Fraternity alcohol investigations to be carried out separately

by NATE POPPINO and JESSIE BUNNEN

The University of Idaho and the national office of Oxford Sigma Phi will conduct separate investigations into the deaths of UI student and fraternity members Jason Verret and Joel Shannon, a UI official said Friday.

Dean of Students Bruce Pitman said the university and fraternity will work together on parts of the investigations, which seek to clear together the fraternity’s role in the case of Shannon, 18, who died at his home in Moscow, Ind. Verret, 20, Sept. 19, when his motorcycle crashed on the fraternity’s lawn.

Verret, who was driving the motorcycle, was declared legally intoxicated in an Idaho State Police report. He was under the legal drinking age.

Pitman pointed out the investigation details during the early U-19. "Each entity has its own interests, but we will work with each other to the extent that is legal and possible," Pitman said. "We recognize that the national fraternity may have some issues that are different than the local UI chapter and we will respect each, but be honest about our work together."

Pitman said he would lead U-19 investigation, which will start within 10 days, while the national fraternity will send a two- or three-person team to UI in November.

"We’re working with the undergraduate chapter to work out arrangements," Pitman said. "I have a list of five names of fraternity members I’ve talked to them to see if they feel like this is a good idea for them to step forward."

"I think the investigation will be approached from different angles."

The national fraternity has a different relationship with its own chapter than we have with the chapter here, Pitman said. "We have our own separate investigators making the decision about their own investigation." The national fraternity’s investigation will be led by an attorney, Pitman added. "This is an unusual situation, it’s one that will be dealt with in many ways, but they have some legal relationships with the undergraduate chapter that are different," Pitman said. "We’re going to work with them to get them going on their own investigation."

Wall Street Journal editor offers the human side of journalism

by Andie Eckardt

As surveys of reporters grapple with the feeling of being at ground zero or being misunderstood, one group is finding a unique outlet for their emotions: a soap opera. In an interview with the New Yorker, Gary ~in the hopes of creating a more "human" experience. Jones said that he and Gary Graham, managing editor of the Wall Street Journal, decided to create the series in order to attract a new audience.

Gruley is in charge of finding young talent for the Wall Street Journal, and he has been given a job to find a group of people about five or 10 people involved in the event starting on five people involved in the event. At times, the discussion got heated and a student argued for or against journalism. One question came up that really surprised Nevin. Gary said he is stock in the Wall Street Journal, and that he and his family are committed to the project. When Ena was asked whether he and Gary Graham, managing editor of the Wall Street Journal, decided to create the series in order to attract a new audience. Nevin said, "I think we should do that, but that's not really true. Gary said, "We don't have the conversations or the debates that are in journalism. Even in the Wall Street Journal, you might have to learn about things that you don't really know about, driven by economic necessity."

Nevin, who also danced during the powwow, said he didn't like the idea. "I think it's a good idea," Nevin said. "But it's not the same. It's different."

Abstinence is the answer

Dear Editor,

Your story about the young girl who has not yet had sex is a good example of how the media can influence public opinion. We need to promote abstinence as the only way to prevent sexually transmitted diseases, unplanned pregnancies, and other problems.

Opinion:

High-tech is high-risk for voting

O ur November 2, 2000, election was a high point of recent reforms to make our voting systems more reliable and secure. However, it remains to be seen whether these reforms will be enough to prevent future election fiascos.

In the wake of the 2000 election, steps were taken to improve the security and reliability of our voting systems. These steps included the use of electronic voting machines, which were believed to be more accurate and less vulnerable to fraud.

But while the new voting systems showed promise, they also had their drawbacks. For example, some experts raised concerns about the security of the voting machines and the potential for vote manipulation.

In the years since the 2000 election, there have been concerns about the security of electronic voting systems. In some cases, these concerns have been validated, and it remains to be seen whether these systems will ever be truly secure.

As we look to the future, it is clear that we need to continue to invest in the development and improvement of our voting systems. This will require ongoing research and development, as well as careful evaluation of new technologies.

In conclusion, while the progress made in the area of voting systems is encouraging, it is clear that we have a long way to go to achieve a truly secure and reliable voting system. We must continue to work towards this goal, and we must do so with vigilance and determination.

Kerry healthcare plan

Kerry's plan is aimed at lowering healthcare costs and improving access to care for all Americans. His plan includes measures to expand coverage, reduce costs, and improve the quality of care.

Kerry's plan includes the following key proposals:

- Extending coverage to all Americans
- Lowering prescription drug costs
- Providing tax credits for small businesses
- Investing in research and development

Kerry's plan is a comprehensive approach to addressing the healthcare crisis in the United States.

CONCLUSION

In conclusion, we must support reforms to our healthcare system that prioritize the needs of all Americans. We must work towards a system that is affordable, accessible, and effective for all.

Ecclecticism caught in a woodwind

The Idaho Statesman proved to be a less than complete choice for a Thursday evening concert, according to the theater's recently named music critic. Scranton stated that all concertgoers were somewhat disappointed and left the woodwind concert to the five-piece band's sound.

The band's sound was somewhat less than what Scranton had anticipated. Scranton commented that the band was simply not a success, as their music was not in tune with the audience.

"The band's sound was somewhat less than what Scranton had anticipated. Scranton commented that the band was simply not a success, as their music was not in tune with the audience."

He went on to say, "Scranton, who is a regular in the Statesman, said, "I was hoping for a much better show. The woodwind was not up to par and the audience seemed to be completely disappointed."

His review was less than favorable for the band, and he is urging the Statesman to find a more suitable concert for this type of music. He said, "I think it is important for the Statesman to find a different type of music that will better fit the audience."
Hollywood misses with newest horror remake

BY STEVE WATERS

With Hollywood drawing closer, Hollywood's box office record history has been bunched at the box office. Screened on the success of 2018, this film takes a real step closer to a classic in its genre

This film has taken on another Hollywood horror with "The Grudge." This film comes from the original "The Grudge," a phrase similar to a new genre of horror that revolves around the idea that when a person dies in a grudge, a curse is left behind on the place of death. LHSOM's David is a very good actor, but the film’s story is the opposite of the original. It is a thriller, but it is more of a horror film. The audience is drawn back through the house and its ghastly denizens. The film's rhythm and confusing direction as a mystery is the house as the evil occurs in short, shocking scenes that provide a lot of these suspenseful moments in the film. Overall, they do nothing for the movie other than making it a little bit

10. The Grudge

Samantha is a grudge who has been around for a while, and she is known for her gentle, polite, and most memorable characteristic is her ability to whisper, but no one is that good. Perhaps the only entertaining and creepy aspect of "The Grudge" is its villain, the grudge that is shown to be a monster. The villain played by Takako Matsu, who played the villain in the original "The Grudge" film, creates a more effective grudge, but the movie itself is not as

An evening with Good Charlotte

This was not the Good Charlotte of yesteryear, the band that wore campy wigs and背景 music, their faces contorted in pérfected anguish. This was the Good Charlotte of today, the band that wears denim jackets and sneakers, their faces lit up by the stage lights and the crowd.

The concert was held at the KeyArena in Seattle, Washington, on a warm and humid summer evening. The crowd was eagerly awaiting the arrival of Good Charlotte, who were scheduled to perform at 8:00 PM.

At 8:00 PM, the lights dimmed and the crowd erupted into cheers as Good Charlotte took the stage. The band was led by lead singer Joel Madden, who was accompanied by the rest of the band, including Benji Madden, Dean Minnelli, and the rest of the Good Charlotte lineup.

The concert started with the band's hit song, "I'm Alright," which was followed by the crowd favorite, "The Young and the Hopeless." The audience was singing along with every word of the songs, their voices blending together in harmony.

As the concert progressed, Good Charlotte performed some of their newer songs, including "We're All Right," "Me Against You," and "Lullaby." The band was accompanied by a live orchestra, which added a unique and refreshing element to the concert.

The concert ended with the band's hit song, "The Young and the Hopeless," which was greeted with a thunderous round of applause. The band left the stage as the crowd continued to sing along with the song.

Overall, the concert was a success, with Good Charlotte delivering a high-energy performance that left the audience wanting more. The band's talent, combined with their ability to connect with the audience, made for a memorable evening that will be remembered for years to come.

Students climb in the dark at Late Night at the Rec

BY JESSICA LEWIS

Friday night the Student Recreation Center closed its doors and turned on the lights for Late Night at the Rec. This annual event featured many activities such as food, raffles, karaoke, and movie screenings in the dark. The event was held from 7 p.m. and lasted until midnight. The event schedules included many climbing competitions in the Climbing Center, such as the twister, a three-legged climb, and the bungee jump.

The event was a huge success, with students of all ages enjoying the activities. The highlight of the night was the climbing competition in the dark, which was both challenging and entertaining. Students were able to test their limits and have fun at the same time.

The event was a great way for students to come together and enjoy each other's company. It was a great opportunity to relieve stress and have a good time. Students who attended the event had a fun and memorable night.

The next Late Night at the Rec event will be held on October 29, 2021. Students are encouraged to mark their calendars and come out to enjoy the event.

For more information, please visit the Student Recreation Center website or contact the event coordinators at late-night@sub.uidaho.edu.
USC stays on top of BCS, Sooners rise one spot to second and Hurricanes drop to third

By MIKE HUDEZ

Miami stays at the top of the coaches’ poll after the Hurricanes defeated Stanford in the Fiesta Bowl. Oklahoma, which was both second in the coaches’ and third in the AP poll, moved up one spot to No. 2 in the AP poll, moving out of the slot vacated by No. 4 Florida, which was eliminated from the BCS title game on Saturday.

The Associated Press poll also has the Hurricanes at No. 1, followed by Oklahoma, Florida, Ohio State and Virginia Tech.

Miami (28-5) has won its last six games, including a 34-20 victory over Stanford (11-2) in the Fiesta Bowl. The unanimous No. 1 team has averaged 48 points per game in winning its last four games.

Oklahoma (27-4) is coming off a 28-27 win over Florida in the Orange Bowl. The Sooners, who finished 11-1-1 last season, have won their last three games.

Florida (11-2) is the only team from a BCS conference in the top five, followed by Hawaii at No. 6. The Trojans, who finished 12-0 last season, have averaged 40 points per game in winning their last six games.

Virginia Tech (24-3) is the only team in the top five from a non-BCS conference. The Hokies, who finished 11-1-1 last season, have averaged 30 points per game in winning their last five games.

The Associated Press poll is used to determine the BCS championship game participants. The BCS championship game will be played on Jan. 7.
