Homecoming unites Greek community

Christine Lords

The Greek community at the University of Idaho takes the traditions and events of Homecoming seriously. Every Greek house on campus is participating in Wednesday night's "Fallas," a large program and each house is using Homecoming as a way to promote philanthropy projects, including change drives, food drives and a community clean up.

"We are a part of the Greek community to get involved with the community," said Robert Trevor, Homecoming Chairman for Phi Delta Theta. "It's good for people to see that Greeks are out doing things like cleaning up streets and gathering food for people." Trevor said. "It's a really good process that helps secure some of the stereotypes of Greeks.

"We have a great time," said the Chair of Delta Delta Delta this past year, Kellie Catterall, the sorority's Homecoming chair.

"The most important events for us are the philanthropies," Catterall said. "We are also doing the house decorations and also because they're things that our members enjoy doing." Trevor said the Phi Dels, and most other Greek houses, require every member to attend at least a few of the events during the week.

All living groups can participate in all of the Homecoming events throughout the week. The Homecoming committee sends out living groups that show up to the most events by a point system. "It's a great way to show your school spirit. The trend is that the philathropies are what some of the themes are," Phi Delta Theta.

"If you have a good theme and run with them," said, "It's nice to have broad themes and it's nice to be able to come up with something and think outside the box." Homecoming events are ways for students to interact with their peers and get to know others of the same fraternity, said Catterall. The living groups work with other chapters each year.

"Without this kind of tradition you lose the culture of the university," Catterall said. "It's an important thing to maintain.

Homecoming is a way to reach out and connect with alumni of the university. We want the Greeks to talk about and remember the Homecoming experiences." Trevor said it is important to celebrate the university's Homecoming because it brings students together.

"We're really trying to get everyone involved this year!" he said. "We want all the Greeks to come out for this."

"It's going to be a great day from the residence halls to be more involved in Homecoming to bring the university community together.

Building a better playground

Traver Peterson

Saturday marked the culmination of a year of labor and planning for the KBOOM! playground as volunteers gathered at Genesee Elementary to build a playground for Genesee Elementary.

The project was spearheaded by the NCAA Center for Volunteerism and Social Action. Volunteers painted a mural and world map, built benches, fashioned the lines on the basketball court, paved four-square courts and installed playground equipment. There were large structures were installed, including a rock wall and zip line.

"Extremely well done," said volunteer Robin Peterson, a sophomore studying mechanical engineering. "Traver Peterson's idea painting the mural was great. And to get the kids interested in building the playground was amazing."

"There was little bit of everything around," said "Just about every skill was needed to help, they could find a spot to help out."

Counseling center check center on campus mental health concerns

Dr. Martin Gore, the University’s chief clinical psychologist, recently addressed an audience of faculty and students about the importance of mental health services on campus. He emphasized the need for students to seek help when they are feeling distressed or overwhelmed.

"Many students are hesitant to seek help because they fear being stigmatized or judged," said Gore. "But it's important to remember that mental health issues are just like any other physical health issue. We all need to take care of our minds as well as our bodies."

Gore also discussed the increasing prevalence of mental health issues among young adults and the importance of early intervention. He encouraged students to reach out for support when they are struggling, whether it be through counseling services or simply talking to a trusted friend.

"It's okay to ask for help," said Gore. "Sometimes the biggest step we can take is admitting that we need some extra support to get through a tough time."

Gore's talk was well-received by the audience, and he received many positive comments after the presentation. Many students expressed gratitude for the information and resources he shared.

"I really appreciated Dr. Gore's straightforward approach," said one student. "It's comforting to know that it's okay to ask for help and that there are people who want to support us."

Another student added, "I feel empowered to take care of my mental health now that I have resources to turn to."

whether it's fresh veggies or bulk Sour Apple 575s from the Co-op, WinCo offers a wide selection of different supermarkets to satisfy shoppers' needs and cravings.

WinCo

WinCo is a popular choice with students, having the biggest bulk foods section in town, as well as a deli and a location in Moscow.

While their bakery might not be as extensive, they offer a large variety of bulk foods. If you're in the mood for snacks, you can get WinCo's blueberry muffin mix and other bulk products. WinCo is the place to go for shoppers looking for fresh-cut veggies and fruits that are conveniently packed, but it's offered at a higher price than at other locations.

Shopper Ashley Parsons said she shops at WinCo because it's convenient. "I still have a chocolate craving at 1 a.m., WinCo is there for me," Parsons said.

Rosauers

Rosauers has a home goods needs with a book, pharmacy and UPS drop-off inside making it an all-in-one shopping stop. Rosauers is one-stop shopping.

Although the store has a modern bulk foods section, they have their own whole wheat grinding station where customers can get fresh bread. The store also has a large selection of meat, including beef, pork, and chicken.

In addition, Rosauers offers an extensive selection of veggies, and all their meat comes from the United States.

"We heard that in Washington, Choice Grinds Beef," Parsons said.

Safeway

Safeway is Rosauers and Rosauers both aim to cater to shoppers who prefer a pharmacy and convenience store.

"We've got a step further with our food section. Safeway is the only grocery store to offer a dessert section of flowers and frozen arrangements.

With a big variety of all the groceries you need, Safeway is a good grocery choice. Although its location is a bit longer, it's worth the drive.

"They've got a great deal around — affordable and fresh." Assistant Produce Manager Jeff Goosling said they have actively sought out prices from Washington.

Safeway also has produce smiley faces complete with storm insides. "When things can't be kept cool and wet, it keeps them fresh," Goosling said.

Wine Company of Moscow

The Wine Company is a place every student should visit at least once. Having been in business in Moscow for 30 years, the corner store offers an extensive selection of wines, beer, cheese and all sorts of things!

Although it can be expensive, the cost is worth it.

Sid Edler, Moscow local and student, was at the Wine Company yesterday, showing his film to his community.

"I have a stunt on my resume that says 'Based on a Wine Company Job,'" Edler said.

Edler's film has been shown at various film festivals and has been accepted in various film festivals. It's a film about a milkman, and it's been shown at the Wine Company, the Moscow Film Festival, and the Moscow Community Creative Writing Workshop.

The University of Idaho soccer team dropped to 3-10-3, 3-10-3 overall in the Mountain West Conference.

"We're not a team that expects to be in the mix," coach Russ Buchanon said. "We had a couple of injuries and we started slow.

"We didn't give up, but we didn't play our best.

"It was a tough game and we lost to a good team."

The Vandals lost to the Cougars 3-0 at the University of Idaho's Bob Rebstock Field.

"Both teams had some scoring opportunities, but neither team was able to capitalize on them," Buchanon said.

"We had some good chances, but we couldn't get them across the line.

"Overall, it was a tough game for both teams.

"We played well in the first half, but we couldn't hold on in the second half.

"The Cougars had more chances in the second half, but we held them off.

"We will be looking at our film and making adjustments for our next game.

"We have a tough road ahead of us, but we are determined to keep improving.

"We will continue to work hard and prepare for our next game."

It can be said that club athletes at University of Idaho are under appreciated, but this year's volleyball team is making improvements in the club's reputation.

The volleyball team has a part of their season that is dedicated to giving back to the community, and they believe it is a great way to get involved and give something back.
