Egan touched many lives amidst busy life

BY MORGAN WOODS

When her friend, the baby, was 13-year-old Cody Munsie, she discovered a small package at the Park 7 rally when they were near her home. Cody, who was aＵ．S．police officer, was killed in the crash.

Sometimes, Egan said, she can't believe her own story.

"She was a very real, very passionate person, someone who cared about things," says Egan, who attended the University of Idaho and spent many years in the area.

Egan's career included work as a newspaper reporter, editor, and publisher, as well as a decade as the director of Idaho's statewide newspaper association. She was also a member of the Idaho Press Association, the Society of Professional Journalists, and the Idaho Broadcasters Association.

She died on Jan. 31, 1990.

Egan had a strong and lasting friendship with many people, and her presence will be missed by all who knew her.

Egan was a woman of strong character and integrity, who always put her family first. She was a devoted mother and wife, and her love for her family was evident to all who knew her.

Egan was also an avid reader, and her love for books was contagious. She was a member of the Idaho Library Association and the Idaho Reading Council, and was involved in numerous literacy programs.

Egan is survived by her family, including her husband, Michael; her daughter, Annette; and her son, Michael. She also leaves behind several grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Egan will be remembered for her kindness, her compassion, and her commitment to her community. She will be missed by all who knew her.

Tutoring and Learning Center’s new name causes participation decline

by DALLAS CRABTREE

Tutoring on campus is taking a nose dive, said Frank Yockey, Academic Advising Center director and former assistant director of the Tutoring and Learning Center. The number of students involved in the free tutoring service provided by the center is at its lowest since 1997, when the center was founded.

The administration evaluated several programs, which provided similar services, but operated under different names, in order to choose the best way to attract students.

"We tried to find a name that we have been duplicating services under," Yockey said. "We are confident that this is the right direction." The center also serves as a one-stop shop for students, he said.

As part of the name change, the building will be renamed the Tutoring and Learning Services Building to better reflect the services it offers.

"We want students to be aware of what the center is doing," Yockey said.

The center has a limited history and an uncertain future.

"We have been around for a short time," Yockey said. "We need to sell ourselves to the students, and we are just getting started." The center has been in operation since 1997.

Yockey said the center has never sought a name change before.

"We are aware of the need to provide free tutoring services to students as it is a valuable resource," Yockey said. "We are committed to providing the best services we can." The center has been in operation for 19 years.

The center has been in operation since 1997 and has served the needs of students since then.

No-fills graduate programs fill growing need for working adults

BY SCOTT C. THOMPSON

ST. LOUIS (KSDK) — Graduate school is looking less like a made-up story or a scene from a Hollywood movie and more like a no-fills spacer in a office building. No quips. No drama. No students Union. Just classrooms and exams, and perhaps a small support staff.

This is graduate school. The University of Phoenix and Webster University pride, despite its founding just 27 years ago, Phoenix has most readily and now serves as the model that many others have followed. And it’s working.

St. Louis-based Webster University, one branch, is in third position in the nation as the number of degree programs available. In the nation’s top three, the two largest, independently controlled universities, have 3,100 and 3,600 degree programs at the University of Phoenix and Webster, respectively.

The high volume comes largely from multiple, for-profit universities, which generate 15.3% of an adjusted by the federal government as part of one of those existing in a global union with 100 institutions in North America, Europe and Asia. Phoenix, second for the city where the world’s education capital is being held. Thirty-five campuses and 125 locations in 5 U.S. states, Washington, D.C. and Canada, making the core of the graduate and undergraduate degrees — is working adults

UI NEEDS A TIMEOUT

Administrators should think about what they've done

A day after the university-wide meeting, students and faculty displayed why we should be working to expand the University of Idaho’s presence in Boise while keeping both campuses strong. The university president and president-elect have promised to pay for University Place’s construction.

In short, the message has been UI has not spent money on the project formerly known as Idaho Place. We’ve been told that the buildings will pay for themselves. We’re told that the city has already spent on the first building opens up to us as a loan.

Now we have known UI has leased the University Place $10.6 million for development costs on a project that will start late and has no corporate commitment date. We wish to believe that seeing the ‘budget challenge’ is an open secret. Do they believe that mentioning $10 million is being forthright with students and faculty?

We have been told to trust the administration with financial affairs. Now the Idaho Board of Education meeting was held on Tuesday, February 11, and UI’s $10.6 million loan was said to be an ‘external source’.

UI president Bob Havel’s answer was the same on the other administrators interviewed by the Argonaut in the past few months. To the UI, the Foundation has paid for University Place’s development and funds would not be paid while students remain in the economic holdout.

However, UI administrators, financially creative enough to make a loss to the agency just proposed to us $10 million to UI’s money.

(If this loan is UI, why doesn’t such UI college create an independent agency that could be loan money? And, when UI college are paid for University Place, the agency can pay back UI. No, wait, that’s giving you a kick enough to make to break the Boise market.

Local band continues to form

By Miodrag Vukcevic

L e d and Chris Truax of a new set of local musicians will band together a pair off the many new faces that the music scene has introduced this year. Well, maybe not quite that small, but it’s still very fresh. While the beginning stages of a band can be seen as a long process, the group is constantly growing. Led and Chris Truax have officially opened their doors to the public and have started to make a name for themselves. The band is called "Monologues" and has been steadily gaining popularity. The group is made up of three women who are continually striving to create music that is different and unique. They have been practicing for an upcoming performance and are excited to share their music with the community. The Monologues are a new and exciting addition to the local music scene. If you haven't checked them out yet, be sure to go see them perform soon!"

Vandals run away with victory

By Nathan Jerek

The University of Idaho's women's basketball team came into Big West Conference play with high hopes. The Vandals' performance against Cal State Fullerton showed why.

UI (7-5 overall, 7-2 conference) found the basket against the Titans (1-5, 0-5) on Saturday in the second half of the game. UI finished the first half leading 47-38 and the Vandals closed out the Titans with a final score of 105-68. UI finished strong in the second half after a quiet start byUI.

"I thought they were pressuring us a lot, felt like I was getting backed into a corner," said UI head coach Linda Howlett. "But I think the girls did a great job of finding open people, getting off some open looks. On average, we hit 10 of our high-18 points, including 7-15 from the free throw line, and nine rebounds.

The only similarity for the Titans came in points scored. The Titans scored 29 points in both the first and second half of the game. The Titans ran over the run next time 30 minutes and whittled their way through a narrow 55-65 deficit with a little more than four minutes left in the game.

The Titans were led by Hasa Timms with two double-double with 11 points and 13 rebounds, while Kelly Orona finished with 10 points and five rebounds.

"I thought in the second half we kind of got away from what we were trying to do and learn the mark of a great team is we don't have to 24-point game and a 24-point game. And we just let our team take us to victory," said UI coach John DeSlevsen.

"We've never been in a situation like this," said UI head coach John DeSlevsen. "It's the first time we've been in a situation like this before and that's something that you have to be prepared for.

In the 24-point game, UI's Autumn Fielding added 16 points from the guard position while sophomore Kara Moore missed three at the line and finished with 13 points. Freshman point guard Becca Sitten (9-19, 5-10) had six of her 12 points in only 10 minutes of action. And there's just a lot of positive momentum for the Vandals. It's just contagious," Sitten said.

The win is the third in a row for the Vandals as they lead off with a 6-6 overall and 3-3 conference record, both heading into December 2003 season.

"We're coming into account what happened to the Vandals early in the season, eight of our 12 losses in the first six games," Howlett said. "We don't take it for granted here.

"They deserve a lot of credit," DeSlevsen said. "I told them that three weeks ago, I thought some of our games were going over their head for they keep working hard and they get the credit they deserve."

The Vandals have battled injury and loss in recent games and have a group of new players in a season that has struggled and turned it into a season. And the Vandals have a new look for the second game conference.

"We're looking forward to the conference tourney and we're excited for it," Howlett said. "It's easier, it's a lot easier." She said the Vandals will "just start out and see if things go into play. We'll just have to see if things go into place and go on from there." There is not much room for error in the conference tourney.

"It is hoping to finish two and two in the tournament of the two conference games at Pacific and New Mexico," Howlett said. The Vandals have already defeated the Titans and Bruins.

Vandals men stay on rollercoaster

By Ralph Dett Peterson

The men's basketball team just came out a two-win road trip last weekend, starting out at victory over UC Riverside Saturday with a double-overtime loss to Cal State Fullerton Sunday. Saturday's low entered UI at 13-7 and UI was held to 11 points in the first half in the game.

"We were as bad as we can be," said Perry. He was in a poor rhythm and didn't deserve a victory.

Perry's career came to an end by the first half over 12 minutes. The Titans, citing of a victory over UI Riverside Saturday with a double-overtime loss to Cal State Fullerton Sunday.

Saturday's low entered UI 13-7 and UI was held to 11 points in the second half of the game.

"I don't know if I have to comment on the game," said Perry. "We never recovered.

However, the Vandals did manage to stay with the Titans for a minute. In the second half, UI put itself into position to win. Senior Justin Logan played a strong first half, tying the game at 13 over those's first three went away, and the game went into overtime.

The Vandals could not take advantage of the double overtime and UI Fullerton pulled away to win the game.

"We played very, very poor," Perry said. "We made every mistake thing go right at the red, but the Titans played better than us."

UI needs to do in to win. They deserved to win, they were better than us."

Guard Jacquies Williams West headed Vandals in double figures with 16 points. The junior knocked down three 3-pointers Saturday in the game. UI finished the game over the Titans, 86-64. The Titans handed the Highlanders their ninth straight loss on the season.

The Vandals now return to the road to face the Eastern Washington University Eagles on Wednesday, December 11 at 7:05 PM. Eastern Washington currently stands at 8-6. The game will be played in Cheney, Washington.

"It's going to be a good game, we're looking forward to playing against Eastern Washington," Howlett said. "It's going to be a good test for us and it's going to be a good test for our conference games.

In the 66-65 victory, UI was led by 11 points from UI's Autumn Fielding with 16 points from the guard position while sophomore Kara Moore missed three at the line and finished with 13 points. Freshman point guard Becca Sitten (9-19, 5-10) had six of her 12 points in only 10 minutes of action.
No. 5 Sooners stop No. 6 Kansas
by Bruce Christian

Unbeknownst to college basketball observers, Kansas was after the fact the first part of the game belongs to Oklahoma's Thaddeus Lewis. The two seniors combined for 25 points in the first half of 111 shooting, including 6 of 9 from the field. Price and White each finished with 17 points, with White hitting four of Oklahoma's six three-pointers. The Sooners finally had the lead, 10-9, with 6:30 left in the first half. Kansas got down to 10-9 with 9:30 left in the first half.

A few points later, Sherron Collins went down with a knee injury. Kansas guard Mario Chalmers took his place. The game was early in the second half, and the Sooners came back to secure the lead with just over 14 minutes left in the game. Kansas hit only 3 of 9 field goals in the second half, and with 3:14 left in the game, the Sooners had a 22-20 lead. Kansas guard Mario Chalmers had 17 of the Sooners' 22 points.

The Sooners went on to win, 76-70, to improve to 10-0 in Big 12 play. The Sooners had three field goals in the first 13 minutes of the game, and Oklahoma played a defensive game, forcing Kansas to miss 17 shots and taking 33 minutes to score 30 points.

The Sooners' victory was their fourth in a row, and they are now tied for first place in the Big 12 Conference. The Sooners next face Arkansas on Saturday, and Kansas will meet Texas on Sunday.
