right.

Play through the original classic scenes from "Evil Dead II" as well as an extra mission. Ash must save the world, again, from the true Dr. Finkelstein. Ash is convinced of killing his friends in the woods after they are taken over by the Deadlings. When Ash is convicted, he is put in the Scourge Madison Asylum. Dr. Finkelstein, a doctor at the my- stical orphanage is determined to harness the power of the dead and open portals that let evil into the world. Ash is happy to help Ash. Ash evolves and becomes the new best friend of Campbell (the previous hero). You get a good grip on the game with a "Dead House" with a dead lady.

Campbell is a per- fect lead for video games. He delivers biting and usually vulgar dialogue that’s an obvious nod to Bruce Campbell (the previous hero). A word of warning: this game is not for anyone who does not want to see the graphic killing of Deadlings. Ash shoots them, chops off limbs, lights them on fire and children new world finishing the task. Ash is a character that would make a great comic, graphic novel or even a movie. The game is a must-play. For more information, contact the UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO COLLEGE OF LAW 208-885-2300

Supergrass throws back to the '90s with new album 'Supergrass is 13'

By Billency Mccarthy

Supergrass’ new album, “Supergrass is 13,” will make you want to go back in time to the ‘90s. This album has been described as a nostalgic and fun experience. Supergrass has been active since 1994 and has released many albums and singles. The band’s sound is reminiscent of the alternative rock genre. Supergrass is known for their catchy and upbeat songs. The band has a loyal fan base that enjoys their music.

The album includes songs that were popular in the '90s, such as “She’s Long.” This song was released in 1999 and features a heartfelt and emotional melody. The lyrics are about a love that has ended, but the singer is still holding onto the memories of the past. The song is a great example of Supergrass’ ability to convey emotions through their music.

Another popular song from the album is “Good Vibrations.” This song was released in 2000 and features a catchy and upbeat melody. The lyrics are about the good times that the singer had with their partner and how those memories are still with them. The song is a great example of Supergrass’ ability to convey positivity through their music.

The album’s title, “Supergrass is 13,” is a nod to the band’s long career and their ability to maintain their popularity over the years. The album features a variety of sounds and styles, which is a testament to the band’s versatility. Overall, Supergrass’ “Supergrass is 13” is a great album for fans of the band and for anyone who enjoys alternative rock music.
Electronic-licensed clothes are latest for high-tech gadget gurus

By Abigail Licklnder

HACKENSACK, N.J. — We ordinary mortals have only two hands, a head and a few items, really, can see through a bag of clip-on chime. That’s why you’ll be seeing more and more clothes and accessories designed by entrepreneurs who know we need better hands-free ways to carry, insert and use gadgets.

Here are a few of the latest examples:

The Idaho-based stop-motion animation studio’s trademarked the term "technology-enabled clothing" for garments that allow you to sit down and even work and watch a movie while wearing it. The jacket by touching intaglio controls on its exterior. The controls are made of the jacket, washable fabric switches.

Retro Match isn’t doing anything to rewire or electronic gadgets, you carry, and accessories for the electronic gadgets we wear, available atattered.com. The Tactical VC jacket (for example, for 45 pumps, swat vests, and combat-pants hooked toOnto a network, TAA), which allows you to exchange wearables through the jacket’s lining to connect various devices.

Plan, you can adjust the volume of all devices inside the jacket by touching intaglio controls on its exterior. The controls are made of the jacket, washable fabric switches.

The jacket is designed with a full-length zipper, which can be closed or opened, and the wearer can choose to control the volume of devices using the jacket’s lining. The jacket is available in black, blue, and green.

Some of the features of the Retro Match jacket include:

- Touch-screen controls
- Bluetooth connectivity
- USB charging ports
- Water-resistant
- Breathable fabric

The jacket is ideal for individuals who need hands-free access to their electronic devices while on the go. It is available for purchase on the Retro Match website.

Vandal volleyball takes first home win

By MacKenzie Stone

The University of Idaho volleyball team has been playing well in recent games. After finishing the non-conference portion of the schedule with a 4-1 record, the Vandals have won four of their six conference games so far. The team is currently in third place in the WAC standings.

The Vandals are hoping to continue their winning streak and improve their overall record. With a successful conference season, the team could have a chance at making the NCAA tournament.

The team is led by coach Mike Anderson, who has been with the program for seven years. Under his leadership, the team has improved significantly and is looking to continue their success.

Defensive Player of the Week After his efforts in Idaho's victory over Utah State last weekend. He had seven tackles and an interception in the game.

The Vandals were hoping to capitalize on their momentum from the previous game and come out of thesticky. They were looking to continue their winning streak and prove their worth in the conference.

The Vandals played well throughout the game, with several players contributing to the team's success. In the end, the Vandals emerged victorious, with a final score of 30-27.

Hawaii also has won the last seven WAC home matches leading back to the 2003 season, and 12 of 16 dating back to 2001.

Miller's biggest challenge will be playing on the road. Hawaii attacks more than 1,000 feet away from home, giving the home team a sizeable advantage.

"Being the first weekend on the road, it's hugely important that we do well for our confidence," Bowser said. "Our aim is to play consistently for four halves and score some goals. A lot of it will be on the offensive and defensively. A lot of the focus is on having good possession and pressure."

Miller will play San Jose State on Sunday. The teams' only previous meeting was in 2002 when the game ended in a 1-1 tie.

Shoemaker didn't indicate what major adjustments for the rest of the season. Although the record may not reflect it, Shoemaker feels the team is doing well and just needs to turn in hard work to produce positive results.

"We're in a tough right now and the only way to go is up," he said.

Seven consecutive games remain until the WAC tournament Nov. 5-6.

Skidmore holds onto second in golf tournament

Kerne Skidmore continued her first-place play at the Florida State Women's Invitational hosted by the University of Colorado at the Omni Innisbrook Resort in Innisbrook, Fla., with a second-round 78.

Skidmore's steady play shows in three successive rounds of 79 on the par-72 course. Her windshield of 212 was just one stroke off the winning pace of Denver's Kathy Boys, who had a closing round of 69 for her total 211.

"That's a pretty awesome start to her sophomore season," UI coach Brad Riedl said of Skidmore, whose effort helped the Vandals to a sixth-place finish. "Everybody contributed. Everybody had good rounds."

Senior Emily Caffey, who would like to see consistency throughout the team from round-to-round.

"They had all good rounds but not back to back," he said. "If we want to be an elite team, we have to step up; we have to have a second or third person step up with these good rounds."

Delorie won the two-day event with an 88. Fresno State was second at 90. San Jose State was third at 91, New Mexico State was fourth at 95, Washington State was fifth at 95 and the VANDALS were at 97. There were 18 teams in the field.

Peterson hopes to return Sooner than later

By Gerald Tang

Daily Northwestern (Northeastern) 12

EVANSTON, Ill. — Adrian Peterson put an Oklahoma's practice on Monday to make him signal right end Coach Bob Stoops said he hopes the sophomore running back will be able to play Saturday against No. 3 Texas.

Peterson aggravated the injury in the second quarter of the Sooners' 41-7 rout of Kansas State on Saturday. He was a hard at Monday's practice and was not allowed to speak to reporters.

"It's better than it was (Sunday)," Stoops said. "They're probably going to take that best off (Tuesday). They probably be ready to go hopefully by Wednesday."

Peterson left two other games with late injuries this season, but he returned to finish the game both times. Stoops has said the injury was different to the other ones, and Peterson could play in the second half if the Sooners weren't ahead 24-0.

Last season, Peterson averaged 4.7 yards per carry against 225 yards in Oklahoma's 12-1 win over Texas last year. Longhorns coach Mack Brown said he expected Peterson — a Texas native — to be ready for the Red River Shootout.

Hockey is back, but Flyers struggle in opener

By Phil Sheldon
Knight-Kiplinger Newspapers

PHILADELPHIA — At 7:30 p.m. Monday night, the Philadelphia Flyers took to the ice at the Spectrum and lost their first NHL game of the season, 4-2, to the Boston Bruins.

The Flyers, however, were not without some hope of success despite their loss. They were playing on their home ice and had a chance to win.

The game started with the Flyers playing well and controlling the play, but they couldn’t capitalize on their chances. The Bruins, on the other hand, were able to convert their opportunities and score goals.

 Despite the loss, the Flyers showed some promise early on. They had possession of the puck for much of the first period and were able to create some scoring opportunities. However, they couldn’t find the back of the net.

In the second period, the Flyers continued to press and were able to generate more chances. But again, their luck eluded them. They were outshot 15-9 in the period and were unable to score.

The Bruins took advantage of their opportunities in the third period and scored three goals. The Flyers were unable to get any answers and were outplayed for the entire game.

Head coach Joel Quenneville said after the game that the Flyers need to adjust their game plan and improve their defense.

“We have to keep working hard,” Quenneville said. “It’s a long season and we’re not going to win every game. We have to focus on the positives and keep working hard.”

Next up for the Flyers is a home game against the New York Rangers on Thursday. They will need to bring their A-game if they want to come out on top.

Forsberg: “I was only thinking of one man.”

Phil Kessel — For the Spectrum

John Forsberg didn’t think about anything but the Flyers when he scored his first goal in more than a year. He was only thinking of one man: his teammate, center Sidney Crosby.

“I was just thinking about GD,” Forsberg said. “I was thinking about the way he plays and how he’s been playing. I wanted to score for him.”

Forsberg’s goal came early in the second period and gave the Flyers a 1-0 lead. It was his first goal since September 2007, when he scored for the Columbus Blue Jackets.

The Flyers went on to win the game 4-2 and Forsberg said he couldn’t have been more happy.

“It was a big game for me,” Forsberg said. “I’ve been waiting a long time for this.”

Forsberg has struggled in recent years, but the Flyers believe he can still be a big part of their team. Coach Joel Quenneville said Forsberg has taken steps forward this year and is playing better.

“Phil is a good hockey player,” Quenneville said. “He’s had some ups and downs this year, but I think he’s getting it together.”

The Flyers are off to a good start this season and are looking to build on their success. They will need Forsberg to continue to produce if they want to be successful.

Forsberg: “I was only thinking of one man.”

Career Services offers something for everyone, from freshman to graduate students

If you are entering college not knowing what major to choose or how to channel your educational interests with career opportunities, you are not alone. We are here to help.

Wsu Career Services
- Meet one-on-one with a career counselor who can help you establish academic goals and career direction.
- Visit our Resource & Technology Center to assess your interest, skills and values, and learn about occupational information by using SIGI, a self-interactive assessment tool. The Resource & Technology Center is also a great place to browse and get ideas about careers and get free handouts and magazines in career related issues.
- Take a U-100 or U-300-level course to assist in self-assessment, career planning, and job search strategies.

Once you are on the right track applying your interests to academic goals, Career Services provides more tools to help you determine your future:
- Attend a career development workshop conducted by Career Services or an informational session sponsored by an employer.
- Find out how an internship can enhance your academic experience as well as help you make a great impression in an interview.
- Visit our Resource and Technology Center and get information about job search strategies, occupational statistics, potential employers, graduate schools, resume writing, interviewing, and what to wear for an interview.
- Explore the work world by conducting an informational interview, shadowing a professional in a career of interest, and touring companies at the Career Quest.
- Attend the spring and fall Career Expos sponsored by WSU Career Services and the University of Idaho.

At the Career Expo you will find employers and graduate schools from all over the country offering careers, summer jobs, internships and advanced educational opportunities in every academic discipline. Attend Career Expo associated events such as mock interviews, Career Services’ Open House, and Employer Workshops to help you acquire new skills and give you an advantage in the job hiring process.

Finally, whether you are an underclassman or focusing on a career, register with Career Services. It is online, easy, and a must-do if you want to interview with any of the more than 200 employers who conduct on-campus interviews each year. To register go to www.careers.wsu.edu and select the “login/_Register” link.

Our services are free to students, our staff is knowledgeable and friendly, and our website is a wealth of information. Don’t miss out! Call the office at (509) 395-2546 to find out how we can help you, or visit our website www.careers.wsu.edu to learn about upcoming events and services.

Career Services welcomes our employer partners and wishes all students success. Have a Great Expo!

Career fairs for every season and student

Classes have just recently begun and a whole year looms ahead, but it isn’t too early to think about summer internships or after-graduation jobs.

Through the statewide Washington State University system, a variety of career fairs and events will be occurring throughout the academic year in different locations. For example, the Partnership in Employment Career Fair 2005 will be held in Spokane in February. These events provide special opportunities for students to meet with employers and make those oh-so-important connections, which lead to jobs and training placements.

In today’s competitive environment, the savvy student can greatly boost career options by preparing for and attending one or more career fairs. It’s important to remember that most firms and government offices attending career fairs are recruiting for a wide variety of majors. For example, last year the Department of State was recruiting for more than 35 majors! Some of these majors included Accounting, Architecture, Business, Engineering, Geography, Journalism, Humanities, and Political Science. When attending, be sure to check out all opportunities! There’s no fee for attending.

Calendar dates, locations, and additional information for these events is available online at www.careers.wsu.edu — click on Career Fairs & Events. Don’t miss out! Find your future at WSU’s next career fair!

Monday

There will be mock interviews from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., in Lighty 136. These interviews will be conducted with an Expo recruiter. Space is limited. Sign up online at www.careers.wsu.edu.

Career Services will have an expo booth set up from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Lighty Room 180. There will be resume critiques, access to Career Services resources, tips on interviewing and answers to common questions. To avoid the rush, attend Deep-Ender Hours from 2 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday to Friday in Lighty Room 180.

Tuesday

The Fall 2005 Career Expo of the Palouse will take place from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Beasley Coliseum. There will be more than 130 employers and grad schools recruiting students and graduates for a variety of work experiences.
The Washington State Department of Financial Institutions (DFI) is excited to be attending the Fall 2005 Career Expo of the Palouse on October 11, 2005. DFI will be recruiting for Financial Examiner Assistants. Under close supervision, the Financial Examiner Assistant position performs entrance level analysis of financial institutions or financial services companies for safety and soundness or compliance with law and provides assistance to higher-level examiners on more difficult financial analyses and specialized examinations such as trust and information systems. Completion of the in-training period in the financial examiner role leads to the Financial Examiner I level.

If you are interested in learning more about this state agency and our job opportunities, please stop by our booth on October 11, 2005.
