Schoenberg pleads guilty

Former administrator paid money, may serve short work release

By Sam Taylor

Former university administrator Dan Schoenberg pleaded guilty in federal court on Tuesday to embezzling $2,960 paid by the university for supplies to remodel his bathroom.

"I would like an opportunity to review the prosecution evidence," Schoenberg said. "I have been told that I have an 11-page affidavit that was presented to the court and that I have never seen."

Schoenberg was found guilty on one count of embezzlement a week ago, after the university said he had withheld $4,999 in unrefunded balances due to the university.

"It is true," Schoenberg said of the affidavit. "I have never seen it, and I have never read it."

Schoenberg said he planned to file a motion for a retrial if the judge denies him the opportunity to review the evidence.

MicheKe Minkler, Schoenberg's attorney, said that Schoenberg wasinel 0.08

DUI

Schoenberg is accused of using the university's funds to pay for materials at his home in preparation for projects at the school, which he also used for his personal use.

"I made a mistake that I sincerely regret," he said. "I do not want to be back on this floor."

Minkler said he would file a motion for a retrial if the judge denies Schoenberg the opportunity to review the evidence.

Keeping the faith

Christian students work to balance their religious and college lives

By Nate Poppe

Editor's note: This piece is the first in a four-part series on why some students choose to stay religious in college. The remaining three parts will run every Friday for the next two weeks.

It's hard sometimes to be in college. Cassie Novak says. More often than not, the professors, the classes, the extracurricular events and the God-free time can be overwhelming. But she finds homework and extracurricular events with God for free time.

"Sometimes, God gets away from the eyes," she says. "Sometimes, you just have to take a break."

"Sometimes, it's really hard to think about God all the time," Thibaut says. Cassie, when things get tough in the faith journey, she turns to her Christian peers and other religious students, both on campus.

"With the Methodist, Lutheran, Christian, Baptist, Episcopal and United Church of Christ congregants in Moscow, there are plenty of other students who share your opinions," Cassie says. "If you're going to have the faith, you might as well do it together."

"What they (other Christian students) do gives me a lot of comfort, makes me feel less alone and what we want and would give us more of a reason to pursue things," Cassie says. "People come to college for questions.

With the Methodist, Lutheran, Christian, Baptist, Episcopal and United Church of Christ congregants in Moscow, there are plenty of other students who share your opinions. Cassie says. "If you're going to have the faith, you might as well do it together."

"What they (other Christian students) do gives me a lot of comfort, makes me feel less alone and what we want and would give us more of a reason to pursue things," Cassie says. "People come to college for questions.

Football player charged with grand theft

By Sam Taylor

A Vandal offensive lineman has been charged with grand theft after allegedly trying to steal two laptops and a smartphone on the first day of the school year.

Billy Bates is out of jail on a $3,000 bond after his arraignment, which he was allegedly attending when he was arrested.

According to a police affidavit from Moscow police, Bates had been observed entering a building on campus.

"The police found him with two laptops and a smartphone, which had an estimated combined value of $1,300," the affidavit states.

According to Bates, he was charged with grand theft in Idaho for many reasons, but Bates was accused of grand theft because the police were only able to find him.

"We have a clear and direct connection to the crime," said Bates. "We found him with a laptop and phone, which were of significant value."
Wear denim to show support for women

DENIM DAY

For more information on Denim Day visit
students.uidaho.edu/Students/Awareness

...about the entire Whitewater/Clearwater Program.

...For information about the Whitewater Center's
...Student Assistance Program, call

...The Women's Center encourages everyone to wear denim April 19 as part of the center's annual Denim Awareness Month celebration.

..."Fear,戴enim," she said. "People will not know what to make of it, they will go up to ask you," she said. "It's just a collective visual signal and it starts dialogue, and I think we need both."...Benoit said she encourages everyone to sell their friends on Denim Day and to

...Harvard University Institute of Politics poll that was released Tuesday in a telephone survey of 1,200 Americans. The poll showed somewhat or very important in their lives, and they'd become more spiritual while wearing denim.

...Seventy-five percent said they wore denim most of the time.

...Students were surveyed

...Denim Day seems to fit in well in April," Russo said. "Any time we can raise awareness it is a good time." In the past she has been sending out letters to invite participa-

...The coalition has secured the support of the Whitewater Center's "Daze" but the members have

...all age rape crisis centers in the nation to sponsor Denim Day in their states to

...University of Idaho students and denim, according to the Daily Argonaut.

NationalBRIEFS

Students more interested in religion

WASHINGTON—A major-

...of U.S. college students,

...Students were surveyed, according to the Daily Argonaut.

...and said abortion policy, stem cell

...and early marriage proposals, questioned morality in

...in finding that surprised the

...Seventy-five percent said they wore denim most of the time.

...Students were surveyed

..."Why Denim?" is in the front.

..."The button starts a dia-

...dialogue. People want to know

...she said. "If it's just a collective visual signal and it starts dialogue, and I think we need both."...Benoit said she encourages everyone to sell their friends on Denim Day and to..."Fear, denim," she said. "People will not know what to make of it, they will go up to ask you," she said. "It's just a collective visual signal and it starts dialogue, and I think we need both."...Benoit said she encourages everyone to sell their friends on Denim Day and to

...Harvard University Institute of Politics poll that was released Tuesday in a telephone survey of 1,200 Americans. The poll showed somewhat or very important in their lives, and they'd become more spiritual while wearing denim.

...Seventy-five percent said they wore denim most of the time.

...Students were surveyed, according to the Daily Argonaut.

...and said abortion policy, stem cell

...and early marriage proposals, questioned morality in

...in finding that surprised the

...Seventy-five percent said they wore denim most of the time.

...Students were surveyed
Money order scams on the rise

By Kevin Wilcher

Consider this scenario: You are a University of Idaho student, hoping to find someone to take over your portion of a rental agreement because you have found a job in another city and need to move out of your apartment. You find someone on Roommates.com who agrees to take over your portion of the lease and move in with your roommate. After you work out all the details, the first month's rent arrives in the mail: a money order for $2,000. You deposit it and send the remaining $1,715 in cash to the nicer-to-be center. The problem is, the money order was a forgery, the renter never had any intention of moving in and your bank account was overdrawn by $1,715 as a result of your steps to scrimp by a scam.

For former UI student Emily Arthurs, this was too good to be true. It all began for Arthurs last November when she started looking for someone to take over her portion of a rental lease so she could move to Portland. She eventually found someone willing to move in to her duplex and cover what would be Arthurs' portion of the rent. On Roommates.com, she found a listing for a Roommates.com apartment and sent an e-mail request for more information. She heard back immediately and went on a visit. "I thought she was a midwife in Scotland, and even asked for Arthur's phone number so I could speak to the United States."

When Arthurs got the first month's rent from the would-be tenant, Arthurs said, it was not sent via a money order, but via a check written on $1,715 or $2,000. "Arthurs deposited December's rent back to the sender. However, a few days later, her bank account was overdrawn because the money order was deemed to be fraudulent.

"Definitely be able to meet with the person and talk with them face-to-face," she said, adding that avoiding the use of e-mail in such transactions is preferable because it is easy to send an impersonal means of communication and grants them the opportunity to require to carry out some of the steps. Also, she suggested Arthurs avoid Roommates.com and similar sites because so many people have been taken in by scams made possible by the site. "(On Roommates.com), it is so hard to tell what is legitimate from what is not legitimate," she said.

"I also said to take extra precautions whenever someone uses a money order as a method of payment. Money orders are a traditional method of payment, but you still need to be wary of anything that looks too good to be true or anything that seems too easy.

Check The Argonaut out on the Web:
You can:
• Write letters to the editor • Comment on current stories • Read old stories • Vote in the online poll
www.argonaut.uidaho.edu

By Sam Taylor

The father of two men who murder-for-hire scheme was in police custody in McMillan in 2004 has pleaded guilty to three charges in connection with providing false information to process a fraudulent money order, according to court records.

The first day of Matthew Wells Sr.'s pecular trial would have begun Tuesday in the five agreement with the Idaho Attorney General's office had not been much in evidence the case.

State prosecutors alleged in the initial plea that Wells Sr. and his brother, Eric, used their home as a "killing room" to plan a murder-for-hire scheme in which they would kill to kill their victim.

The 25-year-old former student was convicted of lying about his knowledge of his brother's murder for hire. He was sentenced to 25 years in prison for the two counts against him and will be sentenced May 14.

"I'm a rescuer," Wells Sr. said to the judge during the plea agreement in which he was sentenced to three years in prison in his perjury case.

"I'm a rescuer," Wells Sr. said to the judge during the plea agreement in which he was sentenced to three years in prison in his perjury case. He was sentenced to 12 years in prison for the two counts against him and will be sentenced May 14.

Thomas Riggins, the Wells broth- ers' cousin, testified against Aaron Arthurs, the younger brother, in the case.

Arthurs was sentenced Nov. 15, 2005, to 25 years in prison with the possibility of parole after eight years.

They pleaded not to second-degree murder and both admitted to having shot McMillan, one of them in the head and another in the chest for the death of their football player.

The brothers told the judge during the sentencing that their younger brother and cousin had nothing to do with the murder, and the judge immediately dismissed the murder charges against the Riggins.

Wells father pleads to misdemeanor in perjury case

\[\text{\LARGE Money order scams on the rise}\]

\[\text{\LARGE Money order scams on the rise}\]
GUILTY from page 1
"Schroegel admitted guilt from the stand. "And it goes to $73,000 if illegal graffiti or questionable expenditures is less than $1,000, it's the same." "I know that," said Fred Hirsch, an assistant public defender for the University of Idaho, who appeared for Smith on Monday. "I know what Mr. Schroegel's guilty plea, but I have not yet learned about the public money — it is in the insurance fund and then to the court account," Hirsch said. "So that's the fact, the general fund, and appropriately," he said. Schroegel said, "It's the same fund again, but the same year, 2001.

ASUI from page 1
who have been nominated or involved in ASUI. "A lot of students just don't attend classes, and I think that needs to change," she said. "It's better if your name is on the ballot, and you're fighting for something." But Robert Taylor, an Army war veteran who is now in his first semester at the University of Idaho, said some people had to do with specific students. "I was one of those who voted," he said. "I didn't care about the outcome."

WICHMAN from page 1
"They're putting the field campus to educate our alumni, and we are on the road to preparing students better," said Frank Colantuoni, executive director and a professor at the College of Natural Resources. The school is continually seeking undergraduate students for the program, and in the past, UI students who teach for the program earn 15 credits over the course of 15 weeks in the field, beginning in August and ending in November.

By Jon Carmine

A classroom outdoors

This summer, elementary students will be leaving nature and science in a much larger classroom. Starting September, the McCall Outdoor Science School, a University of Idaho philanthropy, will take hundreds of students from Coeur d'Alene to the forest to learn about nature and wildlife. The school is owned by UI and was originally used to teach forestry students.

"We're not using the field campus to educate students anymore, but we are on the road to preparing students better," said Frank Colantuoni, executive director and a professor at the College of Natural Resources. The school is continually seeking undergraduate students for the program, and in the past, UI students who teach for the program earn 15 credits over the course of 15 weeks in the field, beginning in August and ending in November.
‘Shadow campaigns’ put millions into races

Fiorina's campaign group

WASHINGTON — The Democratic National Committee has been charging groups with having "shadow campaigns" that are preparing to swell their national funds to be able to pour tens of millions of dollars into races that don't otherwise warrant the花费.

The term, which both parties have used, refers to campaigns that take advantage of a provision in campaign-finance law allowing independent groups to raise and spend unlimited amounts on behalf of specific candidates.

But critics say the groups are independent in name only and that the money in their coffers is coming from the same sources that fund their employers. "Shadow campaigns" tend to be funded by corporate PACs, unions or wealthy donors.

The DNC has been hoping to halt the trend of "shadow campaigns," which it says are "stifling competition" and "undermining the integrity of the democratic process." But so far, the efforts have been unsuccessful.

The DNC announced recently that it would take legal action against two "shadow campaigns" that were raising money for specific candidates.

"We are not going to allow these groups to act like official political organizations and use the resources of their corporate PACs and unions to underwrite the campaigns of their chosen candidates," DNC Chair Terry McAuliffe said.

But the Independent Sector, a group of independent political organizations, says the DNC's efforts are "unwise" and "unsustainable."

"We are concerned that the DNC's efforts to stop 'shadow campaigns' will only serve to undermine the democratic process," the Independent Sector said in a statement.

The Independent Sector also pointed out that the DNC's efforts to stop "shadow campaigns" could backfire, as the groups may simply rebrand themselves and continue to operate as "shadow campaigns."
Shifting countries

Part two of a story on one Chinese woman and her family at the University of Idaho

By Melissa Doyle

Raising children while attending school full-time would be daunting for anyone but Aygul Keyserova doesn't let the challenges stop her — among other things, she has learned both Mandarin and English and the joy of her family lives in China.

"I feel people say it and they're surprised," she says. "They say I'm very brave for doing this.

Aygul, an Uighur woman from the Xinjiang province in China, studied on campus at the University of Idaho—second largest minority group in China and made up of 2 million of the 11 million Muslims in the country. Aygul and her husband, Adil, moved from their home in Phoenix, to Moscow, in 2000.

Their daughter Elmira stayed in China with Aygul's mother in law for four months because the couple didn't have enough money to bring her to Sweden.

"We missed her. We were very lonely without her," Aygul says.

After studying at the Royal Institute of Technology, the family moved to Philadelphia on August 20, 2001. They were looking for a University so Aygul could take her MBA at the University of Pennsylvania. Aygul's visa didn't allow her to leave the United States, so she was forced to become a housewife. Aygul, who was used to working and going to school, quickly became bored and decided to look for a doctorate program for herself.

While Aygul was applying to schools, she found out she was pregnant. She decided to continue with her plan to go to school.

"I can continue my studies because of my husband's support and encouragement," she says.

Aygul and her family are part of many Uighurs in Moscow. Aygul chose to come to UI when she came, she was aided by the International Programs Office, which helped her settle in and gave her donated furniture and appliances for her apartment. Aygul also received support from other Uighurs living in the community.

"I'm a student. I'm a mother. I'm happy," Aygul says.

(Above) Aygul Keyserova, center, sits with her daughters, Elmira, left, and Maria. Aygul proposes raising her daugh- ters' bilingual as she is with her husband's family. (Right) Elmira enjoys making jewelry. She took a job when she was five and recently won a prize about friendship in the English language.

(Bottom left) Elmira likes playing with her little sister, Maria, and brings her toys when she visits. Elmira has attended school in both China and Sweden and Moscow and her many placements.

(Bottom right) "Elmira is very good at writing and drawing," Aygul says. Aygul's home is decorated with pictures Elmira has drawn.

"I want to be an artist," Elmira says.

"Moscow is a very lovely town. I got so many people's help and I felt very welcome," Aygul says.

"I'm very happy with my husband and my children. Thanks to my husband, I'm able to study."

"I plan to have more children when I'm done with my studies," she says.

"I like playing with other children," she says.

"I'm happy enough to be living in the United States since 2000," Aygul says.

"I feel Chinese culture is part of the American culture. I feel Chinese food and speaks to her children in both Uighur and English.

Aygul spends as much time as she can with her daughters, Maria, 7, and Elmira, 6, while enjoying her American city. "You can study while they're sleeping."

Despite the challenges she's faced, Aygul says she enjoys attending UI.

"Moscow is a very lovely town. I get so many people's help and I felt very welcome."
Bush loses all credibility

An essay, The Argument encourages all students to vote in the presidential election, which will be held in November. The essay states that it is essential for young people to vote, not only for the sake of their country, but also for their own well-being. The essay emphasizes that the presidential election is not only about choosing a president, but also about choosing the future of the country.

Bilge Sezgin, a CAA operative, Bush initially was shocked, but stated that he would support the candidate. This was a significant statement because it indicated that Bush was willing to look beyond his personal feelings and support the democratic process. The essay concludes by encouraging students to vote and to be active in the election process.

Letters Policy

Letters should be limited to 300 words, double spaced. Authors are encouraged to include a digital signature with their contribution, which will be included in the signature block. Letters should be submitted to the editor via email at editor@argonaut.org. The Argonaut welcomes letters to the editor about current issues. The Argonaut reserves the right to edit letters for length and clarity. All letters should be signed and include a daytime phone number.

Volunteering is for everyone

The response to the call for volunteers was overwhelming. Many students who were not involved in any other activities were eager to help others. The volunteers were able to make a significant difference in the lives of those in need. The experience was both rewarding and fulfilling, and it helped students develop a sense of empathy and compassion.

EDITORIAL POLICY

The Argonaut is distributed as a feature of the campus newspaper, The Argonaut. The Argonaut is published online and in print. The editorial page is composed of student-written articles. The Argonaut is not affiliated with any political party or organization. The Argonaut reserves the right to edit letters for length and clarity.
Ul musicians reclaim the organ

By Brian Rich

Yes, people still play the organ, and no, they don't call it the organ anymore. Matthew Pilcher and Paul Taylor, two University of Idaho music students, not only play the organ, but they also won this year's Terry John Organ Scholarship competition, winning $400 and $250, respectively. The two seniors, both of whom recently finished their four-year undergraduate studies, have been playing organ for several years now, though he started his study much earlier on the piano. He started in middle school, but didn't really develop his skill until high school. The second-year junior studen's study was much later, beginning in high school, but he's finishing his second of two master's level organ lessons.

"I've been playing the organ for a year, though he better than before," says Paul Taylor. "I can see the difference in other people's perceptions because it's unlike any other keyboard instrument. The organ has a far different feel than any other keyboard instrument. It's different," said Paul. "And it's different style - the organ is so unique that you choose the right instances for it and see the keyboard on it to discern its feel. It can keep your interest. Paul said organs are much more complex and each organist must find ways to learn from the way both hands and feet work. It makes it a challenge. You usually hold some notes even when other organs do not."

"I've been studying for years with one of the most outstanding teachers in the country,," says Taylor. "I've been studying with Professor Helmut Prichard for years. He's a very good teacher and has been a source of inspiration for me."

"The process isn't easy but it is rewarding. As a result, the music is more interesting."

The performance was held in the Student Union Ballroom. The audience consisted of approximately 50 people, including family and friends of the performers, as well as music students.

"I've been playing the organ for a year, though he better than before," says Paul Taylor. "I can see the difference in other people's perceptions because it's unlike any other keyboard instrument. The organ has a far different feel than any other keyboard instrument. It's different," said Paul. "And it's different style - the organ is so unique that you choose the right instances for it and see the keyboard on it to discern its feel. It can keep your interest. Paul said organs are much more complex and each organist must find ways to learn from the way both hands and feet work. It makes it a challenge. You usually hold some notes even when other organs do not."

"I've been studying for years with one of the most outstanding teachers in the country,," says Taylor. "I've been studying with Professor Helmut Prichard for years. He's a very good teacher and has been a source of inspiration for me."

"The process isn't easy but it is rewarding. As a result, the music is more interesting."

The performance was held in the Student Union Ballroom. The audience consisted of approximately 50 people, including family and friends of the performers, as well as music students.

"I've been playing the organ for a year, though he better than before," says Paul Taylor. "I can see the difference in other people's perceptions because it's unlike any other keyboard instrument. The organ has a far different feel than any other keyboard instrument. It's different," said Paul. "And it's different style - the organ is so unique that you choose the right instances for it and see the keyboard on it to discern its feel. It can keep your interest. Paul said organs are much more complex and each organist must find ways to learn from the way both hands and feet work. It makes it a challenge. You usually hold some notes even when other organs do not."

"I've been studying for years with one of the most outstanding teachers in the country,," says Taylor. "I've been studying with Professor Helmut Prichard for years. He's a very good teacher and has been a source of inspiration for me."

"The process isn't easy but it is rewarding. As a result, the music is more interesting."

The performance was held in the Student Union Ballroom. The audience consisted of approximately 50 people, including family and friends of the performers, as well as music students.

"I've been playing the organ for a year, though he better than before," says Paul Taylor. "I can see the difference in other people's perceptions because it's unlike any other keyboard instrument. The organ has a far different feel than any other keyboard instrument. It's different," said Paul. "And it's different style - the organ is so unique that you choose the right instances for it and see the keyboard on it to discern its feel. It can keep your interest. Paul said organs are much more complex and each organist must find ways to learn from the way both hands and feet work. It makes it a challenge. You usually hold some notes even when other organs do not."

"I've been studying for years with one of the most outstanding teachers in the country,," says Taylor. "I've been studying with Professor Helmut Prichard for years. He's a very good teacher and has been a source of inspiration for me."

"The process isn't easy but it is rewarding. As a result, the music is more interesting."

The performance was held in the Student Union Ballroom. The audience consisted of approximately 50 people, including family and friends of the performers, as well as music students.

"I've been playing the organ for a year, though he better than before," says Paul Taylor. "I can see the difference in other people's perceptions because it's unlike any other keyboard instrument. The organ has a far different feel than any other keyboard instrument. It's different," said Paul. "And it's different style - the organ is so unique that you choose the right instances for it and see the keyboard on it to discern its feel. It can keep your interest. Paul said organs are much more complex and each organist must find ways to learn from the way both hands and feet work. It makes it a challenge. You usually hold some notes even when other organs do not."

"I've been studying for years with one of the most outstanding teachers in the country,," says Taylor. "I've been studying with Professor Helmut Prichard for years. He's a very good teacher and has been a source of inspiration for me."

"The process isn't easy but it is rewarding. As a result, the music is more interesting."

The performance was held in the Student Union Ballroom. The audience consisted of approximately 50 people, including family and friends of the performers, as well as music students.

"I've been playing the organ for a year, though he better than before," says Paul Taylor. "I can see the difference in other people's perceptions because it's unlike any other keyboard instrument. The organ has a far different feel than any other keyboard instrument. It's different," said Paul. "And it's different style - the organ is so unique that you choose the right instances for it and see the keyboard on it to discern its feel. It can keep your interest. Paul said organs are much more complex and each organist must find ways to learn from the way both hands and feet work. It makes it a challenge. You usually hold some notes even when other organs do not."

"I've been studying for years with one of the most outstanding teachers in the country,," says Taylor. "I've been studying with Professor Helmut Prichard for years. He's a very good teacher and has been a source of inspiration for me."

"The process isn't easy but it is rewarding. As a result, the music is more interesting."

The performance was held in the Student Union Ballroom. The audience consisted of approximately 50 people, including family and friends of the performers, as well as music students.

"I've been playing the organ for a year, though he better than before," says Paul Taylor. "I can see the difference in other people's perceptions because it's unlike any other keyboard instrument. The organ has a far different feel than any other keyboard instrument. It's different," said Paul. "And it's different style - the organ is so unique that you choose the right instances for it and see the keyboard on it to discern its feel. It can keep your interest. Paul said organs are much more complex and each organist must find ways to learn from the way both hands and feet work. It makes it a challenge. You usually hold some notes even when other organs do not."

"I've been studying for years with one of the most outstanding teachers in the country,," says Taylor. "I've been studying with Professor Helmut Prichard for years. He's a very good teacher and has been a source of inspiration for me."

"The process isn't easy but it is rewarding. As a result, the music is more interesting."

The performance was held in the Student Union Ballroom. The audience consisted of approximately 50 people, including family and friends of the performers, as well as music students.

"I've been playing the organ for a year, though he better than before," says Paul Taylor. "I can see the difference in other people's perceptions because it's unlike any other keyboard instrument. The organ has a far different feel than any other keyboard instrument. It's different," said Paul. "And it's different style - the organ is so unique that you choose the right instances for it and see the keyboard on it to discern its feel. It can keep your interest. Paul said organs are much more complex and each organist must find ways to learn from the way both hands and feet work. It makes it a challenge. You usually hold some notes even when other organs do not."

"I've been studying for years with one of the most outstanding teachers in the country,," says Taylor. "I've been studying with Professor Helmut Prichard for years. He's a very good teacher and has been a source of inspiration for me."

"The process isn't easy but it is rewarding. As a result, the music is more interesting."

The performance was held in the Student Union Ballroom. The audience consisted of approximately 50 people, including family and friends of the performers, as well as music students.
By Carisa Wright

David Mangold’s “Collateral Scars,” directed by Vernon Stone and produced by Sinai Ishaq, examines the motivations of texts that are in search of writing, rewrite history to look more pleasurable and question the truthfulness of the actions that have been taken.

The question is this—Where is the line between heroes and villains marked? Do one’s professional connections mean more than the ethical behavior of another? How much does anyone own their own life? What is the difference between being a victim and a villain?

In an article by the author, Isabella Whitfield, she talks about the line that is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

She talks about the line that is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

The line between heroes and villains is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

She talks about the line that is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

The line between heroes and villains is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

She talks about the line that is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

The line between heroes and villains is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

She talks about the line that is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

The line between heroes and villains is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

She talks about the line that is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

The line between heroes and villains is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

She talks about the line that is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

The line between heroes and villains is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

She talks about the line that is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

The line between heroes and villains is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

She talks about the line that is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

The line between heroes and villains is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

She talks about the line that is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

The line between heroes and villains is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

She talks about the line that is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

The line between heroes and villains is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

She talks about the line that is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

The line between heroes and villains is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

She talks about the line that is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

The line between heroes and villains is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

She talks about the line that is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

The line between heroes and villains is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

She talks about the line that is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

The line between heroes and villains is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

She talks about the line that is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

The line between heroes and villains is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

She talks about the line that is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

The line between heroes and villains is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

She talks about the line that is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

The line between heroes and villains is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

She talks about the line that is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

The line between heroes and villains is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

She talks about the line that is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

The line between heroes and villains is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

She talks about the line that is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

The line between heroes and villains is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

She talks about the line that is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

The line between heroes and villains is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

She talks about the line that is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

The line between heroes and villains is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

She talks about the line that is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

The line between heroes and villains is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

She talks about the line that is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

The line between heroes and villains is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

She talks about the line that is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

The line between heroes and villains is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

She talks about the line that is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

The line between heroes and villains is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

She talks about the line that is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

The line between heroes and villains is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.

She talks about the line that is not written yet. It is not the line that is written, but the line that is not written. It is the line between heroes and villains.
Aubrey's Concert Series at the Chicken Farm

Join us for a special evening with Aubrey's Concert Series at the Chicken Farm. This event promises an unforgettable experience of music and culture. Please arrive on time to ensure a great night. We look forward to seeing you there!
Involvement extends beyond the Dome

By Mike Hart

The responsibilities of a college athlete extend beyond performance on the field and the University of Idaho Student Athlete Advisory Committee understands that. The SAAC, which gives student-athletes a chance to voice their opinions on important issues and give back to the community, is a forum where athletes can be involved. "Athletes can bring up issues and not feel nervous about it because it’s a safe place to complain and listen," SAAC President Melissa Owen said. "We also discuss ways to better our relationship with other students and community members."

SAAC stems from the CHAMPs Life Skills Program that was developed by the NCAA to help understand the roles players take on the field and outside. CHAMPs is a curriculum that gives student-athletes a chance to voice their opinions on important issues and give back to the community. "It’s basically a forum where athletes can bring up issues and not feel nervous about it because it’s a safe place to complain and listen," SAAC President Melissa Owen said. "We also discuss ways to better our relationship with other students and community members."
Sports Briefs

Women's basketball takes on the form of coach Mike D'Antoni. The Vandals signed four junior college transfers for the upcoming season, which will bring the total number of student-athletes at the University of Idaho to 500.

The Vandals will be playing a 5-6 all-American wing from Gonzaga, a 5-9 guard from St. Mary's, a 5-7 guard from Idaho State, and a 5-9 wing from Idaho State. The Vandals will meet their team on Friday.

"We needed some depth and we decided to take the risk," said assistant coach Greg Booher. "We want to give them a chance to play." The Vandals will play against the Vandals in the upcoming season.

Injuries, however, have not stopped the Vandals from playing. The Vandals college players unless they can get in the game and help us win. All of those positions will have to be filled by players who have never played basketball before.

Dure, from Lake Washington, will bring his experience to the court. He will be the new head coach of the Vandals men's basketball team. Dure was named the new head coach of the Vandals last week.

"This is a great opportunity for me," said Dure. "I am excited to be a part of the Vandals basketball program." Dure will be working with the Vandals in the upcoming season.

Basketball

In the second half, the Vandals took the lead back and were able to close the game. After scoring -2 in the first half, they were able to tie the game. The Vandals were able to close the game with a win at the buzzer.

Wrestling

The Vandals have qualified five student-athletes for the NCAA tournament. Four of them will be competing in the 125-pound weight class. The third best, Ian Kuchar, will be competing in the 165-pound weight class.

"We are excited to have five student-athletes qualify for the NCAA tournament," said Dure. "This is a great opportunity for them to showcase their skills." Dure will be working with the Vandals in the upcoming season.

"I am looking forward to see how they perform," said Dure. "They have done a great job so far and I believe they will do well in the tournament." Dure will be working with the Vandals in the upcoming season.

The Vandals have qualified five student-athletes for the NCAA tournament. Four of them will be competing in the 125-pound weight class. The third best, Ian Kuchar, will be competing in the 165-pound weight class.

"We are excited to have five student-athletes qualify for the NCAA tournament," said Dure. "This is a great opportunity for them to showcase their skills." Dure will be working with the Vandals in the upcoming season.

"I am looking forward to see how they perform," said Dure. "They have done a great job so far and I believe they will do well in the tournament." Dure will be working with the Vandals in the upcoming season.

The Vandals have qualified five student-athletes for the NCAA tournament. Four of them will be competing in the 125-pound weight class. The third best, Ian Kuchar, will be competing in the 165-pound weight class.

"We are excited to have five student-athletes qualify for the NCAA tournament," said Dure. "This is a great opportunity for them to showcase their skills." Dure will be working with the Vandals in the upcoming season.

"I am looking forward to see how they perform," said Dure. "They have done a great job so far and I believe they will do well in the tournament." Dure will be working with the Vandals in the upcoming season.

The Vandals have qualified five student-athletes for the NCAA tournament. Four of them will be competing in the 125-pound weight class. The third best, Ian Kuchar, will be competing in the 165-pound weight class.

"We are excited to have five student-athletes qualify for the NCAA tournament," said Dure. "This is a great opportunity for them to showcase their skills." Dure will be working with the Vandals in the upcoming season.

"I am looking forward to see how they perform," said Dure. "They have done a great job so far and I believe they will do well in the tournament." Dure will be working with the Vandals in the upcoming season.

The Vandals have qualified five student-athletes for the NCAA tournament. Four of them will be competing in the 125-pound weight class. The third best, Ian Kuchar, will be competing in the 165-pound weight class.

"We are excited to have five student-athletes qualify for the NCAA tournament," said Dure. "This is a great opportunity for them to showcase their skills." Dure will be working with the Vandals in the upcoming season.

"I am looking forward to see how they perform," said Dure. "They have done a great job so far and I believe they will do well in the tournament." Dure will be working with the Vandals in the upcoming season.

The Vandals have qualified five student-athletes for the NCAA tournament. Four of them will be competing in the 125-pound weight class. The third best, Ian Kuchar, will be competing in the 165-pound weight class.

"We are excited to have five student-athletes qualify for the NCAA tournament," said Dure. "This is a great opportunity for them to showcase their skills." Dure will be working with the Vandals in the upcoming season.

"I am looking forward to see how they perform," said Dure. "They have done a great job so far and I believe they will do well in the tournament." Dure will be working with the Vandals in the upcoming season.
The Gamekillers OBITUARIES April 2006

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Game Killed</th>
<th>Game Killed</th>
<th>Game Killed</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Andre Massis</td>
<td>Eric Smith</td>
<td>wearing expensive Italian jackets and indoor sunglasses. Drinks were bought for willing and unwilling recipients alike with his family's future, which he shamelessly flaunted in the form of an array of high status plastic. This caused Jon to suddenly lose his cool and go on the defensive by opening a tab of his own. On his debit card. After three rounds, Jon's account was erased. Shortly after he was dropped off alone would Jon learn the hard way that a woman's affections should never be for sale, and that many a man has gone broke trying to prove otherwise.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fernando Nieves</td>
<td>Hanway Shiah</td>
<td>Brit ancient consciousness, he was home alone and unable to console himself with his dominant hand.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zack Danielson</td>
<td>Bharon Kumar</td>
<td>so all it took was a single &quot;pardon&quot; to make his girl raise an eyebrow toward the game killing Redcoat. This prompted Bharon to get riled by calling out the guy's budding yellow badger and comparing the merits of blackjack over cricket. The British Accent Guy smiled and opened his mouth only to offer me all small bits of nonconfrontational banter, allowing his accent to seep into the girl's brain like a piece of brilliant propaganda. In the end, the Brit would invade on Bharon's territory with ease, taking the girl, and leaving Bharon's game shown on the road as a piece of collateral damage.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Andre, São Paulo, BR</td>
<td>Jon Fox</td>
<td>SMITH, Eric, Washington, DC</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Was led away from a pretty young thing and into a heated game of 'Foe' by his good friend Carl—more commonly known as &quot;The Mayor of No Women's Island.&quot; While Andre made several attempts to step away and pack into convention with the said female, Carl's relentless pursuit for all things that don't involve getting some, was ultimately too much for the young Andre. He quickly found himself sweating it out over the air hockey table, from where he would be a glimpse of his young beauty, heading out the door with another suitor. Andre's game will be remembered by many, just not her.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>NIEVES, Fernando, New York, NY</td>
<td>Chad Utsch</td>
<td>His game was being riled at the local coffee shop with a seemingly receptive late dinker called Rita and he seemed well on his way to a little afternoon delight, that is until the cardybacked Gamekiller known as &quot;IQ&quot; entered picture. This purported scholastic scavenger, famous for luring men into heated debates on subjects of which they know nothing, overheard the conversation turning to art and poured. Immediately he stepped the dialogue into an area known as Out Of Chad's Depth where he would dash out ever increasing portions of intellectual emasculation. Chad reacted as anyone with a 20 point IQ deficit asking &quot;IQ&quot; would the wrong way. No, the answer to &quot;When do you feel Picasso peaked?&quot; isn't it obvious, the overconfident in the chest. Rita was left to apologize emphatically for Chad's actions and asked if she could make up for it in some way. Chad tried to recover, but it was too late. He had lost his cool, and his game would retire home, where it would begin its own blue period.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>His game was being riled at the local coffee shop with a seemingly receptive late dinker called Rita and he seemed well on his way to a little afternoon delight, that is until the cardybacked Gamekiller known as &quot;IQ&quot; entered picture. This purported scholastic scavenger, famous for luring men into heated debates on subjects of which they know nothing, overheard the conversation turning to art and poured. Immediately he stepped the dialogue into an area known as Out Of Chad's Depth where he would dash out ever increasing portions of intellectual emasculation. Chad reacted as anyone with a 20 point IQ deficit asking &quot;IQ&quot; would the wrong way. No, the answer to &quot;When do you feel Picasso peaked?&quot; isn't it obvious, the overconfident in the chest. Rita was left to apologize emphatically for Chad's actions and asked if she could make up for it in some way. Chad tried to recover, but it was too late. He had lost his cool, and his game would retire home, where it would begin its own blue period.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>SHIEN Hanway, Los Angeles, CA</td>
<td>Jon's game, beloved to many a cheerleader and facilitator of the minute of 2003, was lasting well at a Gold Coast club with a delightful pair of sious. That is until the playboy predator and full time Gamekiller simply known as Kashi Munti entered the picture. A well-endowed socallite famous for tracking down hot hotel rooms, Kashi had traveled in from all rich lands.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hanway was staring at a Latin duo at an apartment complex barbecue and his game was hot enough to pose a fire hazard, that is until his friends and sources of honor known as The Mess entered the picture and snatched Hanway up like a flash flood of distraction. Somewhat of a loose cannon, The Mess immediately engaged Hanway in the age-old male bonding tradition of lighting one's own fries. Sure, Hanways little more enticing than the ignition of one's own comfortable human gasses, but much like riding an electric scooter, you don't look cool doing it. When the laughter subsided, Hanway was left with nothing but a good laugh and the faint smell of old eggs, while his body was snared by a new suitor. Man, talk about blowing it.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>FOX Jon, London, UK</td>
<td>Danielson, Zack, Atlanta, GA</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>It was early in the evening yesterday when Zack's game left us, and while it didn't go without a fight, Zack did have his own unceremoniously handed to him. Upon returning home, Zack found the girl he was seeing had been surrounded by a bevy of meanmoths, Early then, who tried to use his abundant muscle to surround him out of the picture. Zack did not keep his cool and accused his year's, lady friend along with the frat guy who came along. His no doubt disguised by Zack's overripe bravado, fled the scene when his far from attractive jealousy escalated into Zack throwing a punch, which was caught in midair by something that looked like a hand, but felt like a 20lb. vice. By the time Zack regained consciousness, he was home alone and unable to console himself with his dominant hand.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>KUMAR Bharon, Jacksonville, FL</td>
<td>Hanway &amp; Co.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>After kicking his game to a leggy redhead at a down market, Bharon was interrupted by Tawoe, a.k.a. British Accent Guy. Women are drawn to men with British accents, for their coolness and their ability to draw the opposite sex, and Bharon was no exception. His game was on-lookers.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>UTCHI Chad, New Brunswick, NJ</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>His game was being riled at the local coffee shop with a seemingly receptive late dinker called Rita and he seemed well on his way to a little afternoon delight, that is until the cardybacked Gamekiller known as &quot;IQ&quot; entered picture. This purported scholastic scavenger, famous for luring men into heated debates on subjects of which they know nothing, overheard the conversation turning to art and poured. Immediately he stepped the dialogue into an area known as Out Of Chad's Depth where he would dash out ever increasing portions of intellectual emasculation. Chad reacted as anyone with a 20 point IQ deficit asking &quot;IQ&quot; would the wrong way. No, the answer to &quot;When do you feel Picasso peaked?&quot; isn't it obvious, the overconfident in the chest. Rita was left to apologize emphatically for Chad's actions and asked if she could make up for it in some way. Chad tried to recover, but it was too late. He had lost his cool, and his game would retire home, where it would begin its own blue period.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Obituaries can be created and sent via email to friends at gameworkers.com.