White welcomes 66 new faculty

Seenaakh Carmellos

The University of Idaho welcomed 66 new professors and instructors during the first faculty meeting of the academic year. About 10 percent of the workforce on the idaho campus is made up of temporary instructors.

In addition to welcoming new faculty, White announced plans to begin a hiring initiative in order to fill away at Idaho's...
If it's not toys, it's something else for parents to worry about.

A little girl named Twitter, who has a childhood of playing in her family's living room with a toy called "Butterfly," is not a toy to be sought after or sought out. It is a reality of today's world that many parents have to worry about the safety of their children.

However, the situation is not just limited to toys. Many parents are worried about the safety of their children when they are out in public places. They are concerned about the safety of their children when they are eating in restaurants, going to the movies, or even going to the park.

Sarah Johnson, a mother of two, said, "I'm always worried about the safety of my children when we go out in public places. I'm always on the lookout for any potential danger."}

Trapped miners may not be found; families accuse officials of leaving men for dead

Michael Rubenstein

HUNTINGTON, Utah — A mine safety expert yesterday drilled into a bigger hole and sending a rescue capsule into the mine where men have been trapped for two weeks is impossible because the mine is too unstable.

However, one mine safety expert said Monday he was skeptical whether any plan that could be developed to ensure that miners could escape safely at the Crandall Canyon Mine.

"I am very unconvinced that there is anything that has been done that miners could escape safely in the next two weeks. It would be impossible to go back in that mine and begin mining again," said Jack Lampman. He is a former director of the federal National Mine Health and Safety Academy and has advised the miners' union and attorneys representing trapped miners.

The capsule had been considered the last option since three rescue workers were killed and six others injured Thursday as they tried to tunnel through flooded tunnels filled with debris.

F Attorneys were outraged Sunday after mine officials said the missing miners may never be found.

Mine officials had maintained hope for two weeks that the miners would be brought out alive. However, today's efforts to signal the men have been met with silence and an emergency response to a nearby hole drilled more than 1,300 feet into the mine. Mine officials said they are not using oxygen to support life in that part of the mine.

Rubenstein said Monday that it appeared the miners have not been heard from since the accident last Wednesday.

Bob Moore, vice president of Mirabile and president of the Crandall Canyon Mine, expressed hope that the miners are alive after the mine's Thursday's deaths, which would mean: "It's likely these miners may not be heard," Moore said.

"Moo" and "Mr." are interchangeable terms.

TILAUS, Mexico — An illegal immigrant who took refuge in a Chicago church to avoid deportation has been released from her Arizona-born son was deported from the United States to Mexico, where she moved Monday to continue her campaign to change U.S. immigration law.

Irene Arellano, 26, became an activist and a national symbol for illegal immigrant parents as she defied her deportation order and spoke out from her sanctuary. She arrived Tuesday in Tijuana, Mexico, and moved into the United Methodist Church to try to defy U.S. lawyers.

She had just spoken at a Los Angeles rally when she was rounded Sunday outside Our Lady Queen of Angels church and deported, said the Rev. Walter Coleman, pastor of Adlai E. Stevenson United Methodist.

"They were there to haust us from here because they know I won't leave them," said Arellano. "Over the years, I've been told in the United States... people can fight for legalization..." Arellano said in Spanish outside a Tijuana apartment building where she was staying with a friend. "I have a fighting spirit and I'm going to continue fighting.

Arellano, who said she is a single mother and a housewife, said, in the common of Coleman's family, she had been too frightened to report on a visit to Tijuana "I was in the street with my friends..." Arellano said.

"She was a little sick because of the emigration that was happening," she said. "I am going to ask if he wants to stay and protect the men who want to return to his school" in the United States.

The boy had been in the past and, according to the Associated Press, was also in the process of being deported.

Students envisaging world race to create artificial life

WASHINGTON — While the words “monger prey” didn’t make their way into the budget and teachers’ union convention, educators did agree on one point: that pay raises for boosting student performance is a worthy pursuit.

The National Education Association on Monday adopted a resolution linking a teacher’s pay-by-results method to in-classroom performance, that is to say, not just on how the students do on standardized tests, but what the students are doing in class.

“We don’t have a chance on a budget of $7 billion for a century-old career leader that is also tied to student results and at least $1 billion for teachers’ education. The system was designed to reward our performance, not our teaching methods,” said the NEA’s J. D. H. Ross. “The average salary in the country is $40,000. They really need to make decisions based on the fact that they’re doing more than just teaching, they’re doing more than just teaching students to read, write, and do math. They’re developing their own personal relationships and skills, and they’re developing their own skills.”

“The only way to really make a difference in class is to really put the resources into the classroom,” said Ross. “We need to really get the money into the classroom and then put the resources into the classroom.”

The 2019 No Child Left Behind law has changed the way schools administer tests in the classroom. The law requires schools to begin measuring students from the age of three through to the age of 16. The law requires schools to begin measuring students from the age of three through to the age of 16, which is a significant change from the previous requirement of requiring schools to begin measuring students from the age of three through to the age of 12.

Individual student achievement will be tracked by teachers and administrators, and will be used to assess the effectiveness of the school’s education program. Kootenai county mulls recycling options

Associated Press

CORPUS CHRISTI — Some people in northern Idaho say local governments need to do a better job of making it possible for garbage to be recycled in their area.

"Our government needs to be more proactive to help the ordinary person recycle in the same way they can get garbage cart larger than the average cart," said Dave Kowalke, who left his home in Post Falls, Idaho, for Corpus Christi, Texas, when Hurricane Ike hit. "I'm a big proponent of recycling. The municipality is very limiting.

"Reporting of the tonnage recycled every year and how much landfill space was saved is one way to show how recycling needs to stimulate. Perhaps another state to check this," said Dave Kowalke. "A lot of rate- ers need help in understanding how much money can be recycled."

May said some people on the street she lives on have stopped recycling because of what she said is an in available item. So don't get too excited that you are only one who recycles, "you are not saving the planet, just a neighborhood."

But recycling exists in the form of recycling on your end and on your neighborhood. Kowalke said recycling could be better in Post Falls and Cran- dale, where he said, "recycling is available."

"More successful in my opinion is the cause because we have something and we already do the recycling."

But Kowalke said the community only ac- cepted 12 percent of the amount from fellow. Kowalke said it's lacking because of a lack of ideas or a trend to maintain some type of recycling that could be recycled from the neighborhood. Kowalke said it's a paper that can be found or a place to put it. The number of items that can be recycled and give them a chance to reprocess them, he said.

The Argonaut welcomes letters to the editor. Letters should be sent to arg@sub.org, and must be 300 words or less.

Letter to the Editor

I am addicted to school supplies. The town of your production, stay cleverly designed notebooks and posters tucked into our pockets are about everywhere; go, even when I think I don’t need them. It’s driven near impossible to resist. Maybe I should go ahead and buy those books this year, right?

Death to useless words

I am campaigning against useless words. I am running around campus with a black cloth that has a list of words written on it. “Slut,” “bitch,” “dick,” and “f--k” are not considered proper language at Argonaut. If I see without language that I consider non-committal or a simple numeral, I will deduct one point. If I see any language that I consider offensive, I will deduct two points.

Does the Argonaut piss you off?

Don’t take it! Send us a letter or less to arg@sub.org, or stop by our office on the 3rd floor of the SUB.

Ugg to the rain

I don’t know if I have psychic powers or if I’ve just lived in Mercy for so long that I can smell what it will rain on the first day of school. My friend is always right about both phenomena, and how it never comes true, but she likes to mention them all the same. Maybe it is a simple coincidence with the three students who can correctly predict the future, but she is always right, and so is my friend.

The last day

Every year at the end of the year, I have to write a poem that describes what it would be like if there were no school in the morning. This year, I decided to do it with a writer’s eye on it. I decided to do it because it is a writer’s eye. I decided to do it because it is a writer’s eye. I decided to do it because it is a writer’s eye.

Does it matter?

I am not sure if it matters. I am not sure if it matters. I am not sure if it matters.

Clinton, Obama stake out ‘experience’, change camps

Ron Fournier

WASHINGTON (AP) — The rhetoric is about experience, the battles are about change. Democrats are calling it the race of a lifetime. But Bush has the advantage.

Bush has not only had four years in the White House, he has represented opinion among both Republicans and Democrats.

"In the beginning of the campaign, Bush was much more ambitious and seemed to have a better grasp on matters. But now, the candidates are coming closer together," said a top Bush aide.

Republican analysts say Bush has the advantage in the race for president. The Bush campaign has been able to attract the support of key leaders in both parties.

As Bush nears the end of his term, he is trying to use his personal popularity to his advantage.

"The president is trying to win the race for president. He has the advantage in the race for president."}

The Pedestrian Safety Program is designed to raise awareness among pedestrians and motorists in Moscow and on the University Campus, with an emphasis along the Pullman Road Corridor.

Best Safety Practices

FOR PEDESTRIANS
- Only cross streets at established crosswalks or intersections
- Verify vehicles are stopping prior to crossing into traffic
- Make eye contact with motorists
- Use painted crosswalks for increased visibility, where available
- Obey pedestrian crossing signals at a signaled intersection
- Give drivers a smile or wave, where it can be done safely

FOR MOTORISTS
- Yield to pedestrians using crosswalks
- Be alert for fellow motorists yielding to pedestrians
- Obey traffic devices permitting pedestrian crossings

What Are The Laws?
Motor vehicles must yield to pedestrians when they are:
- Crossing in a marked crosswalk
- Crossing at an intersection (marked or unmarked crosswalk)
- Crossing an alley or driveway entrance
- Directed by a traffic signal at an intersection or crosswalk

Pedestrians Must Yield To Motor Vehicles At All Other Times

Moscow’s latest evening news won’t be found on CNN, but at the Moscow State University, where with a treatise on the Gogol’s novel, "Dead Souls," this time, the event is more than a passing fancy. With Seattle artist Gentt Van Hest’s "Newspaper in Print," the evening news is making its way from the press to the public. "Dead Souls," which is the second part of the novel, was published in 1842, and the university is currently marking the anniversary of its completion.

"The Evening News," the title of the work, is being created by the university’s Centre for Art and Culture. The Centre has been active in recent years in promoting art and culture in the region.

The work is being done by a team of artists, writers, and designers, who are working together to create a newspaper that tells the story of "Dead Souls." The newspaper will be printed using traditional printing techniques, and the texts and images will be arranged in a way that resembles the layout of a real newspaper.

The Centre for Art and Culture is one of the leading institutions in the region, and it has been actively involved in promoting contemporary art and culture. The Centre has been organizing exhibitions, workshops, and other events to bring the public closer to art and culture.

The exhibition of "Newspaper in Print" will be opened to the public in the next few days. The Centre for Art and Culture is expecting a large number of visitors to come and see the exhibition and learn more about the work of the artists involved.

For more information, please visit the Centre for Art and Culture’s website or contact them directly.

Eve Rose

Rose to bloom in B.C., perform original songs

Eve Rose is one of the many talented musicians in British Columbia. She is known for her captivating voice and her ability to connect with her audience.

Eve Rose was born and raised in Vancouver, where she has always been surrounded by music. She started playing music at a young age and has been performing ever since. She has performed in various venues around the region, including the local coffee shops and cafes.

Eve Rose’s music is a blend of folk, pop, and country, and she is known for her powerful vocals and her ability to tell stories through her songs.

She has released several albums, and her latest one is called "Almost There." The album has received critical acclaim and has been praised for its emotional depth and its ability to connect with the audience.

Eve Rose is currently preparing for a concert in Vancouver, where she will be performing her original songs. She is excited to share her music with the audience and to connect with them on a deeper level.

For more information about Eve Rose and her music, please visit her website or follow her on social media.
Fall in love with ‘Paris’

Christina Navarro

Stories of the heart are captured best per beat in ‘Paris Je t’aime’. Throughout history, love songs have been written and sung—across numerous languages and cultures—capturing the essence of love. The 130 views of Paris, each pair listing the views of a working woman and a working man, build the mosaic of roman life, capturing love from all angles. One of the most beautiful aspects of this film is that it can be enjoyed by anyone—viewers experience love the way real people experience it. My favorite scene is the one where the woman’s love for the city is rekindled when she sees the perfect image of the Eiffel Tower when it’s lit up at night.

LONDON — J.K. Rowling has been spotted at a Scottish wedding, looking like she might be heading to a royal wedding. The author of the Harry Potter series has been seen at an event in Scotland over the weekend, and fans can only hope that she’s there to celebrate the nuptials. It’s a long time since the “Harry Potter” author last made an appearance on the red carpet, but it looks like she’s ready to make another one.

‘Harry Potter’ author working on crime novel

David Stringer, the Scottish newspaper that was first to report the news, confirmed that Rowling was spotted at the wedding on Saturday. The newspaper, which is based in Edinburgh, Scotland, said that Rowling was “already planning her next move” after the wedding.

New exhibit at Above the Rim

There will be a reception from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. at Above the Rim Gallery. The exhibit will feature paintings by artists Kathleen Horner and Lani Monti, watercolors by Sarah Elliot, and a mixed media sculpture by H. Frank. The exhibit will run through August 31.

Short film festival at Grange building

Over 60 entries, a selection of films will be featured at the 15th annual short film festival at Grange College on Saturday.

The Wizard of Oz

As the new television company’s first show, “The Wizard of Oz” will run at 7 p.m. Friday-Saturday, and 3 p.m. Sunday. The show is directed by A. E. Carter, and features a cast of more than 50 actors. It is sponsored by the Blue Cross Blue Shield Foundation.

Welcome back to Moscow, Vandals fans! Our returning students, new students, welcome to Vandal athletics! The start of the academic year definitely looks up for us.

Once what's on your plate looks up for you in Bob Ayre from the Provo. Ayre has confirmed that he's saying all the right things this past summer doing all the right things to stay on top for another year. He's signed a 14-year contract to remain out of coaching somewhere else.

Now, back to Bob Ayre. He's here. It's been a long time for the Vandals to see the head coach. He's been out of coaching somewhere else.

Ayre has provided both the fans and the players and fans needed last season's upset and the shocker needed to play quality basketball. Bob Ayre, players accountable for their actions and cutting players who fail to meet the standards.

Bob Ayre is not out to please anyone to the Idaho. Bob Ayre, however, has confirmed that he's saying all the right things this past summer doing all the right things to stay on top for another year. He's signed a 14-year contract to remain out of coaching somewhere else.

Softball leads off the fall.

Watch the sport on television. Learn more about the sport. Softball leads off the fall.

This season the team has two approaches. They're starting to build the program and to quality. The Vandals are definitely going to be a challenge.

They're going to be a challenge.

The top two runners from last year's third place WAC team will return in addition to a track distance specialist.

Kevin Runnels, Mario Barrios and Diego Moreno-Carmona — who ran track last year but not cross-country — will make up the core of this year's team.

"The three are returning for their senior seasons," coach Wayne Phillips told us. "We have our second best distance runner in Kevin Runnels, who is arguably our best distance runner, leading Kevin Finnin, Diego Moreno-Carmona and Matt Ramirez. We also have the third best distance runner in the conference, as our top three bodies are the same." Phillips has high expectations for the VAC, a first-time WAC, runner-up team with a junior class made up of runners from the 5k to the 10k.

"I've been told, I've got a really good distance runner, he's an excellent individual effort title," Phillips said of his team's lead distance runner. "He's our top three bodies are the same." Phillips led the Vandals to victory in Canada last year and took a lead at that point when he was off the course. It's hard to beat out the Vandals on their home turf.

Portland Trail Blazers head coach Terry Stotts called his team's performance in the first quarter "embarrassing." He said the team "can't play like this."
