A Statement

I have been asked to set forth in concrete form the idea upon which our law school is based—its objects and aspirations. This requires an answer to three chief questions.

I. For what purpose does the college of law of the University of Idaho exist?

II. By what means does it intend to accomplish that purpose?

III. What may the accomplishment of that purpose reasonably mean, especially for Idaho and the Northwest?

1. The College of Law of the University of Idaho has for its main and immediate purpose the maintenance primarily for Idaho and incidentally for the entire Northwest, of a law school best suited to the needs and condition of the United States. This does not mean that we have the selfish desire to excel all other law schools in this part of the country, for we wish them all well. We do intend, however, that no other law school in the Northwest shall set the pace for us, and that our standards shall be the highest possible. We cannot expect to be perfect and we know of many imperfections to overcome. We intend, however, not to cease in our endeavor to attain all the highest results possible, and to improve constantly from year to year. Our object in this is not the personal perfection of our school, as the result of the foreboding passion for personal stature, but that it may render the best possible service. Nor does the fact that our law school is created primarily for Idaho and the Northwest enable us to be satisfied with standards less high and less deeply and carefully laid than in the great law schools farther east. On the contrary, as the latter part of this article will endeavor to show, a wonderful opportunity exists in Idaho and the Northwest for the establishment of its common and statute law. To do this as well as possible, the foundations, both of the common, the Roman and other law should be studied, and as our foundations of jurisprudence should carefully be examined and all should clearly and carefully be taught, in order that our fellow students and ourselves may know the past, may profit by its great accomplishments and by its mistakes, and that we may prepare well for the future. While we receive help from the studies and labors of the great masters of the law, both dead and living, we would not do justice, either to Idaho or to ourselves, did we not do our share in the work from which we shall receive benefit. The fact that our law school cannot do all of this now means but little. We have the years before us. Our ideals are high. The spirit of Idaho urges us on.

Bearing in mind, then, that the needs of Idaho and the Northwest are to be interpreted in the light of what is written above, what should Idaho and the Northwest require of a law school? The requirements should be these:

1. A law school which shall teach the principles of law, the right way to study law and to apply its principles and the right way to think as lawyers should, to young men who intend to practice in Idaho and the Northwest.

This means:

(a) Giving our students a strong and deep laid foundation in basic knowledge of the principles of the common law, as much as possible before then) the practical application of this knowledge in drafting legal instruments and briefs, in the introduction of evidence, the argument of questions of law, the trial of questions of fact and, in affording him acquaintance with court procedure and practice.

Also Idaho and the Northwest should require:

2. A school which incidentally shall teach law as a cultural study, and as a preparation for business life.

3. As soon as the number of our faculty will permit, elective courses in Legislative Methods and Forms and in Practical Legislation;

4. Such research work (as the time of faculty and students will permit) as will enable this law school to do its share in the development of the great science of jurisprudence.

11. By what means does the Idaho Law School intend to accomplish this purpose?

1. By the spirit of unity which pervades it. A volume might be written upon what can be accomplished by the spirit of unity, and the sense of solidarity. May we not say with truth that the sense of comradeship exists to such an extent in our school, not only among its students, but between the faculty individually and collectively, and its students individually and collectively; that our school is in itself a solid, harmonious law fraternity? No one who knows our law school can answer this question otherwise than by saying "Yes."

2. By the high spirit of honor which pervades the student body.

3. By the broad and deep spirit of helpfulness and of loyalty in which everybody shares.

4. By the consequent high character of our students.

5. By the necessary result that a large conception of life pervades our student body and gives a high sense of justice, which in turn, other things being equal, gives a broad and deep appreciation of the function of the law.

6. By the atmosphere of work which pervades the law school more and more and produces its inevitable effect upon all its members;

7. By the critical study and discussion of cases:

(a) In the class room,

(b) Among its members outside the class room,

(c) In the Practice Court and in the Law Club;

(d) In the Law Club;

8. By practice in original research, which it is hoped will increase more and more, stimulated by class room discussion, and work in the Practice Court and in the Law Club, and finally

9. By the various practical exercises in classroom, Practice Court and Law Club which, already existing to some extent, surely will increase as the years pass by.

Many imperfections must exist in a new school. However, with the all pervading spirit of solidarity, helpfulness, and of loyalty, of honor and high character, and the atmosphere of work urging everyone on, what, with the cordial cooperation of the President of our University, of the Commissioner of Education, of the Board of Regents, and the Bar and the people of Idaho, be we not hope to accomplish? Give us the chance and the state will see.

III. What may the accomplishment of all this mean—especially for Idaho and the Northwest?

May it not mean that our law school will prove in time a source of strength to the Bar and to the states of the Northwest?

The lawyer performs two functions:

1. His duty to his client and

2. His duty to the state.

In the latter capacity, judge, counsel and jury are slowly working out into practice the principles of justice. That law and justice are not synonymous terms, everyone knows. It is true, nevertheless, that this is the fault, not so much of the Bar, as of the community. The Bar, through court and counsel, in the long run, will approximate as closely to justice in practice as the sense of justice in the community will prevail. In the fight for justice, the Bar, in so far as its conservatism, is a most helpful factor. Its very conservatism

The Faculty

Professor George David Ayres, Dean of the Law Department, was born in Boston, Massachusetts, was graduated from Harvard University with A.B. degree in 1879, from the college of law, Harvard, with L.L.B. degree, 1882. He was admitted to the Massachusetts Bar, 1883.

admitted to federal court practice in 1883. He engaged in the active practice of law in the state of Massachusetts 1883-1915. He was Professor of Law, University of Nebraska, 1905-1906; administered Nebraska Bar, 1907. He supervised litigation in Mexico, Chicago, and Mexico, 1908. He was receiver of Sun Louis Land & Cattle Co., 1900; receiver of Hailton's, Minga Viejas, S. A., 1910; professor of law, and Dean of College of Law, University of Idaho, 1918. Dean Ayres is a tireless worker and a booster for Idaho from the word "go." When the Board of Education elected Professor Ayres to the position of Dean they secured the very man that was needed to put the law school on a firm foundation and build it up to the standard of other institutions. Already he has launched a campaign to secure a 500 volume library and membership in the American Law School Association. He is of the large circle of friends in high positions in the east, which makes him especially desirable for the deanship of a new school. His theory is to build up the department and the students will come. However, he does not say that the 'boosting' for students should wait. The spirit which he lends for his department will make boosters for every student as he goes out for his vacation, and there is no doubt but that the growth of enrollment will keep pace with the advancement of the standard of the school, which is rapidly coming to the front under his guidance.

Professor Lyman P. Wilson was born in Clark county, Iowa, 1883. He was graduated from Knox College with a B.S. degree, in 1904; and was awarded a scholarship in the University of Chicago Law School, from which place he was graduated with a J.D. degree in 1907. He was admitted to the Illinois Bar in 1907; was city attorney of Galesburg, Illinois, 1908-11; at which time he was secured as associate professor of law at the University of Idaho, which position he filled until 1915, when he was advanced to Professor of Law, and Secretary of the College of Law. The ability of Professor Wilson as an instructor, and his principles as a man, and friendship for his students are too well known and recognized to permit of much further comment. He has always taken the hardest and dreariest subject of the law to teach, and yet his classes are always interesting and his students never fail to grasp the application of the law and principles. He is a booster for Idaho and a booster for the Law School, and it is his sort of boosting, that sort which by preparing his students to meet the issues of the profession when they are sent into actual practice, that will win a name for the law school and give it a foundation which in the future will endure, and bear with it the impression of his hard labors. It is doubtful if better instructor could be found in many of the large eastern Professor Gill in Racine county, Wisconsin, 1899-1907; active practice at the Bar of Wisconsin, 1897-1913, at which time he was secured as professor of law at the University of Idaho law school, where he has been the past year. While engaged as county attorney and as associate city attorney, Professor Gill has received valuable experience in the law of municipal corporations, and as a practicing attorney he has acquired his little fame as a corporation lawyer, and general practitioner. As an instructor his ability cannot be questioned, as to the students, he seems to place in their estimation as instructor, and in their hearts as a man and friend that could be described with no little effort. His method of instruction goes direct to the point; his steady humor keeps a class awake; and his ability to grasp and explain situations and apply the law is remarkable. The law school was more than fortunate when it secured the services of Professor James J. Gill.

Professor Frank Moore, a native of Michigan, was educated in the public schools of that state, graduating from the Rochester high school in 1899. He received a degree of Bachelor of Law from the law school at Ann Arbor, Michigan, 1898; he was admitted to the Washington Bar in 1899, and to the Idaho Bar in 1899. He has practiced in Moscow as a practicing attorney, and has been an instructor of law at the University of Idaho since 1900. Professor Moore is instructor in

The most prominent attorneys of Idaho, with a great deal of experience before the Bar. He thoroughly understands the laws of Idaho and the methods of procedure used in the Idaho courts. His practice is not one of the most prominent courses in the law department, among the seniors, and is the most practical work that is given fitting the student to go out into actual work in the law profession.

Professor Edward M. Hulme was graduated from Leland Stanford University with a B.S. degree in 1897; from Cornell University, with an A.M. degree in 1902. He was instructor in English and history, high school, Portland, Oregon, 1897-1900; University scholar, Harvard University, 1900-1901; graduate student Cornell University, 1901-02; Cornell traveling scholar, the Sorbonne, Paris, 1902; lecturer in History, University of Idaho, 1902-05; Associate Professor of History, 1905-06; Professor of History, 1906-19. He is not a regular instructor in the law department, but aside from his work as Professor of History he voluntarily took up the teaching of American constitutional history, which is a required subject for the students of the law department. Professor Hulme has been an instructor in history ever since he came to Idaho, and is recognized as one of the best history instructors in the profession. His work in American Constitutional history is

Seniors

HARRY McADAMS

Harry McAdams spent about two years at Whitman College before coming to Idaho. The advantages of his prelegal training and his varied experiences have not come amiss in his study of law here. He is a good student, serious in his work, and will make a keen, shrewd lawyer. McAdams contemplates practising law in this state. His success as a lawyer is contingent upon one thing mainly, i.e., whether or not he yields to the temptation of indulging in politics. He is an able debater. He has won both the Dewey Memorial and Ridinbaugh debate prizes, and has entered the contest for the Watkins Oratorical prize.

VERNE L. TAYLOR

Verne Lee Taylor is a native of Texas, but has pledged his allegiance to the state of Idaho. Verne is a very ingenious fellow, full of confidence and vitality, which is so characteristic of a true Texan. Anyone can be a friend of Taylor who will and needlessly to say there will be reciprocity. He is a staunch supporter of his Alma Mater and of the Idaho law school. And you can bank on him for support when he goes out to practice in this state. His motive is never falling, but rising everyday he fails.

FRANK R. DOTSON

Frank R. Dotson is a deliberate and careful thinker, a diligent and earnest worker. He spent his time in preparation for the study of law at the Albion State Normal School. After finishing his first year in the law school at Idaho, he went to the University of Colorado and while there completed a year's work. Last fall Frank was back on the job with a smile, the smile that is so characteristic of him, the prodigal who never realized what a good thing he had until he left it. Frank is now a member of the state bar and intends to practice law in the southern part of the state. Mention of Frank's ability as a debater made last year should not be considered lost.

RUSSELL G. ADAMS

Russel G. Adams is one of the big four, who live at the senior rate. Previous to his entering the law school he completed two years of B. A. work at this institution. Since that time he has acquired an unusual amount of legal knowledge in the law school during the past three years. He passed the state bar examination this spring and was admitted by the supreme court to practice law in the courts of this state. Russell aspires to be a learned judge—his valuing ambitions will some day place him on the throne of justice. Any comment or criticism which is made in this edition must be attributed to Mr. Adams as a measure of justice which he has wisely administered. He is the editor.

ARTHUR O. SUTTON

Arthur O. Sutton is chief justice of the Bench and Bar association. This itself shows the regard and esteem that his fellow students have for him. But he is a conservative sort of a fellow, who never expresses himself with a superfluity of words, but he has the distinction of being able to convey his ideas in fewer words than any other member of the legal department. He has acquired a great knowledge of the law and this coupled with his ability will certainly make him a success in the legal profession.

DON M. BUFFINGTON

Don Buffington is the business manager of the Law Argonaut. His success last year in this capacity eliminated any doubt as to his ability for the position this year. Don halls from Mission, Wash., wherever that is. He received his preparatory training at Washington State College and then very discreetly came to Idaho and took up the study of law. He is a congenial little fellow and has won the friendship of all who know him since coming to this institution, despite the fact that he used to attend our nearest rival institution. He is a hunter and a loyal supporter wherever he goes. Immersed with the Idaho Spirit and with ethics and knowledge of the legal profession, he should make good.

Ex-Fourteeners

LAWRENCE E. O'NEIL

Larry is another who failed to return this year. Instead, he went into his father's office in Lewiston and is now practicing in that city. The fact that a man can go out of this law school having finished but two thirds of the required work and make good speaks volumes for the college of law. It shows that during the first two years the student is well grounded in the principles of the law: during that time a foundation is laid upon which he can later build the superstructure of his legal education. O'Neil will make good at the practice of the law.

JOHN M. BOYLE

John Boyle did not return to school but entered into active practice instead. He passed the Bar examination in June and went immediately to Blackfoot where he went into an office. He has recently been moved to Hailey, Idaho, and is now a member of the firm of Angell & Boyle. John spent two years at the university before going out to practice. From all reports John is doing well in his chosen profession. He is a good worker, a steady man. There is no doubt as to his future; it will be eminently successful.

PHILIP J. EVANS

While Morgan was not with us a whole year he was rated as a junior. He left us in the spring, going from here down to Malad, in southern Idaho, where, he immediately began to practice law. Evans has been before the supreme court of the state twice and has a large and remunerative practice before the county and district courts. From all reports this fits in from that part of the country Philip J. Evans is one of the coming attorneys of southeastern Idaho.

ARTHUR L. HEER

Arthur Heer did not return to college this year. While he is not practicing law, still he has no intention of quitting the field he has chosen for his life work. His intention is to go on and finish his course before he hangs out his shingle. Doc, while in college proved to the satisfaction of everyone that he had a good legal mind. No one doubts that he will make a success of the practice of the law when once he actively engages in it. He says that if he could hide his head, his feet, and his hands he would make a fine public speaker. We do not believe the hiding would be necessary.
Underclassmen

Juniors

WILLIAM W. CASEY

William Casey, commonly known as "Spud," is from Junee, Mass. Spud has the distinction of being the only player member of the Harvard freshman football team this fall. He attended a state normal school in 1913-14, did not return until 1915. Since that time he has been with us all the time. He is an earnest, sociable worker and has the determination that might make a success for him.

"Spud" is popular in坏事 connections. The Harvard manager for this year and for those of the past, and he has been chosen as manager of football for the season of 1915.

WILLIAM P. SNYDER

William Snyder is a representative from Colorado. He has been here since the beginning of the second term and has started his work with the junior class. He is quiet and unassuming, but he always has a ready answer for any question asked him. He is an earnest, sociable worker and has the determination that might make a success for him.

All his students and associates think highly of his football and baseball work.

LET'S BE MICE

Here in a football exception, the junior writer in the Harvard school. He graduated in the class of 1915. He is a good student and a good athlete. He has been here since the beginning of the term, and has been selected as manager of football. His work has been excellent, and his students think highly of him.

Let's be mice! Let's be mice in the junior class! Let's be mice in the football and baseball teams! Let's be mice in all our studies and work!

Freshmen

MAGNUS F. BETTY

Magnus F. Betty is the first representative from Oregon to the Harvard school. He has been taken hold of the book work with unusual zeal and has shown a keen interest in the study of law. He is not only a good student, but he is also a good athlete. His work has been excellent, and his students think highly of him.

FRANK P. PATTERSON

Frank P. Patterson is the second freshman who has arrived. He is a good student and a good athlete. His work has been excellent, and his students think highly of him.

HERBERT J. FORSE

Herbert J. Forse is the third freshman who has arrived. He is a good student and a good athlete. His work has been excellent, and his students think highly of him.

EVERETT A. WEST

Everett A. West is the fourth freshman who has arrived. He is a good student and a good athlete. His work has been excellent, and his students think highly of him.

These are the freshmen who have arrived so far. They are all good students and good athletes. Their work has been excellent, and their students think highly of them.
EDITORIAL

Another year has rolled its relentless course around. Faces once familiar to us, have disappeared. New faces, new men have taken their places. A new college generation is in process of passing. Short is the time of passing and once passed it never will return. "Make," then, "the most of what we yet may spend." Let us enjoy this little life taken out of, and set apart from our more serious life. It is an epoch in our lives which is regrettable in itself. It has hopes and ambitions and ideals peculiar to itself. It knows not counterpart, no analogous period. Its life is alas! too short, too passing, too swift; its history, too brief.

This small volume is dedicated to the law school of the university. Here we have endeavored to set forth as concisely as possible, the events, the comedy, the tragedy of the past year. Our ambitions, our hopes and our desires we have set forth as best we could. No apology need be made; we have done our best.

If this small volume has given to a single person a clearer axe to a broader view of the College of Law, its purpose and ideals, we are amply repaid for the time and labor expended in preparing this issue. If we have aroused sympathy—not such sympathy as we have for the unfortunate, but sympathy in the sense of a deeper understanding—if we have aroused sympathetic toward the aim and ideals of the law school in a single person, then has our work been amply rewarded.

The law school wishes to take this opportunity to thank those who have contributed so generously to the library fund. The school has been benefited by subscriptions for a lack of the necessary reports and text books. But the call for contributions having been sounded, there was an immediate response; both benefactors and donors, one and all, are thanked.

For admittance to the Association of American Law Schools we must have five thousand volumes upon our shelves. We have yet quite a number of volumes to acquire before we have the requisite number. Membership in this association is a very desirable thing. Admittance is a sign of attainment; and a great law school and a greater university. May he return to see the College of Law—his dream child come true—ever exercising a greater influence for good. May he look back with pride on the time of his residence here and the yearly visits as the happiest times of his life. "There was, there is, no gender, stronger, manlier man," than Dean O. E. McCutcheon.

ARE THE TERMS LAWYERS AND LIARS SYNONYMOUS?

After having been told all one's life that all lawyers are crooked the freshman coming to college is surprised to find that by some mysterious chance our board of control have secured as instructors, men who are not only honest, but who discomfit every phase of the practice of law that is in any way deplorable; but there is a senior and has read innumerable decisions of fair minded and honest judges, and has associated with the leading attorneys of the country he will be unable to understand how the board would be able to get attorneys of the standing required of university instructors who were not absolutely honest.

It is doubtful if there is a profession in the world where there is more temptation to be crooked, and yet more honesty and fair play demanded than in the practice of law.

The lawyer's training from beginning to end is a study of decisions of judges, who for ages have attempted to reach conclusions of reasoning that are both equitable and based on public policy. His training is taught to the questions in the balance and impartially selected that is most fair. The latest senses of justice and honesty are cultivated through his entire education, and if he be a successful lawyer he must follow the bent of his training. This does not say that all lawyers are honest or can it be said of any other profession or vocation that it is without those who gain by dishonesty.

There are many unjust cases taken by honest lawyers and innocent parties put to the expense and trouble of law suits, but this is more owing to the client's dishonesty than to the attorney's.

For it is a defect of human nature that causes nearly all to disclose to those from whom they are seeking help that part of their story which is most favorable to their cause. The prejudice of the mind of the lawyer causes him to think that he has a cause of action where there should not be, and in that persuasion the attorney that he is in the right will disclose only a part of his story, and the lawyer will not know of the injustice of the cause until it comes to trial.

The training of the business man is to increase his capital of dollars and cents; to make dollars add dollars. He deals with the cold abstract, and he often becomes hardened and hardened with interest only in the increase of his capital. It is that for which he works daily. It is the one object of his life. His mind is not taught to see justice and he will not do justice.

The rights of the one who is encroached upon must have protection and peaceful settlement, which now is accomplished in the best way known to man—by the law.

The lawyer is seldom rich. His money comes and goes as a matter of course in proportion to his success in the profession. He deals with life in all its intricacies and if he is to be a great lawyer he must be broad and sympathetic in understanding, and bear a honest intendment to see that his client that justice which is rightfully his. The lawyer's greatest work is not to get a man out of trouble, but it is to keep him from getting into trouble.

By far the larger part of the law suits which come to trial are caused by the ignorance or negligence of those entering into business; to their confidence in their own ability, and refusal to employ intelligent counsel. If every man could see the rights of others in a fair light and be willing to do justice thereby, there would be no work for attorneys. But this they will not do. It must be a means of settling disputes and securing justice, and this under our present stage of civilization is left to the Bench and Bar. Yet it cannot be doubted but that the securing of justice, the noblest work in which man can be engaged, when properly employed, yet gives room to guile for the meanest of practices, but the Bar must be a defender of the Bar, rather than in the profession. The Bench is but one step removed from the Bar. How could one be honestly held in disrespect, while the other is held in the highest esteem by all? The saying that lawyer and liar are synonymous terms is sometimes based on jest, sometimes on ignorance, but in either case positively wrong.

SHORT DICTIONARY OF LEGAL TERMS.

Since last year's edition we have received several inquiries as to the meaning of legal terms. We here give the definition of a few of them.

BLACKMAIL—Letters which are sent out on the first of each month by unscrupulous merchants and which call for the blood of fellow students; instructors also send out a certain kind of blackmail.

CHAMPERTY—Maintaining a clearing house for indigent law suits.

DERELICT—A college man five years after graduation, who spent his time in college in athletics, fusing, and grooming his horses for extra-suiting. Derived from Latin, "to desire." (B. R. G. L.)

ERROR—Misjudgments by judges and ballplayers.

FELLOV SERVANT—People who have to eat in the kitchen.

GUARANTOR—A person into whom surety has injected an over-charge of the milk of human kindness and who has not been raised on grape nuts.

HERIDTMENTS—Things which father first wore, then John, then Tom, etc.

INADEQUATE ASSUMP-
SIT—Obligation which a person

ANNUAL ELECTION SHOWS THAT INTEREST IS NOW BEING TAKEN BY STUDENTS.

Loss Friday the annual election of student officers for A. C. U. I. for next year is over. Emil Carney has held many minor offices during his residence in Moscow, and this year he was chosen as next year's "Gem of the Mountains" and cased major of the U. I. battalion. Carlson is held by all who know him and promises to be a good executive. For vice president E. K. Humphries of St. Anthony won over Roy Tingley of Boise by two votes. Humphries is head of the A. C. U. I. basketball team. Tingley is welcomed in all school and city functions where music is popular. He plays first base on the Idaho baseball team. Playing important part in college opera. He is also cheer leader this year.

For A. S. U. I. secretary Miss Anna McMonigle of Halley defeated Mary Burke of Moscow by the smallest possible margin— one vote. Miss McMonigle is a sophomore and popular and prominent member of the Delta Gama sorority.

Inaac McDou gall was unopposed for treasurer. He is a Junior law student. On the athletic board, there are C. P. Johnson, Julius Nordby, Rollo W. Crane, Melvin Join, A. J. Lyon and Oliver Montgomery; all elected to act on the debate council.

Julius Nordby was elected editor of the Argonaut for 1914-'15. The new editor comes from Genoa. He has had considerable experience with the management of the Idaho "Country Life," a magazine put out for a number of years by the agricultural college. He won over Robert J. Leff of Twin Falls by a small margin.

The business manager Archie Hayley defeated Ray Cammack and John Neff. Hayley is a Moscow man and well known by business men of the city; and in this respect is well qualified to undertake the business end of next year's weekly.

Carl E. McIlgrist was unopposed for associate editor of the Argonaut. He is in that position, having been chosen at the beginning of this semester. He has the distinction of being the youngest whose term of office was continued— Burns excepted.

Miss Josephine Whisman was elected manager of the Argonaut. She has earned her college life at Riddle's hall and is very popular with the dormitory girls. She has received many votes and is as near her nearest rival. The other girls who were nominated were Grace Lentz, Markie Kjosness, Mabel Reddell and Mary Peete.

The strongest voting that has been done at the Varity for years and is largely due to combinations and provoked by the fraternities.

Last Year's Graduates Receive Prin- cipleship.

W. B. Kjossnne, graduate in 1913 from the college of agriculture as specialist in animal husbandry, has been elected principal of the Prentice high school in Walla Walla, with considerable increase in salary. In addition to the principalship, Mr. Kjossnne will have charge of the agricultural department. Mr. Kjossnne has been employed in the same school to handle the domestic science work. In a recent letter, Kjossnne tells Senator Brady that he has received the degree of Bachelor of Sciences from the University of Idaho to handle the manual training, and that they think it will be for the Idaho stuff.

W. S. C. WINS IN BASEBALL

FARMERS DEMAND ATTENTION WHEN IT COMES TO BASEBALL. PITCHERS TOO MUCH FOR US.

In the last two games of baseball that we have played with W. S. C. there has been but little left for the papers to tell. Pullman beat us 4-2 on the Maclean field here on Friday. On the next day they repeated the defeat on Rogers field. The score of first of these games will not stand mentioning and the score of the second was four to one in favor of the other school.

In the game here the home team were leading in the score for a while. A few costly errors put the visitors in the lead and a great many more costly errors put them further in the lead. In the middle of the game Kinnes, the Idaho pitcher was hit an given, the ball was put in the air in front of the fence and the fly was substituted. He pitched good ball but the team had gone to pieces and the lead was gone in a few steps.

In the Ains tournament held in Pullman Saturday the Gum Blatters, David, Soucr, Harvey, Patterson, and Shroud suffered about as severe defeat as the team did in baseball. In the five singles and in the two doubles the W. S. C. men took everything. About the only excuse that the fellows have to offer in the fact that the college courts were not ready for use, and so the matches had to be played off on the private courts which were smaller in size and not in the same condition. However, the Pullman people have a strong aggregation and since only one of the last year's team was able to make the team this year.

DEAN CARLYLE RETURNS HOME

UNABLE TO OBTAIN ALL THAT WE HOPE FOR BUT MADE CONSIDERABLE GAINS.

No New Building in Any State to Be Built with Federal Funds.-Serum Comes from Idaho.

Dean W. L. Carlyle returned last week from Washington, D. C., whence he was called by Senator Brady some weeks ago. Mr. Carlyle reports that he was unable to realize his best hopes about the establishment here of a central serum plant, but that Idaho will have her share in the appropriations.

It is not known at present whether the plant now at the edge of the athletic field will be removed. There is but little danger of its being taken away for a year or so. This much is known, we will get nothing more from the federal funds, with which to build new plants this year. All the serum for federal use and all the supplies will come from the central plant in Idaho.

There will be established at Twin Falls a distributing point or a head- quarters of the four departments which the government will fund to help fight the dread disease, hog cholera. These four departments will be maintained at the expense of the federal government and will treat the cases within a large ter- ritory about the Twin Falls country and the first thing on the head of the university who will work with them in that district and also one man from the state stock barns. Besides these men there will be one other man who will travel over the state- etering and demonstrating the treat- ments of the disease.

It is hoped that we will get one man at the expense of the federal government to help in the serum plant.

There will be no more carcasses burned or the plant as arranged has been made with the packing plant to do -of all the dead pigs. And we will get a bool on at least twenty-five per cent of the funds from the government with which to carry on the work.

Besides the money and assistance in the serum business there is promise of a soil survey of the state of Idaho. At the present time there has been nothing done in this regard save a little work done near Boise and Lewiston. It is proposed that the new survey begin at Moscow and gradually be extended all over Latah county and then over the entire state.

Moreover we have the promise of one man for each of the two reclamation projects in the state, one at Minidoka and the other at Bolivar. These men will be paid by the federal government and will be under the supervision of Prof. Parrell, an ex-member of the agricul- turn college faculty. ARTER we also have the promise of a man to help de- velop the marketing of Idaho's products by working with the Idaho pro- ducts in the southern part of the state.

There is a very great need of such de- velopment and the end of the state is in a very bad con- dition.

We have the promise of one man to work on the Aberdeen demonstration farm with the alfalfa and clover, for the three months in the year when those crops are growing.

Mr. Carlyle also had a conference with Congressman F. F. Loveland about the possibility of his bill passing this session of congress. If this bill is passed Idaho will get about a quarter million dollars with which to build and maintain a forestry school. This money comes from the timber in the state. Secretary Houston and Assistant Secretary Gallaway favor the bill.

Another Jewell Thrower.

Julius Nordby, next year's Aragon editor throw the javelin .4 feet last Saturday. This throw was made farther than the best throw made by W. S. C. at the final meet some time ago. If Nordby continues to do up so well he may be entered in the conference meet at Pullman, May 29.

WHITMAN HERE THREE DAYS

MEN WHO HAVE ALREADY THIN- MED IDAHO TEAM TWICE ARE HERE TO ATTEMPT IT AGAIN.

Track Team from Walla Walla Will Be Here Saturday to Contest in Dual Meet on Maclean Field.

The strong Whitman baseball team from Pullman College, which is now in town and will play the varsity team this afternoon and Friday. This team comes from the successfully defending their own field, and hope to repeat the performance here under our very eyes.

And they stand a good chance of do- ing it unless the students come out and support the team better than they have at the other games this year. So far as baseball is concerned it begins to look as if it were a question whether Idaho fights. Of course this state of things cannot go on. We need a lot of men and you will have this week to use them.

In Saturday of the week the track meet will meet the truck team from Walla Walla. We look with much more interest in this and will try to meet than we have with which to face the ball games. About t he only chance in the team since it met and de- fested W. S. C. is the absence of Mur- rison. Sam Hurry his knee by falling on an up-car in a game in Pullman a week ago and has had a very hard time of it since. It is scarcely ex- pected that he will be with us in the meet here, but we all devoutly hope that he will be able to enter the conference meet, as Pullman on the twenty-ninth. Whitman has a sufficiently strong team to make the most interesting, and you should be there.

Fres, Brannon to Oregon. A committee from the members of the faculty and the senior class were appointed to confer with the school board and to make an arrangement to be held immediately following examinations. President M. A. McMillan, of the University of Idaho, will deliver the commencement address on Wednesday morning, June 17. Rev. F. L. Loveland, pastor of the First Methodist church of Pullman, will give the annual Baccalaureate sermon Sunday morning, June 14.—Oregon Enor- ald.

MR. LEEMAY HERE

Mr. K. C. A. Secretary and Mr. Rhode are received in Moscow by students.

A representative gathering of about 25 college men were entertained last night at a banquet held in honor of Gale Suman and Mr. Rhodes, who are here for a day or two to discuss interest in our much-neglected Y. M. C. A. The engaging personality and whole-hearted enthusiasm of the visitors soon sufficed to convince all present that the Y. M. C. A. is worthy of much warmer support than it has had during the last five years. Mr. Suman, who is travelling secretary for the Puget Northwest, had many proofs to offer of the success of the association in some of the sister universities. So sincere was the interest shown that each man present rose and pledged his allegiance to the work for the coming "year. Mr. Smith, hinted at the possibility of our having a secretary next year who would devote at least half of his time to the work here. All men, in any way interested are cordially invited to attend a meeting in the Idaho Student's union room at 5 p. m. Wednesday, May 28th. Gale Suman and Mr. Rhodes will discuss some important business which concerns the Y. M. C. A. at Idaho.

The announcement of the birth of Dorothy Elizabeth Davis arrived here yesterday. Miss Davis selected Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Davis for parents and now weighs nine and one-half pounds. Mr. Davis was a graduate in 19,}

Junior Girls Appropriate, Four-Year Capy While Their Elders Are Absent.

Yesterday while the senior capy racks were prowling in the wildness in hope of escaping another line of reading or a syllable of response, the fair juniors took possession of their caps and appeared in regular classes.

Of course there were not enough caps for all the juniors but those who did have them certainly showed vast improvement over their sleepy sisters of fourteen. Not quite satisfied with having their own panties taken in the stolen headgear the girls captured a senior who had missed the annual rural perambulation and took her photo bare headed. This kind of thing shows spirit. May this same impulsive spirit bring all seniors to Treasuny of the "Wells." Friday night.

Excitement is in the air. Hats are thrown, aloft. Beads of perspiration stand out upon the brows of the spectators. Pennants are waving in the air. The W. S. C. band strikes up. Idaho Boola; Idaho's drawn it, Iowa on the field the contestants struggle like friends. Here one holds a pad and scratches his head. There one is sharpening his pencil. Coaches walk nervously up and down the side lines. Excited students leave the bleachers for the field. Through the windows the setting sun pleases softly. "Watch 'em!" shouts the coach.

The sun sinks lower. "Beat 'em! Beat 'em! Beat 'em!" groan the co-eds. "Oh-h-h-h" Tense grow the muscles of the players. Each nerve is strain ed; every breath is bent towards the attainment of victory. "Roll it into Fullman man, Fullman man, Fullman men!" "Rah rah ree! Rah rah ree! Rah rah ree!"

A stranger stands aghast at the sight. "What are they playing?" he inks. "Why, don't you know anything about this game? They're judging batter."

SODA THAT SATISFIES
"Drink to me only with thine eyes. And I will pledge with mine."
Such doubts may quench a poet's thirst, I'll choose this Soda fine.

Soda should be pleasing to the taste — it should also satisfy thirst. The soda at our fountain combines all of the good elements possible. The soda is right, the syrup is right, the ice cream is simply supplied, and the service is ideal. Taste differ, but no matter what drinks may be served here, it is sure to be the best of its kind. To fully appreciate the blessing of thirst — try one of our delicious Ice Cream Sodas.

Be sure to get your share of the good things at our fountain.

"Last week's Emerald was occupied by the "Women's Press Club" of the University and was called the "Women's Oregon Emerald." It tells us in a recent deal meet between Oregon and O. A. C. Oregon won by a score of 74 to 35. Oregon's two-outlier did that distance in 9-15. Cole of O. A. C. threw the discus 133 feet 11 inches.

Whitman

The Ilahaer club at Whitman have just received their formal petition to be Phi Delta Theta fraternity, from the press. The club is now ready to plead for a charter.

Miss Bonnie Vance of Boise recently won a scholarship in the conservatory of music by whining in a song contest.

Nevada

A swimming and life saving exhibition at Ziona Huyingia is to be held by the members of Amos Elliott's class in aquatics on Tuesday evening, May 31, and the proceeds of it are going to be spent in sending a swimmer to California to represent the University of Nevada in one of the swimming contests that are a feature of the sports of C. C. and which are held in the Strawberry Canyon pool on N. Sheepburn.

Gratitude from Wellesley

Mr. Lehman has received the following letter from the president of Wellesley College:

"My dear sir: I have your letter enclosing a check from members of the University of Idaho. It is greatly appreciated. I enclose a receipt. Will you kindly extend to those friends our warm thanks not only for the gift itself, but for the sympathy and fellowship which it represents. I hope when the time comes to rebid to give visible expression to our gratitude for these gifts from sister institutions. "I am, most sincerely yours,

RILEY J. PENDLETON"

Williamette

The Jentors at the Williamette University at Salem, Oregon, have recently presented Percy MacKay's "Cantehy Pilgrim" to the patients at the Oregon state mental hospital. The Junior here in Sir Arthur Wing Pih-ter's "Tobacem" of the "Wells" will furnish their own patients. Come and see!

Important Orchard Experiment Under Way

Prof. E. W. Johnson spent last week at Fayette starting an orchard irrigation experiment. The work was commenced last year and has in view the determination of the effect of quantity and time of irrigation upon the grade, yield, and storage qualities of apples. The orchard on which the experiment is being conducted is one to Mr. Hartman, vice-president of the state board of education. A similar experiment is being conducted at Twin Falls.

Prof. Halmo will deliver the commencement address at the Geesenee High school this Friday. Last week he spoke in New Perke and the week before at Burke.
