Black History Month Events

February is the month to honor the achievements and contributions made by African Americans. As part of Black History Month, the University of Idaho will host a series of events, including movies and displays. These educational documentaries about black history have already been shown, with more events to come.

The movie "Crenshaw," directed by Spike Lee, about a working-class African American family in Brooklyn during the '70s, The movie paints an intimate portrait about what it is like to be a working-class African American family. The movie is part of the African American Heritage Month, along with a list of coming events and happenings of influential African American community leaders.

In the "Book of Black Folk" book giveaway and presentation will be at 6 p.m. Wednesday in the Idaho Commons Wolfing, Room. The Office of Multicultural Affairs will host the giveaway event as a part of the African American Heritage Month, and the event will be at 6 p.m. Wednesday in the Idaho Commons Wolfing, Room.

Looking at life's simplicities words and photos by RYAN SMITH

Living in America, overwhelmed by society's constant need to push ever faster, ever harder, and without end, we often forget that we look at life's simplicities. Evenings we wake, drag ourselves from the comfort of home and stumble into the world of fast-paced technological innovation in which one false step, one missed minute, can be detrimental to our career, our future. American's culture thrives by putting personal expectations aside, and often neglecting what is right and good.

Last fall I created an art series in an attempt to look at my surroundings from a different perspective. I spent many mornings walking or riding my bike through campus and the emptiness of Moscow to find what I normally neglect. I see these places everyday, but often forget to look at them. By replacing my eyes with a lens and allowing my brain to visualize from different perspectives, the simplicity of each place begins to form new shapes and meanings within my own life. The photographs presented here are only a few from this project.

They are all simple images acquired by walking, observing and exploring the shapes and forms of light around me. By allowing myself time to look around and practice seeing differently, I was able to create images in which my imagination was allowed to open and explore the simplicities of life.

Student support of sales tax a folly

The Argonaut passed a resolution Tuesday that supports Gov. Mike Kempthorne's budget, including a 1 percent sales tax increase to make up for the Legislature's general failure to master the state. Idaho has always been cheap on programs that actually advance education, health care, roads, and highways. This year, Kempthorne has the opportunity to ask Idahoans to pay the most expensive tax. With a sales tax, the less money someone has, the greater proportion of income one has to pay the tax. Residents will pay more in income, it may not be as bad as if they are being asked to pay a sales tax.

Kempthorne's budget is lacking in a budget line to increase funding for the University of Idaho, to increase funding for Idaho State University, to increase funding for Idaho's community colleges. There are those who say we need to cut state revenue. But why don't we cut the state budget and then still ask for this?

We are asking the people to pay more for education. Then those millions of dollars would go to those three colleges we want to increase funding for.

The Argonaut is one of the few organizations that supports this. If the budget cuts are not enough, we should be increasing them.

Shop adds to Moscow's charm

On my second night in Moscow, I was taken to Bucer's, a restaurant on the 16th century and the older food and wine. It was a nice evening of dining and the food was delicious. Bucer's is a great place to try some of the local cuisine.

That initiative has led to Moscow's growing as a restaurant destination. There are many great places to eat and drink in the city.

Music, Moscouj University. (above and by tea right-hand Oman, members of the Silk City/ St. Bradley, students. and stacked TDD. The room) V-11:00 First and all inexpensive, amidst hot and delicious. Since that time, Moscow's food scene has grown significantly. There are now many great places to try some of the local cuisine.

Benefit concert aims to raise money for local woman

All you need Saturday from 11 to 4 p.m. is a black dress, shoes, food and silent auction. Young women are planning on support Moscow Women's Fair. The event will include a silent auction, food and entertainment. The money raised will be used to help women in need.

The two local banks are proud to sponsor the event of Sage Times.

Sage Times is a business in which the cells in the lining of the mouth and nose find it difficult to breathe, and which may be very painful. Moscow Women's Fair has listed with the all- female Faculty of Medicine.

The medical body has found that the cancer cell stem in the stem of the cancer stem and the increasing threat the disease poses. Moscow Women's Fair has been reported to that medical community.

The event will feature the American, Chinese and other minority sources.

The fair will be held at the Moscow Women's Fair, located at the University of Idaho, 4205 N. Juniper, Moscow, Idaho 83843.

Moscow Women's Fair is a 501(c)(3) non-profit organization.

The recent trend to Hollywood in adored turned star Tom Cruise to be happy right where he is as Hollywood's latest actor sensation.

With starting roles in February's super-hero "The X-Men"; "Stay," Summer's "Beauty and the Beast," his movie is now close to perfection as he set out to prove in his new film is as stunning and believable as "The X-Men." Cruise. "CMC, I agree. The moment I found "thrending" around "The X-Men's" recruitment of Farrell, it felt right. "It's all about the moment. It's all about the moment."

Farrell, in the role of a special operative, is the one to see. He's a former military intelligence agent who has been recruited to the CIA's new program. He's got it all.

With his unique style, he's a perfect fit for the role, and he's bringing his unique style to the screen.

The CIA plot is MIA in Pacino's latest, "Recruit".

I'm convinced, wearing a CIA uniform, Farrell is preparing for a role as a secondary character.

Despite the role not being the main focus, Farrell's presence is still noticeable.

As the director, I'm happy with the role he's been given, and I think it's perfect for him.

Cal Poly walks a fine line
Mustangs take advantage of charity stripe in edging Vandals

by Mark Williams
SPORTS

T he UI women's team fought hard but was not able to overcome a second-half showstopping performance by the Cal Poly Mustangs in a 79-71 loss to the Cougars from Wednesday night.

"I'm really proud of the kids," said head coach Mike Divilbiss. "We got outplayed, but we didn't get beat.

The Mustangs (6-5 overall, 0-1 conference) were down by as many as 14 points in the second half but fought back twice under the guidance of coach Divilbiss.

Cal Poly shot 63 percent from the field (29-for-46), 58 percent from behind the arc (6-for-10) and had five of their 10 players score in double figures.

"I'm proud of the way they executed our game plan," said Divilbiss. "They were an aggressive attitude and we got energy and that I hope our kids will pick up on this week.

If my players develop that competitiveness and that attitude, we will be a different team," Divilbiss said.

"I think we're doing the things that we need to do to try to be a good program. I think we're going to make a lot of improvements." The Mustangs next take on UC Santa Barbara Thursday 7:00 p.m. at the Cowan Spectrum.

Vandals Alyssa Erickson misses a layup while being pushed by a Cal Poly player during Wednesday's game in the Cowan Spectrum.

Candidates for glass slipper ready for the madness

Candidates for glass slipper ready for the madness

A little less than six weeks from now, things might get a bit sticky for a bracket, thinking, “I’ll take Manhattan.”

Kent State — I’m that short sill at number 10 — has been patiently waiting for its first game. I’m sure that Creighton is still waiting for its second game. For the rest of you, maybe we should just give up but for those of you who are in the midst of things, you’re just waiting for the other team to fold. You might want to join Kentucky in its search for a March sweep. It has had to get on in the last five days to secure its 11-3 season record, a 11-3 season record. Perhaps for those of you who are not in the midst of things, you might want to join Kentucky in its search for a March sweep.

Unfortunately, some teams might not have such a high base. Kentucky, for instance, has nearly fallen off the table in last year’s season. It is possible that the Blue Jackets did not fall off the table in last year’s season. It is possible that the Blue Jackets did not fall off the table in last year’s season.

Wait, what’s that? I never heard of Creighton. It’s a basketball team, but it’s also a basketball team.

Well, Creighton, it’s really been a dream team. Of course, with only a 9-point lead, it’s not like the Blue Jackets did not fall off the table in last year’s season. It is possible that the Blue Jackets did not fall off the table in last year’s season.
