AIDS in United States continues to rise at rapid rate

By JACQUE WISEL

Nearly 400,000 cases of AIDS have been reported to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention in the United States, according to the Planned Parenthood Web site. And at the rate these cases continue to rise, according to these sites, AIDS is still one of the most advanced stages of the human immunodeficiency virus. HIV attacks and destroys the body's ability to fight off infection, eventually rendering people bedridden and unable to care for themselves.

The CDC, the national public-health agency of the U.S. federal government, issued its latest report in December 2004. The report states that the number of new HIV infections has been increasing over the past six years.

"It is the position of AIDS Action that the current HIV/AIDS crisis in the U.S. is crisis, not epidemic, and that the current HIV/AIDS crisis in the U.S. is not just about the number of people infected with HIV, but about the number of people infected with HIV/AIDS who are struggling to live full lives," said Mark E. Berman, executive director of AIDS Action.

The report says that in 2004, an estimated 430,000 new HIV infections were reported in the United States, and that this number is increasing at a rate of 5 percent per year.

The report also states that in 2004, an estimated 430,000 new HIV infections were reported in the United States, and that this number is increasing at a rate of 5 percent per year.

Dozens killed in suicide bombings targeting Kurdish offices in Irbil

By TONY LOWE, Associated Press

IRBIL, Iraq (AP)—In one of the deadliest days of the past three months, two men walked into Kurdish political offices Friday morning with explosives strapped to their bodies and, in a few minutes apart and on different sides of town, killed at least 34 people and wounded more than 70, according to the Health and government officials.

Among the dead were the governor and vice governor of Irbil, according to a spokesman for the Kurdistan Regional Government, Hamid Abdul Wahid, the region’s deputy prime minister, and several other key Kurdish politicians killed in the bombings.

Nearly all killed wereUN employees and were in their offices when the blasts occurred.

The attacks shocked to define simmering ethnic tension among Arabs, Kurds and Turkmens in the north, where many Kurds live and have their headquarters in Iraq and could strengthen separatist political sentiment. Irbil is home to the Kurdish regional government, and the blast killed the region’s governor and vice governor.

President Hamid Karzai, the prime minister of Afghanistan, the region’s neighbor to the east, said he was shocked by the attacks but would not comment on their potential connection to other violence in the region.

The two attacks were the worst this month in Iraq, and could strengthen separatist political sentiment.

'Others' and the UC community

Dear Editor,

I have worked at the University of California for many years. I am a retiree, but I have so many friends who are still UC employees that I feel they are a part of my family. I have a question about an opinion piece that appeared on the website:

[Link to the article]

I am concerned about the portrayal of UC employees as a group. The article seems to depict us as a monolithic entity, with little diversity of opinion or experience. This is not true, and I think it is misleading. I would like to share some thoughts on this subject.

Sincerely,

Exaggerations are a bit too much

Dear Editor,

I read the recent article on exaggerations with great interest. While I agree that exaggeration can be a problem, I think the article somewhat overstates the issue. I have noticed a trend towards exaggeration in certain fields, particularly politics and advertising, but I don't believe it is as widespread as the article suggests.

Sincerely,

Wilson's letter attempts to squelch discussion

Just when you might have thought that the debate over Wilson's nomination had died down, a little light has flared up. Like New York Governor Mario Cuomo's recent appearance in Book of the Week, Wilson's nomination has once again raised controversy.

In a letter to大发, the former Labor Secretary Wilson has expressed concerns for the safety of attending his nomination hearing, even though members of the UC community and others have significant objections from the Office of Diversity and Human Rights.

In his letter, Wilson expresses concern for the safety of attending his nomination hearing, especially for the rights of the UC community for all apology from the Office of Diversity and Human Rights.

The UC community has expressed strong opposition to Wilson's nomination.

Unfortunately for Wilson, the nomination hearing will go on as planned.

And who better to discuss historical fallacies than history professor? Who better to discuss the role of diversity and human rights than the Office of Diversity and Human Rights? Rather than back at these important issues, Wilson should schedule the university for uploading its commitment to these issues.

Sincerely,

Cayenne provides alternative to mind-altering drugs

With the advent of addiction has come a demand for new substances that can alter the mind. Cayenne, a spice often used in cooking, has been found to have some effects on the brain. Studies have shown that the active ingredient in cayenne, called capsaicin, can have a calming effect on the mind. However, it is important to note that this effect can be individual and varies from person to person.

Despite the potential benefits of cayenne, it is important to use it responsibly. Overuse can lead to negative effects, such as nausea and headaches. It is also important to note that cayenne may not be suitable for everyone, as it can cause digestive issues in some people.

In conclusion, cayenne can provide an alternative to mind-altering drugs. It is important to use it responsibly and consult with a healthcare professional before using it.

Sincerely,

Handwriting indicates personality

The CIA uses it to screen applicants while graphologists use it to make predictions. As with any technique, it is not perfect. Although it is not the most exact of sciences, handwriting analysis is a tool that can be used to gain insight into a person's personality. However, it is important to remember that the results of handwriting analysis vary depending on the professional administering the test and that different individuals may have different interpretations of the same handwriting.

The best way to learn about handwriting analysis is to study charts and books on the subject. Once you have gained some knowledge, you can begin to look at your own handwriting and see if you can detect any patterns. It is also helpful to look at the handwriting of other people to see if you can see any similarities or differences.

If you are interested in learning more about handwriting analysis, there are many books and courses available that can help you get started. Some of the best resources include "Handwriting Analysis: A Guide to Understanding Human Personality" by Sheila H. Lawler and "Handwriting Analysis for Beginners" by Susan M. H. Brown. These books provide a good starting point for learning about handwriting analysis.

The next time you see someone's handwriting, take a moment to look at it closely and see if you can detect any patterns that might indicate something about the person's personality.
"Two and a Half Men" star Sheen finds new life after near-death

By Ken Pacino

Sheen had a brush with the law.

As of this writing, it is not clear if theclouds that loomed over Sheen's career will clear or if he will return to his former prominence as a comedic actor on television. The actor's recent legal troubles and his past history of substance abuse have cast doubts on his future prospects. Nevertheless, Sheen has shown resilience in the past and there is always the possibility of a comeback. The story of Sheen's struggle and his eventual recovery would make for an interesting dramatic project for a serious director. The actor's talent and charisma have been evident in his previous roles, and there is no reason to believe that he would not be able to make a successful return to his acting career. The question of whether Sheen will be able to overcome his past mistakes and reestablish his reputation as a beloved television star remains to be seen.

UI defeats enemy of the state

UI's defense blanked Boise State, 28-0, in the fourth quarter to secure a win in its home opener.

UI head coach Larry Smith said the defense was the key to the win.

"Defense was the story of the game," Smith said. "We shut down Boise State's offense and limited them to only three points in the fourth quarter."
Maryland coach chastises students for obscene chants

By RICK MULLER

The Daily Record

The University of Maryland’s basketball coach Gary Williams addressed the Comcast Center crowd between Maryland’s 78-70 win over Idaho and the victory celebration to remind the students of the behavior expected on campus.

However, Williams has never been at peace with the student body’s behavior. In previous games, Williams has noted that the student section’s noise level and chants often brought the crowd to a standstill.

Williams said that the victory celebration should not be a time for students to let loose.

“Before tonight, we’ve had a very good season, and we’ve lost one game,” Williams said. “Tonight we can have a great victory celebration, and we have the best fans in the country.”

Williams added that the students should be turning their attention to the game, not the celebration.

The same thing happens every year: students and faculty alike are at the Student Recreation Center to get their exercise in before the Spring Break. The University Intramural and Wellness Center is packed.

In a definitely way busier since the new semester started, SRC employee Katie Culmin said, "probably because of New Year's resolutions and all."

Culmin said the busiest boys right now at the SRC are from 1-3 p.m., and there has also been a rise in attendance in the wellness classes that are offered throughout the day.

The SRC offers a wide range of fitness classes, and with everything from yoga and pilates to spin, there are options for just about every taste. Classes begin as early as 9:30 a.m. and last until as late as 9:30 p.m. The only classes offered on Saturdays are weight classes at 11:30 a.m., and morning classes at 10:30 a.m. There are no classes offered Sundays.

Of the more popular classes offered at the SRC is a popular group exercise class that has become quite popular across the nation, particularly with the younger generation. Pilates gives you a low-impact, highly intense workout that involves a lot of stretching and repetition.

Spinning is also a popular class at the SRC this year. It is a high-energy and motivating physical workout in which participants can improve their cardiovascular endurance. Spinning stimulates the heart rate and uses the muscles to function more efficiently and also help reduce body fat. It is done in a group setting. "Spinning is an awesome workout," said Eric McConnell, a human resource manager at the SRC.

"It is very intense and you always leave the class feeling like you got a good workout," McConnell said. Students and faculty can attend spinning classes a few times a week. The SRC offers spinning six days a week at 12:15 p.m. to enable as many students to participate as possible.

"Usually at least a couple fit into my schedule," she said, "so that's the nice thing about the classes; you can always find one that works in your day." All fitness classes last for 50 minutes except for the 45-minute classes held on the Thursdays for the troublesome areas of the body.

Other classes offered at the SRC include belly dancing, body flex, body toning, TIA (t’ai chi movement) and miscellaneous activities, which combine yoga, tai-chi, dynamic dance and Aikido. Technique is a world famous Tae Kwon Do system that combines technique and meditation for the students.

The SRC also offers classes for the busier students. There are classes for seniors, and classes for the non-students as well. The SRC offers classes for the busier students.

Men’s basketball nabs win on heels of tough loss

The University of Idaho men’s basketball team pulled off an impressive 57-52 victory over Big Sky Conference foe UI Eastern Washington University 84-58 on Tuesday night. Afterward, Idaho head coach David Serrano said that his team’s victory was due in large part to the strong play of senior forward Joel Miller.

Miller, who finished with a team-high 21 points and 10 rebounds, said that he was pleased with the way his team played overall.

“I thought our defense was really good tonight,” Miller said. “We held them to 52 points, and that’s something we haven’t been able to do in a while.”

Serrano echoed Miller’s sentiment, saying that he was proud of his team’s effort.

“I’m happy to get a win, especially on the road,” Serrano said. “But we still have a lot of work to do.”

The team’s next game is on Saturday against Montana State University. The Bobcats are currently 9-4 on the season and 5-0 in conference play.

“I think we’re really going to need to bring our A-game against Montana State,” Miller said. “They’re a tough team, but we’re confident in our ability to compete.”

Despite the win, Serrano said that the team still had some work to do.

“We need to work on our shooting and our rebounding,” Serrano said. “But overall, I was really pleased with the way we played.”
