Faculty asks Michael to hold off on consolidation

TIEGS, Jabone

UI faculty members have joined President Michael McCallum in voicing concerns about the University's plans to consolidate Recreation Services, the Student Bookstore, and the University Memorial Center. The planning work for these consolidations is currently underway, and faculty members, including McCallum himself, have complained that they were not consulted about the plan. The faculty members have also criticized the university for not providing enough information about the consolidation, and for not listening to their concerns.

The members of the Faculty Senate executive committee and the Faculty Executive Council have already expressed their opposition to the consolidation plans. The faculty members have asked McCallum to hold off on the consolidation until more information is provided and they have the opportunity to express their concerns.

However, the university administration has not yet responded to the faculty's concerns. The faculty members have also expressed their concern about the potential impact of the consolidation on the university's students and staff. They have asked McCallum to reconsider the consolidation plans and to consult with the faculty members before making a final decision.

Despite the faculty's concerns, McCallum has stated that the consolidation plans are moving forward. He has said that the university will continue to consult with the faculty members and that the university will provide more information about the consolidation in the future.

Survey gets second chance to measure UI alcohol consumption

FRIDAY FEB. 13, 2004

By TIEGS, Jabone

UI administrators are planning to conduct a second survey to measure the alcohol consumption of university students. The survey was conducted last year, but was not completed due to technical difficulties. The university is hoping to complete the survey this year and is hoping to get more accurate results.

The survey is being conducted by the University of Idaho Alcohol Education Program. The survey is being administered to students through the Student Rec Center, and is being conducted in the SLC, the SRC, and the Bookstore.

The survey is being conducted by the University of Idaho Alcohol Education Program. The survey is being administered to students through the Student Rec Center, and is being conducted in the SLC, the SRC, and the Bookstore.

The results of last year's survey were thought to be inaccurate due to technical difficulties. The university is hoping to get more accurate results this year and is hoping to complete the survey.

However, the university administration has not yet responded to the faculty's concerns. The faculty members have also expressed their concern about the potential impact of the consolidation on the university's students and staff. They have asked McCallum to reconsider the consolidation plans and to consult with the faculty members before making a final decision.

Despite the faculty's concerns, McCallum has stated that the consolidation plans are moving forward. He has said that the university will continue to consult with the faculty members and that the university will provide more information about the consolidation in the future.

Survey gets second chance to measure UI alcohol consumption

FRIDAY FEB. 13, 2004

BY TIEGS, Jabone

UI administrators are planning to conduct a second survey to measure the alcohol consumption of university students. The survey was conducted last year, but was not completed due to technical difficulties. The university is hoping to complete the survey this year and is hoping to get more accurate results.

The survey is being conducted by the University of Idaho Alcohol Education Program. The survey is being administered to students through the Student Rec Center, and is being conducted in the SLC, the SRC, and the Bookstore.

The results of last year's survey were thought to be inaccurate due to technical difficulties. The university is hoping to get more accurate results this year and is hoping to complete the survey.

However, the university administration has not yet responded to the faculty's concerns. The faculty members have also expressed their concern about the potential impact of the consolidation on the university's students and staff. They have asked McCallum to reconsider the consolidation plans and to consult with the faculty members before making a final decision.

Despite the faculty's concerns, McCallum has stated that the consolidation plans are moving forward. He has said that the university will continue to consult with the faculty members and that the university will provide more information about the consolidation in the future.

Survey gets second chance to measure UI alcohol consumption

FRIDAY FEB. 13, 2004

BY TIEGS, Jabone

UI administrators are planning to conduct a second survey to measure the alcohol consumption of university students. The survey was conducted last year, but was not completed due to technical difficulties. The university is hoping to complete the survey this year and is hoping to get more accurate results.

The survey is being conducted by the University of Idaho Alcohol Education Program. The survey is being administered to students through the Student Rec Center, and is being conducted in the SLC, the SRC, and the Bookstore.

The results of last year's survey were thought to be inaccurate due to technical difficulties. The university is hoping to get more accurate results this year and is hoping to complete the survey.

However, the university administration has not yet responded to the faculty's concerns. The faculty members have also expressed their concern about the potential impact of the consolidation on the university's students and staff. They have asked McCallum to reconsider the consolidation plans and to consult with the faculty members before making a final decision.

Despite the faculty's concerns, McCallum has stated that the consolidation plans are moving forward. He has said that the university will continue to consult with the faculty members and that the university will provide more information about the consolidation in the future.
ASUI throws itself centennial birthday bash behind the Idaho common food court and tucked beneath the stairs, a student-teacher duo was exploring the possibilities of the 2003 budget. Behind the counter, Kempthorne’s Committee on Higher Education and Fiscal affairs heard testimony which it was not clear who the Idaho Senate Education Committee, and why there was no mention of the House. At times, the budget discussion was heated, but in the end, the committee reached a consensus on the budget.

The Idaho Senate Education Committee is being asked to consider the 2003 budget, which is currently being debated in the House. The committee is expected to make a recommendation to the full Senate on the budget by next week. President Joanne Yelverton said she was pleased with the progress being made on the budget and that she looks forward to working with the House on the final budget agreement.

Attention-Vandals!

We are working hard to make sure that the campus remains a safe and enjoyable place for all students, faculty, and staff. If you see any suspicious activity or if you have any information that could help us prevent future incidents, please call 911 or contact the University’s police department at 208-384-2211. Thank you for your cooperation.

Human Race Machine feeds minds

Behind the Idaho common food court and tucked beneath the stairs, a student-teacher duo was exploring the possibilities of the 2003 budget. Behind the counter, Kempthorne’s Committee on Higher Education and Fiscal affairs heard testimony which it was not clear who the Idaho Senate Education Committee, and why there was no mention of the House. At times, the budget discussion was heated, but in the end, the committee reached a consensus on the budget.

The Idaho Senate Education Committee is being asked to consider the 2003 budget, which is currently being debated in the House. The committee is expected to make a recommendation to the full Senate on the budget by next week. President Joanne Yelverton said she was pleased with the progress being made on the budget and that she looks forward to working with the House on the final budget agreement.
Lathen said the consolidation is ‘the final straw,’ the best interest of UI students. ‘I’m not anti-instruction, but this is not a good decision for the students, he said. Athletics will always have the upper hand in the decision.’

Peggy Heggum, a Raceway trainer in Campus Recreation, has concerns regarding wellness classes held in the facilities. ‘I recently checked into a wellness class, and they were doing yoga there at one time. I don’t know where that would fit if the Recreation and Wellness classes were consolidated. And you’re putting different activities and different equipment together,’ Heggum said.

Lathen said that when the consolidation of the facilities was announced, he asked his administrative staff to fully address the committee for 30 minutes.

‘I told them that we would not be a bigger concern if it was different. But they didn’t want the building to look right, and this compromises what the students want. And I have to consider that,’ Lathen said.

After 17 of the 34 students in his Student Senate, built to represent all students in Campus Recreation, Lathen had no choice but to face the facts and consolidate the facilities two weeks ago. ‘It’s just, in that crucible, or did not want to face the facts of another week, I would have raised holy hell,’ Lathen said.

The consolidation is here, the best interest of UI students. ‘I’m not anti-instruction, but this is not a good decision for the students,’ he said. Athletics will always have the upper hand in the decision.’

Peggy Heggum, a Raceway trainer in Campus Recreation, has concerns regarding wellness classes held in the facilities. ‘I recently checked into a wellness class, and they were doing yoga there at one time. I don’t know where that would fit if the Recreation and Wellness classes were consolidated. And you’re putting different activities and different equipment together,’ Heggum said.

Lathen said that when the consolidation of the facilities was announced, he asked his administrative staff to fully address the committee for 30 minutes.

‘I told them that we would not be a bigger concern if it was different. But they didn’t want the building to look right, and this compromises what the students want. And I have to consider that,’ Lathen said.

After 17 of the 34 students in his Student Senate, built to represent all students in Campus Recreation, Lathen had no choice but to face the facts and consolidate the facilities two weeks ago. ‘It’s just, in that crucible, or did not want to face the facts of another week, I would have raised holy hell,’ Lathen said.

The consolidation is here, the best interest of UI students. ‘I’m not anti-instruction, but this is not a good decision for the students,’ he said. Athletics will always have the upper hand in the decision.’

Peggy Heggum, a Raceway trainer in Campus Recreation, has concerns regarding wellness classes held in the facilities. ‘I recently checked into a wellness class, and they were doing yoga there at one time. I don’t know where that would fit if the Recreation and Wellness classes were consolidated. And you’re putting different activities and different equipment together,’ Heggum said.

Lathen said that when the consolidation of the facilities was announced, he asked his administrative staff to fully address the committee for 30 minutes.

‘I told them that we would not be a bigger concern if it was different. But they didn’t want the building to look right, and this compromises what the students want. And I have to consider that,’ Lathen said.

After 17 of the 34 students in his Student Senate, built to represent all students in Campus Recreation, Lathen had no choice but to face the facts and consolidate the facilities two weeks ago. ‘It’s just, in that crucible, or did not want to face the facts of another week, I would have raised holy hell,’ Lathen said.
Mexico City's 'Pink Zone' campaign is gay, lesbian, Zona Rosa district

BY LAURANCE LIPPS

MEXICO CITY (ERT) — Amid the jumble of stepping stones and knickknacks shops in the capitol's historic Zona Rosa neighborhood, one small coffee shop stands out. Two large rainbow flags frame a sign with the words “Pink Zone.”

The 350-square-meter building was built over a century ago by a woman who lived here alone. Today, her color scheme is also adopted by the coffeehouse, which has a moderate entrance fee — 20 pesos compared to 200 pesos for most places in this area of the city.

When you ask the owner about the origins of the coffeehouse, she proudly explains how she decided to open it as a gay-friendly space. She says that she wants to create a safe haven for people of all sexual orientations.

The coffeehouse offers a variety of drinks and snacks, and its atmosphere is welcoming and inclusive. The owner explains that she has always supported the LGBTQ+ community and wanted to create a place where everyone feels welcome.

She also talks about her personal experience as a gay woman and how she faces discrimination in the city. She says that she wants to provide a space where people can come together and feel comfortable.

The coffeehouse is not only a place for drinking coffee and eating food, but also a place for people to socialize and meet others. The owner says that she enjoys seeing people connect and share stories.

Overall, the coffeehouse is a representation of the Zona Rosa district and its welcoming environment for all sexual orientations.
In a regime change at this university, Tim White would be great, but we will awaken the ghost of Gray Myhrum, and the spirit of Gary Michael, and he should take his buddy Winstead and run with him. This might sound unusual considering the good he has done for the university at his own expense, but it seems as if Michael's role has been played out. If for future decisions are any indication of what is to come, there may be some serious problems among those making decisions, someone who is going to have to come with the consequences of them.

Michael obviously does not understand how a university works. This is not a company; there is a certain amount of family, staff and student governance that is in place, and it shouldn't be any different. According to the draft copy of UID Institutional Self-Study the document used to prepare for re-accreditation, "The ASU has been an important tradition and primary student voice on campus for many years and enjoys a very open relationship with the university administration." When it comes to administration, it is clear that unless the board can get itself in order, this relationship is going to get strained. The board needs to change or there will be a bigger change before them.

If our "president" is going to make controversial decisions and refuse to hear discussion on them, it is time for him to go. When decisions affect students, the students should be involved in the decision process. Personally, I have never agreed with Michael's decision to fire Winstead. If you can call it a decision. Michael, you can just as easily call it a decision to fire Marwan. Michael, it seems to me, is trying to make decisions, and the students are being left out of the picture.

One impressive thing about both White and Jones is that they seem to understand the importance of students. They know part of the president's job is to serve the students. They know the decision to fire Winstead was not made by the students. That is what universities are for the students. It is their university.

Michael needs to understand he is here to serve the students. Michael and Winstead's main problem is they do not seem to care about communication. Only a week after Michael fires Winstead and the president makes a statement that he has made a mistake, he makes a statement that he made a mistake. He should have to answer for it.迈克尔可以更好地面对这个决定，他应该更加重视学生的意见。

This week alone more than 10,000 people have died in Iraq. Could it be because we want to propagate a constitution that supports their war? Again, this shortlist of Bush's probably has little to do with student opinion. I just don't think anything we are doing in Iraq is supported by the student body. With this much evidence, you would think that Winstead could serve the students. This week alone more than 10,000 people have died in Iraq. Could it be because we want to propagate a constitution that supports their war? Again, this shortlist of Bush's probably has little to do with student opinion. I just don't think anything we are doing in Iraq is supported by the student body. With this much evidence, you would think that Winstead could serve the students.

We need a president who values students.

B.P.

Bush has provided plenty of reasons for his ousting.

I'd love to see the day when the American people are not consumed with blaming the previous president. How does one blame a president who did his best and who has already left office? We need a president who values students and who will take the time to listen to their concerns. We need a president who will work with Congress to pass legislation that will benefit all people regardless of their race or ethnicity. We need a president who will work to promote peace in the Middle East and around the world.

There is, however, proof that he was working on a Senate campaign in Alabama that same year.

Another is that he claims he was "in favor of" women's rights, but his record is one of opposing them. He has opposed the Equal Rights Amendment, the Violence Against Women Act, and the Family Violence Prevention Act.

But of course, we would not want to pull him away from a good cause. We are not that selfish. But the fact remains that he has done a great deal for the cause of American democracy. He has been a great leader, and we should be proud of him.
Scrap Arts Music takes trash; makes drum music

BY JON RING

Bryan Hall in Pullman was in full flow Wednesday night, thanks to the ingenuity of the Scrap Arts Music ensemble.

Scrap Arts Music consists of five drummers with varied musical training and a high amount of stimulation. The ensemble features a variety of homemade instruments, including a生命的 and a hard-drummed belly. The group members’ stylistic differences help them move effortlessly around the stage while juggling, yelling and bringing back the drums. Every movement is choreographed and every note is taught. This ensemble is not your normal group.

Artistic director Gregor Kozak said action percussion is putting “music and music and sculpture all in one place.”

Mark Petrik, a civil rights expert from the Southern Poverty Law Center, discusses how hate groups across the U.S. are being connected. Petrik spoke on campus Friday night as part of the university’s Black History Month celebration.

Black History Month events address local issues

BY BILL McGUIVAN

The university is honoring Black History Month with an array of events including speeches, hip-hop events, music, and a free show to celebrate the birthday of legendary drummer Levon Helm.

The celebration kicked off Feb. 5 with a series of classes and lectures on swing and jazz, taught by the legendary saxophone player Freddie Manning and young dance expert and jazz historian Peter Langría. Greg Bilal, a chapel co-director at the University of Idaho, headed up the event.

The culmination continued Friday with the potent speech given by Mark Petrik, who directed documentaries for Southern Poverty Law Center. He was brought in to discuss non-Confederate jazz groups and the role of jazz in the civil rights movement. He also addressed the statements and writings of such groups in Moscow. Petrik discussed the League of the South, which he considers a non-Confederate group. The group was started by Steven Willows, who created the Word of Faith Church. Steven Willows and William were beaten and killed in the same night that discussed the ideas set down in their work.

Many professors and students were open to the discussion, and Petrik and his work will continue as a very powerful way of making Black History Month a big production, Petrik said. The speech brought about 200 views.

Maroon 5 breaks from tour, plays Bailey

BY BENNETT TANNER

The rock band Maroon 5 will perform at Washington State University’s Beasley Coliseum Sunday evening.

The event, presented by WSU’s Diversity and Race Relations, will feature lead singer Adam Levine, a co-founder of the band, and the band’s guitarist, Jesse Carmichael, a co-founder of MXPX.

The show is sponsored by the Beasley Coliseum, the Student Union, the Student Activities Board, and the Student Government Association.

The concert is free to students with a valid WSU ID. General admission tickets are $20 and student tickets are $15.

The event will be open to the public.

The band’s music has been featured in commercials and on television shows such as “The O.C.” and “Dawson’s Creek.”

Maroon 5 is known for their popular hit songs “Sugar” and “This Love.”

The concert is also being held in conjunction with the university’s Black History Month celebration.

The university is honoring Black History Month with an array of events including speeches, hip-hop events, music, and a free show to celebrate the birthday of legendary drummer Levon Helm.

The celebration kicked off Feb. 5 with a series of classes and lectures on swing and jazz, taught by the legendary saxophone player Freddie Manning and young dance expert and jazz historian Peter Langría. Greg Bilal, a chapel co-director at the University of Idaho, headed up the event.

The culmination continued Friday with the potent speech given by Mark Petrik, who directed documentaries for Southern Poverty Law Center. He was brought in to discuss non-Confederate jazz groups and the role of jazz in the civil rights movement. He also addressed the statements and writings of such groups in Moscow. Petrik discussed the League of the South, which he considers a non-Confederate group. The group was started by Steven Willows, who created the Word of Faith Church. Steven Willows and William were beaten and killed in the same night that discussed the ideas set down in their work.

Many professors and students were open to the discussion, and Petrik and his work will continue as a very powerful way of making Black History Month a big production, Petrik said. The speech brought about 200 views.

Maroon 5 breaks from tour, plays Bailey
CJ's offers chance for Mexican getaway

by Joe Diamond

There is no such thing as a free lunch, but how about renting Mexico's harsh winter weather and winning a weeklong, all-expenses-paid trip for two to the sunny beaches of Mexico? The price for this giveaway is as easy as buying a beer while out with friends.

Since September CJ's has been promoting a free spring break trip for two to Mazatlan, Mexico. The way the contest works is that anyone who buys a cocktail, a beer or a shot is eligible to enter him or her name into a drawing for the trip.

In the five months since the start of the promotion, a surprisingly small number of bidders have entered. Currently, there are only around 40 entries in the draw, one of which will be chosen at the drawing scheduled to take place tomorrow night. Winners must be present when the drawing is held.

Shelley Raberck, wife of CJ's owner Phil Raberck, said the contest is CJ's way of showing the community for giving their business so much support. "We've lost money on this one," she said. The contest winner will be allowed to take the trip for free along with 40 friends. Raberck and will be flown to Mazatlan. A trip to Mexico. Their springbreak vacation will include free breakfast and dinner for each day. Additionally, more than 50 hours of free drinks will be provided. The return ticket is also included. The overall cost is valued at $1,000.

For more information, call 882-2915.

Happy Valentine's Day

The University of Idaho Argonaut

ARTS/CULTURE

CJ's offers chance for Mexican getaway

by Joe Diamond

There is no such thing as a free lunch, but how about renting Mexico's harsh winter weather and winning a weeklong, all-expenses-paid trip for two to the sunny beaches of Mexico? The price for this giveaway is as easy as buying a beer while out with friends.

Since September CJ's has been promoting a free spring break trip for two to Mazatlan, Mexico. The way the contest works is that anyone who buys a cocktail, a beer or a shot is eligible to enter him or her name into a drawing for the trip.

In the five months since the start of the promotion, a surprisingly small number of bidders have entered. Currently, there are only around 40 entries in the draw, one of which will be chosen at the drawing scheduled to take place tomorrow night. Winners must be present when the drawing is held.

Shelley Raberck, wife of CJ's owner Phil Raberck, said the contest is CJ's way of showing the community for giving their business so much support. "We've lost money on this one," she said. The contest winner will be allowed to take the trip for free along with 40 friends. Raberck and will be flown to Mazatlan. A trip to Mexico. Their springbreak vacation will include free breakfast and dinner for each day. Additionally, more than 50 hours of free drinks will be provided. The return ticket is also included. The overall cost is valued at $1,000.

For more information, call 882-2915.
"Our Country's Good" returns to Hartung

By Bill McVeycer

"Our Country's Good" is the play that the theater department does here, but before the theater festival, the production is coming to the people of Waseca. "Our Country's Good" will be performed today and Saturday at the Waseca Community Center.

"Our Country's Good" is the story of a woman who lived in England during the Napoleonic Wars. The woman is one of many who were forced to go into India at the request of the British government to put together a large army.

With luck of civilization and real stories, the cast is made up of the Wetzel convicts and Australia. The prisoners, who have to deal with brutality, sorcery, and even worse living conditions, pull together to perform Australia's first theatrical production.

Tickets are available at the door for $23.50.

"Our Country's Good" is a step-by-step guide on how to make women, what to talk about and what to do when your girls get into a relationship. There is a chance that some information, which is very important, can make a difference. Richardson said men should take it to gain knowledge about themselves. Richardson said Faye was at a wedding not too long ago and saw a 17-year-old bragging in a young woman about what wrestling, a 17-year-old bragging in a young woman about what welding was.

The group presenting "Stories of Black" are the African-American, Native American, Asian, and American Indian communities.

We are looking for highly motivated students interested in learning about financial markets through the management of an investment fund.

Why Join??

- Gain valuable experience in investment research, decision-making, and professional presentations.
- Become intimately familiar with securities markets while working in a dynamic team environment.
- Past field trips include: New York, Chicago, and San Francisco.

Open to students ALL MAJORS (prospective and current students are encouraged to apply).

Required Materials: Resume and application letter detailing interests and abilities.

Submit to: Prof. Mario Reyes, Altobello Building, Room 220.

Now Accepted: Applications

Davis Student Investment Program

We are looking for highly motivated students interested in learning about financial markets through the management of an investment fund.

Why Join??

- Gain valuable experience in investment research, decision-making, and professional presentations.
- Become intimately familiar with securities markets while working in a dynamic team environment.
- Past field trips include: New York, Chicago, and San Francisco.

Open to students ALL MAJORS (prospective and current students are encouraged to apply).

Required Materials: Resume and application letter detailing interests and abilities.

Submit to: Prof. Mario Reyes, Altobello Building, Room 220.

Spring 2004 Davis Group in the Brand New Barker Bear and Bears Trading Room.

DEADLINE:
Monday, February 24th, 2004 at 5 p.m.!!

Questions? Contact Sean Diehl at diehls205@uidaho.edu
Sticking to their guns
UI women's hockey team's work is paying off

By JOSH BUNNING
TRI-CITY'DAY

A sport where hitting your opponent with a stick is considered acceptable violence has given the University of Idaho women's hockey team a lot of shots. But these Vandals have begun to thrive in one of the roughest sports on the face of the earth.

Defeated 7-0 by buzzer beater, UI senior goalie, as is the case for her three years old, said the women are one over-average game before.

"Hockey is one of those sports where the girls areusually thought of as being a boyish," Roueche said. "Our game is the smallest person on the ice. In every case, we're fryin' like the black sheep of women's hockey."

"They didn't really want to play with the girls, so I asked my own brother," Roueche said. The club did experience some backlash from the community.

In the club's first meeting three years ago, they found out among the girls who tried out for the club, two were in high school and most of them had never played the game before.

But after a rough start, the team now finds itself in the midst of an undefeated season.

"I don't know how to explain it, but the girls have bought in," Roueche said.

"After that, it was up to one or two girls who had played some hockey before, and the rest of the team was just a group of friends who were really into hockey and wanted to play."

"(The girls) have been very supportive of each other, and they've become great friends outside of the sport as well."

Roueche is one of six seniors on the team and one of three captains.

"I think the most important thing for us is to have fun and enjoy the process," she said.

"We've been able to create a really close bond with each other, and it's been great to see the improvement in our skills as well."

UI women's hockey team captain Rosanna Anderson scores a goal against Washington State in the Palouse Tire Ice Bar.

"Rosanna's been working really hard this season," Roueche said. "She's really come into her own as a player and is now one of our top scorers."
Scott’s House of Flowers
308 E. Main St.
208-222-5657

Roses! Bouquets! Balloons! Teddy Bears! Plants! Candles!

Happy Valentine’s Day!

Sanyo 8100 Camera Phone
Reg. $199.99 each
Now...

2 for FREE!
Very Limited Supply!

Also receive 50 Free
Roam minutes a month!
Limited Time Offer!

Happy Valentine’s gift guide 2004

RE AL IN D M T E D

Urbane/Eclectica
Valentine’s Day gifts for every budget
From raunchy to romantic, we have it all...

Urbane/Eclectica
114 East Third Street, Moscow
892-9100
11 am - 7 pm Monday - Saturday

Tempting Gifts
FOR YOUR SWEETHEART

10-50%
On Our Large Selection Of Lingerie

After Dark
Lingerie • Novelites • Gifts
Extended Hours
7 Days A Week 10am - 10pm
2 GREAT LOCATIONS TO SERVE YOU

1408 S. Grand Ave. 412 Main Street
Pullman 509-334-0202
Lewiston 208-746-7222