Decisions, decisions...

Kelsey LaRoche has a pile of letters under her bed — a mixture of college rejection letters and acceptance letters. Most of them have not been read and all of them have been spared from the trash. This is the year she hopes to be the first in her family to have a college degree. This is because LaRoche is one of the few students in the nation denied a National Merit Scholarship, an honor reserved for the top 1 percent of the nation’s high school graduates.

LaRoche’s family is taking advantage of the newly approved 24-hour school schedule, which allows students to be on campus all night. This has opened up new opportunities for students across the country and began the task of deciding where they would enroll.

"We got a scholarship of $2,500, which really isn’t a lot on its own," LaRoche said. "But schools offered us half of our tuition, which took some of the strain off of our family, because LaRoche was unsure of what she was looking for in college. So she began filling out applications for schools across the country. Eventually, LaRoche narrowed his choice to UI and UI, the two schools that offer to cover her entire tuition. UI has 42 en-rolled National Merit Scholars, the highest number in the state. Dan Noble is a financial specialist in the UI Trust Office. According to Noble, the school is the first thing students look at when they begin to go to college, and it is among one of the most important tools a school has at its disposal.

"One of the great things we have here at UI is facility," Noble said. "We understand how difficult it is for students to attend college, and anyone who wants an education should be able to afford it."

It was a fortune that won over LaRoche, who accepted UI’s offer after reviewing the news that UI would cover her tuition.

But to LaRoche, an equally important consider-a- tion was the approval of her family. Familial closeness is crucial in the college application process for LaRoche — who enjoys being far enough away to enjoy the college experi-

The trip was deemed "very important," a decision that is decided by the family.

"It was hard for me because I didn’t qualify for much financial aid, and I didn’t want to be put in a position where I had to get a bunch of loans. My family was counting on me to get a job so said the new development plans would be one of the most important issues that faces the council in the near future.

Other important topics havin the newly formed council on the school’s budget, transportation, system security, and includ-

things, such as drivers’ ed, with the students and understanding the context of the issues, which is the most important part to come-

We have a lot of options and choices,

Councillor says, but you have to be aware of the options and choices you have.

Options are open in this area, as there are no limits. However, at least three pieces of legislation are needed to pass through the hands of the council, according to City Council — economic, education, and transportation.

Four seats are open in this year’s election, including one from Davis, two from Idaho, one in Washington, and two in California.

At the end of the year, the council will also announce the winners of the $250,000 college scholarship.

The council members say they will do their best to ensure that the money is used where it is needed.

Mann is a student at the University of Idaho, where he studies political science.

-- Assaf Robinson

Today is election day in Moscow and as city residents have in the last month of campaigning, an earnestness is evident in the air as they walk through the streets of the town, full of the voices of city council candidates.

Education, school bond, and transportation are top issues.

Moscow, Idaho, President T.J. and President A.J. are running for the first four-year terms on the town.

People are seen coming in and out of the polling places throughout the day, where they are voting for a position and understand the implications of the vote.

Four seats are open in this year’s election, including one from Davis, two from Idaho, one in Washington, and two in California.

At the end of the year, the council will also announce the winners of the $250,000 college scholarship.

The council members say they will do their best to ensure that the money is used where it is needed.
The University of Idaho presents: The Water's Shuttle
Now offering a new free shuttle service to the University of Idaho, Madison and Creston streets.

Complete the grid so each row, column and 3-by-3 box (in bold borders) contains every digit, 1 to 9. For strategies on how to solve Sudoku, visit www.sudokufun.org.uk.

Weather FORECAST
Today Parity Tuesday Cludy Cloudy 37
Lo: 54 Lo: 59 Lo: 56
Hi: 79 Hi: 79 Hi: 79

SudokuPuzzle

Solution

American Red Cross Blood Drive
today and Wednesday on the TLC West Bank.

Check out The Argonaut on the Web: www.uiargonaut.com

SAL

1. Buck
2. Church
3. Straw
4. Row
5. Clock
6. Hand
7. End
8. Gate
9. Bait

CrosswordPuzzle

2410
41 2 86 9
2 4 1 6 4
3 6 9 2 4 1
1 9 2 3 7

Student Union Hours:
Monday-Thursday: 8am-11pm
Friday: 8am-9pm
Saturday: 10am-5pm
Sunday: 1pm-5pm

SudokuPuzzle
9 8 3 6 4 7 2 5 1
3 6 4 5 1 8 7 9 2
1 5 7 2 9 3 4 8 6
2 4 1 3 6 5 7 9 8
8 7 5 4 2 9 6 1 3
5 3 9 1 8 7 2 6 4
4 9 8 3 7 1 5 2 6
7 1 6 5 4 2 9 3 8
6 2 3 7 9 8 1 4 5

Solution

Donors can make an appointment during the day or email the support team at blood@www.asu.uidaho.edu.

595-1005, Report a problem online at www.uidaho.edu. For more information, contact the Blood Drive Office at 595-1005.
Why should students vote for you?

What will you do to help university enrollment and retention of students?

As Moscow looks toward redevelopment plans, what kind of business and entertainment will you support in Moscow?

What will you do to help bridge the perceived barrier between the university and the city?

Student Media is now hiring:

Advertising Production Manager

Duties include:
Designing Advertisements
Manage Design Staff
Work with a flexible schedule

Must have experience with Adobe products, namely Illustrator.

This is a paid position.

ELECTION Q&A: CANDIDATES SAY THEY SUPPORT UNIVERSITY, STUDENTS

With City Council elections today, the planet's student body is up to bat. Candidates have been heard, but is anyone listening? Students need to see the candidates who care about them if they want to be heard.

What did you do to prepare for this election?

Dan Cascallen, Four-year seat
I think because I am a UI grad, I know what students need. I think students have different opportunities for them for personal growth, such as opportunities to serve in government. Students need to see that the city's job is to make Moscow more attractive to students, with more opportunities for things to do while they're here, with things happening here than they actually have here.

We need to have something for students here to do to help them. It's really a shameful state of affairs that Moscow isn't attractive to students. If you look at the city, it is very dull. We need to have something to do.

I have done a lot of experience dealing with students as a student at the University of Idaho. We have a lot of opportunities for them, I think. We can make Moscow more attractive to students, have more opportunities for things to do when they get here, with things happening here than they actually have here.

Wayne Krause, Four-year seat
I've been a student here at Moscow State University for a while. I'm glad I've been here, it's been a good experience.

We need to have more opportunities for students here. I think the city's job is to make Moscow more attractive to students, with more opportunities for things to do such as the arts. We need to create programs and fund them for students to get involved in.

I think the city needs to do more to maintain a city that is a desirable place for students. We can keep community here by providing them with things to do such as the arts. We need to attend to the needs of students as well, housing.

Incumbent, Four-year seat
One of the things we need to do in coordination with the University of Idaho is building the ground of the Moscow population and retention and recruitment so that Moscow can boost its student population instead of losing students to other areas where a chance exists to maintain a high degree of openness and availability.

We need to work hard in Moscow that has a growing economy, a lot of businesses that are innovative. Students need to have opportunities for businesses. As long as students have those opportunities for growth, they will keep to more steady growth.

I think we need to partner with the University. One very important thing, we need to have a very strong relationship with the university. Students need to feel very important to us.

Incumbent, Four-year seat
I think the way to do it is to follow the leadership of the city. It is an area where where we need to get involved. Students have a lot of potential and can do a lot of good things for the city. If they can get involved, they will be able to work hard in Moscow that has a growing economy, a lot of businesses that are innovative. Students need to have opportunities for businesses.

The type of shopping that we would like to do is on campus. It is an area where where we need to get involved. Students have a lot of potential and can do a lot of good things for the city. If they can get involved, they will be able to work hard in Moscow that has a growing economy, a lot of businesses that are innovative.

We need to work hard in Moscow that has a growing economy, a lot of businesses that are innovative. Students need to have opportunities for businesses. As long as students have those opportunities for growth, they will keep to more steady growth.

I think we need to partner with the University. One very important thing, we need to have a very strong relationship with the university. Students need to feel very important to us.

The students need to learn what it means to be a part of the community. The students need to learn what it means to be a part of the community. The students need to learn what it means to be a part of the community. The students need to learn what it means to be a part of the community. The students need to learn what it means to be a part of the community.

Irish diplomat to speak at Martin Forum

On Friday, November 9, 2007, 7:00 p.m.
University of Idaho's Campus Union Building

"Ireland as a good example of how a country can emerge especially from a prospered nation in the world," Smith said. "She will share with us how it might be done." The event is free, Thursday, November 7, 2007, 7:00 p.m.

Latah County Fairgrounds 8 AM-8 PM

DON'T FORGET TO VOTE TODAY

Linda For City Council

Thanks for all your support!
Dinner honors university donors

Liliana Shepherd

On Friday evening, 13th annual Chili Cook-off, a fundraising event for the University that supports students, featured over 50 entries. Judges evaluated the chili on taste, creativity, and presentation. The event included live music and food vendors, attracting attendees from across the state. The winners were announced during the ceremony, with awards presented for the best chili in each category. The event was well-attended, with attendees enjoying the festive atmosphere and supporting the university's mission.

LOCAL/BRIEFS

MCA plans forum on levy

The Moscow-Clairemont School District will host a forum on the school levy on Wednesday, March 8th. The forum will provide an opportunity for community members to discuss the importance of the levy and its impact on the district. The event is free and open to the public, and light refreshments will be served.

Wilderness advocate speaks

Friday at Friends of Cleveland

Brian Blankenship will speak at the Friends of Cleveland’s annual community meeting on April 7th. Blankenship is an advocate for wilderness preservation and will address the importance of protecting natural environments. The event is free and open to the public, and light refreshments will be served.

Campus CALENDAR

Today

11 a.m. "Women's and Art 101" at the Multicultural Center, Student Union

Tuesday

10 a.m. "Women's and Art 101" at the Multicultural Center, Student Union

Wednesday

10 a.m. "Women's and Art 101" at the Multicultural Center, Student Union

Thursday

10 a.m. "Women's and Art 101" at the Multicultural Center, Student Union

Advertisements
Who's the bad guy?

There is a group of students who are without the teacher they consider to be the heart of the course of the semester. Perhaps they don't know that the teacher they love isn't the same from one class to the next.

Explanations can be hard to come by. Maybe two or three students from the instructor's article about a graduate student removed from his position and the position itself.

The little information has been released about the student without the name of the instructor. in fact, it is a sex offense.

The question is, what good will knowing do? The student's life has been turned into a trial of public interest because the anonymous letter revealing past indiscretions. For the two years that this student has been teaching classes at UI, it was not an issue. Not until an anonymous letter that disclosed the student arrived at the president's office did anyone find out about this.

Policy changes, such as requiring the instruction of all students who will be placed in teaching positions, are in order, but shouldn't factors be considered?

If the student is in a major that requires contact with children, such as education or the universities, then the immediate action taken by President Tim White to remove the student's teaching position is warranted.

If the course of study is something that will not concern children, the quick punishment may not be as necessary. If the state parliament from the university has only been removed to the graduate student from the teaching position to the student's life, no longer been removed from the undefined graduate program that has taken up two years of the student's life.

Overall, it is difícil de decir que a Chidi is a sellers market to track this person. Teaching is the main job around the country have failed to mention. It is good to know that someone is watching, if they are not doing their job, they know anonymous.

I would have to have been a few classes between let-ting the person continue life and possibly leave with a bad review. According to the above, there is a class full of students wondering what hap-pened to their teacher.

There is a graduate student missing that we thought to have been found. Right now, there is an anonymous name, all knowing that they have the last time in a new witch-hunt.

Let's hope that no one else has to pay for these mistakes and that the game gets put back before the other one gets hurt.

---

Editorial Policy

The Argonaut welcomes a freedom of opinion within the limits of the law. Opinions, comments and responses regarding topics in the Univer-sity community may be expressed by students or faculty members of the university.

Opinion should be truthful, well thought out and be free from libel. The editor will not publish comments which are outside this limit.

The Argonaut reserves the right to edit letters for grammar, length, and clarity. The editor will condense the letter when necessary to meet space requirements.

Letters should be typed. The Argonaut may edit any letter and reserve the right to refuse publication of any letter.

---

Off theCUFF

Quick takes on life from our editors

No horing around

Patty Cooper has been denied her request to help her parents. Her pleas for help have been ignored.

I know she was the one person that the students could go to when they needed help. She was always there for them.

"I can't believe they would do this to someone," Cooper said. "I guess I'll have to go find another place to live." - Mary

Parents can rock

I got to see my parents this weekend. I went over to their house after school. I was really excited to see them.

I never have a chance to see them during the week. I love seeing them.

The kitchen on the cake would have been a lot less agréable if I guess we can't have anything.

---

Cone maze

I am sick of the construction on the Wall of Mars. Meeh. Seriously. Especially now that, as far as I can tell, the student is the only one paying for it.

It's not fair to those students who have to go around the cones.

---

Sawannah

Seriously

On Friday night my soccer was kicked and thrown over in front of my house. I don't know why, but soccer is something I enjoy. I have never done it, but the other side is cracked.

The week was not a good one. I think the focused on the wall of Mars. Everyone out there—maybe even the administrators—vandalized some of mine things. It's not fair to those students who have to go around them. But do this person or person deserves to graduate from the college and have a life like I will. No I hate them.

It is a mystery

I picked up some beer cans littered around Hell Week yesterday and noticed that I have a paper bag. I can't drink an beer. I am, I can, I can I leave my beer cans on the ground.

Fall back

While I'm grateful for the extra hours I am working, it is a little bit of a catch. I don't want to work full time.

I have tried to get another job, but it seemed that everyone was quite a bit. I wouldn't seem as though I was the best candidate for the rest of the job, but being two weeks to get back 30 miles south of Moscow, I feel left in the dark.

---

Damn you, Murphy

I decided to drive to Vancouver, British Columbia, last weekend and gas prices decided to shoot through the roof. They set a record high this day before I left. That's the story of your life.

---

Rager

---

Argentina

The Argonaut offers a view of a former area of the school with their moves of the activities in the area of the school.

Editor in Chief

Rylee Hentzke

Managing Editor

Carissa Wright

Co-Managing Editor

Savannah Cummings

Opinion Editor

Chasen Larson

Production Editor

McKenna Durand

Copy Editor

Alex Linkson

Pamboo Bureau Manager

Roger Rosales

Advertising Manager

Daniella Tobin

au@sub.uidaho.edu (208) 885-7845
arg_manager@sub.uidaho.edu (208) 885-6372
ar@sub.uidaho.edu (208) 885-7115
art@sub.uidaho.edu (208) 885-6372 gs@sub.uidaho.edu (208) 885-7115
es@sub.uidaho.edu (208) 885-7115
pl@sub.uidaho.edu (208) 885-7115
phot@sub.uidaho.edu (208) 885-7115 ad@sub.uidaho.edu (208) 885-7115
advertising@sub.uidaho.edu (208) 885-7115

E-mail: Op@sub.uidaho.edu

Letters Policy

Letters are published as space allows. All letters must be typed and should be no longer than 200 words.

Letters should focus on issues, not personalities. Letters longer than 200 words will be edited to fit the space.

Letters should be short and to the point. Letters longer than 200 words will be edited to fit the space.

Letters should be short and to the point. Letters longer than 200 words will be edited to fit the space.

Letters should be short and to the point. Letters longer than 200 words will be edited to fit the space.
Tracing oil for water

UI artists practice sustainable printmaking

Kevin Otzenberger

Art production may not be the first thing people think of when environmental accountability comes to mind. Yet the University of Idaho's College of Art and Architecture actively works to understand and work toward sustainability, anywhere and everywhere. The department has taken several measures to ensure that its art instruction is conducted in an environmentally friendly manner.

The beginning of the department's reaction to a need for change was the transition from the older, oil-based inking of original artwork to new water-based printing methods. Water-based printmaking avoids the need for non-renewable resources and also avoids the emission of toxic solvents and chemicals that could potentially adversely affect air quality. The water-based method also eliminates the need for organic solvents, which are no longer used, but rather modified to organic solvent-free inks are used.

"They've encouraged me, the work for this year," says Jenny's student, the director of media relations. "Another environmental concern is the movement of new, environmentally friendly inks all over the product of the department. The green revolution comes from the production of eating material. From the green revolution comes an additional need for artwork that is used and further removed from highly trafficked areas, like the Classroom.

"They moved to the campus because in the center of campus," said. "To make it a more sustainable site, we will need to be more sustainable around the area, around the campus, and around the building, too.

"In the future," said. "We will need to be more sustainable around the campus, and around the building, too.

Dorm nutrition 101

Drawing a dorm diet game plan

Sydney Boyd

It is called the "freshman 15" for a reason. These are the pounds the average college student gains in the first few months of school. And while it is easy to blame the food, the reality is that it is largely because of eating poorly, drinking poorly, and the amount of time spent in front of the computer.

The key to avoiding the "freshman 15" is to eat balanced meals, which include a variety of fruits and vegetables, lean proteins, and whole grains. It is also important to drink plenty of water and to get regular exercise.

Relationships take form in art

Old friends reunite for joint exhibit at local gallery

Alfredo Barneby

The Argonaut

Jennifer Rod and Gerena Sloan both studied together while they were earning their degrees in art at UI. Now, Rod and Sloan still discuss that they have been working together for years. The two have worked on various projects, and have been able to collaborate and learn from each other.

"Being able to work with someone who has a similar background is great," Said Rod. "It is always a pleasure to work with someone who has a similar background." Sloan agreed.

"It is really a part of the game," Said Sloan. "As you go through things, you learn from one another and grow as artists." Sloan agreed.

"It is really a part of the game," Said Sloan. "As you go through things, you learn from one another and grow as artists." Sloan agreed.

See PRINT, page 8

An old printing press in the printmaking room of the Art and Architecture North Building, where the university has begun using water-based materials in order to be more environmentally friendly.
EXHIBIT from page 7

"Since graduate school, there wasn't really any other aesthetic I was going for," she said. "There were things that I worked on, but I never worked on them for very long."

Help Stop Hunger In Your Community

Donate a canned food item

Receptacles at

- Wallace Food Court
- 6th Street Marketplace Commons Food Court

November 6th
Spider-Man fails to solve trilogy

David Corwin
Associated Press

"Like a Lamb," the shaky, star-studded release of United Artists under Jim Crise and producing partner John Davis, has passed a milestone. It's been a full week since the movie opened in theaters on President's Day weekend. And audiences are still watching it, albeit not quite as much as expected.

The structure — these interconnected stories taking place simultaneously in Washington, D.C., and New York City — contains an amusing, even cutesy, gimmick given how realistically the movie is directed by Bob Odenkirk and screenwriter Michael Dougherty.大国使者, who also directed the popular animated children's series "The Kingdoms," keeps everything so perfectly in place that the film doesn't have any cracks. It's a marvel of craft.

In the Capitol, conservative Sen. Lamb (Cruise) is forced to decide whether his conservative, but also compassionate, son, Luke (Streep), has committed suicide or just run away. Meanwhile, a group of terrorists, led by the nefarious banker Malley (Pena), who also has a son in the same situation, is about to use Luke's name and picture to launch a terrorist attack on the Capitol.

The movie works here and there and is quite moving in a few places. At other times, it's a dry argument on who, why and how some of the events are linked. And so, if any of it can be viewed...

At its heart, "Like a Lamb" is a chase movie. It's a fast-paced action thriller, with some lingering scenes of violence. Viewers beware, as the movie is rated PG-13, and the violence, though not overly graphic, may not be suitable for younger viewers.

The movie is directed by Richard Linklater, best known for his buddy comedies like "Dazed and Confused" and "Before Sunrise," and is adapted from a novel by John Grisham. Linklater's previous work has been praised for its realism and attention to detail, and this film is no exception.

In the journey, Linklater has a talented cast, including Cruise, Streep, Pena, and others, who deliver powerful performances. Cruise, in particular, stands out as he delivers a nuanced portrayal of a man struggling with the weight of leadership.

The movie, however, is not without its flaws. Some scenes feel overlong, and the pacing is uneven. But overall, "Like a Lamb" is an engaging and thought-provoking film that will keep audiences on the edge of their seats.

Berkeley scientists develop test for headache chemicals in wine

Marion Walter
Associated Press

BEERKLEY, Calif. — The effects of a wide variety of familiar drugs, from wine and beer to nuts and chocolate, are a well-known aspect of the human experience.

The chemicals, called beta-carbolines, are found in a wide variety of foods, and are known to be compounds found in both wine and beer. In fact, some wines and beers are specifically designed to have high levels of beta-carbolines.

The chemicals are believed to be involved in a variety of behaviors, including alcoholism, addiction, and aggression. They are also found in the brains of animals, and are thought to play a role in the onset and progression of neurodegenerative diseases.

In the study, the scientists developed a new test for beta-carbolines in wine and beer, which is non-invasive and can be performed quickly. The test is based on a novel method that uses a new type of sensor to detect beta-carbolines in a sample.

"We're seeing the emergence of a new type of chemical sensor that can detect beta-carbolines in a wine sample in just a few minutes," said lead scientist Dr. John Smith. "This is the first time we've been able to detect beta-carbolines in wine using a non-invasive method."

The researchers hope that this new test will be useful in studying the effects of beta-carbolines on the brain, and in understanding how these chemicals may contribute to brain disorders such as Alzheimer's disease and Parkinson's disease.
Vandals end long losing streak

Hugh Jones

The University of Idaho volleyball team overcame a four-match losing streak Thursday when it defeated Louisiana Tech. The Vandals (11-9, 4-0 WAC) downed the Lady Techs (3-26, 0-12 WAC), 30-25, 30-26, and 30-26. Idaho won its first match in conference play since Oct. 31.

This point in our season we can't afford to lose any opportunities," said Idaho coach Don Olson. "At night, we didn't come ready to play and it showed." Idaho (11-9, 4-0 WAC) dropped the first set, 30-25, but dominated the next two, 30-26 and 30-26. Browning's performance was crucial. "I told the team before the match that we needed to play both sides of the net and to play hard and have fun," said Olson. "This is what we did, and I'm proud of our team."

During the first set, the Vandals were down 24-10, but battled back with scoring runs of 11 and 9 to take the lead and win. "We worked hard, but we didn't play the game that we needed to," said Olson. "We need to bring it each match, and that's what we did tonight." Olson ended the match, winning the final set, 30-26.

Idaho XC seniors prepare for what could be the last race

Adam Herrebruck

With the NCAA Regional Championships just two weeks away, the University of Idaho cross country team looks to finish its season strong. The possibility also exists to place in the national top three and move on to nationals.

Two of the women's runners, Mandy Macalister and Don Olson, reached several success first hand when they were juniors two years ago. The 2005 cross country team dominated the WAC and advanced to the national regionals where they finished 21st and became the first women's team in Vandals history to qualify for nationals.

Two years later, that success is nearly within grasp again as the women come away from conferences with another WAC title and hopes of advancing to the national stage as individuals and as a team.

Men's senior Austin Tan- droff, in his final cross country season at Idaho, and senior Don Olson both focus their attention on defending his title of WAC championships, defending Idaho's title for indoor and outdoor track.

Next week, the team will travel to the United States to run a live at Southeastern Louisiana State in New Orleans. Difficult times there compounded with Hurricane Katrina, forced Idaho to run in Texas. In search of something different, the Vandals are looking forward to a change of pace in their training. Preseason sunny outlooks on the fall schedule will be easier if scheduled another opportunity to across.

Browning's performance was crucial. "I told the team before the match that we needed to play both sides of the net and to play hard and have fun," said Olson. "This is what we did, and I'm proud of our team."
Interview with Augusta Sussi, Redshirt Freshmen WR

University of Idaho football can't hold late lead

MOSCOW — Idaho didn't hold a lead for 10 seconds on Saturday night.

The Vandals missed an opportunity to clinch their first home win of the season against Nevada, a team that was winless in Idaho.

Idaho's defense and special teams played well and came up with a tying score, but the Vandals were unable to hold onto the lead for the final 60 minutes.

Running back Deonte Johnson, who scored the first 10-yard touchdown in the first half, had a big night for the Vandals.

Johnson ran for 143 yards and two touchdowns, leading Idaho to a 27-20 victory.

How's football practice going for you right now?

It's going well. We've had an intense practice this week, with a focus on our upcoming game.

The Vandals have been preparing for the Aggies this week, and we're ready to face them.

What do you think is the key to winning the game?

The key to winning the game is communication on the field. We need to make sure everyone is on the same page, and we need to execute our plays.

How do you feel about playing against a team that has a strong defense?

We're ready for it. We've played against a lot of strong defenses this season, and we've learned how to adjust.

What's your message to the fans?

We appreciate your support and encourage you to come out and support us this Saturday.

U of I Athletic Marketing

Support the Vandals at this week's home events:

November 7th

Volleyball vs. Utah State 7:00

November 10th

Volleyball vs. Boise State 7:00

MEN'S BASKETBALL INVITATIONAL

Vandal Swimmers take Fourth in Pullman

The University of Idaho swim team earned fourth place at the David Pfeiffer Memorial Invitational Tournament, hosted by Washington State University.

The team finished with 223 points, coming in fourth with 124.37 points. The Idaho team swam strongly and broke a number of records in the pool.

The Vandals will continue to compete in the next tournament and look to improve their standings.

Look for the Vandals this week and support them as they work towards their goals.

SPORTS EXTRA

right here every Tuesday of the fall semester!

Unwanted Hair? Permit Hair Reduction

Sign up for a chance to win $25 to one of Eastside's favorite restaurants:

www.eastsidemarketplace.com