Robert McMillan, director of the University of Idaho Student Union, says the university has seen a drop in student fees. McMillan, who has been at the university for 10 years, says the drop is due to a decrease in student fees.

"We have seen a decrease in student fees," he said. "This is due to a decrease in the number of students who are taking classes online." McMillan said that the decrease in fees has also led to a decrease in the number of students who are attending classes.

He also said that the university is working to improve its online courses.

"We are working to improve our online courses," he said. "This includes increasing the amount of resources available to students, and improving the technology used in our online courses." McMillan said that the university is also working to improve its traditional courses.

"We are also working to improve our traditional courses," he said. "This includes increasing the amount of resources available to students, and improving the technology used in our traditional courses." McMillan said that the university is also working to improve its student services.

Oh, the lessons you'll learn

Lurleen Bush can joke; it is true.

Y ou want to hear a good joke? George W. Bush was such a dud, governmental characters in Oregon felt obligated to acknowledge the Americans dying halfway through the line.

Bush's back in the game. After a self-destructing period about how to handle our debt, Bush is now working on making light of the serious issue of the national deficit.

A moment of silence for the joke about O.J. While driving, O.J. got a phone call. When he arrived at the police station, the Bush administration started the joke.

This joke is no laughing matter. It's not even a joke about the administration. It's a joke about the Bush administration.

The economic dump between the rich and the poor is still going strong. Capitalism and America might sink to the bottom of the economic sea.

We have a president-in-chief twirling his way to the White House. The press is already talking about what a great job he did in winning the election. He's already working on his next big joke.

I'm not sure if the joke is about the economy or the administration. But it's sure to make people laugh.

Laura Bush can joke; it is true.
Fire up those toy light sabers, fanboys, because the summer of 2005 boasts a movie nerd's dream schedule. Not only is "Revenge of the Sith" looking 10 times better than the last two "Star Wars," but Batman is back with a vengeance (and thankfully out of the hands of Joel Schumacher) and Steven Spielberg is going blockbuster again.

The following is a guide to all the summer movies you'll want to check out and some you'll want to skip. Remember that release dates are subject to change, so don't go all Anakin Skywalker if a certain movie doesn't open when it's supposed to.

May

Star Wars Episode III: Revenge of the Sith

- Starring: Hayden Christensen, Ewan McGregor, Natalie Portman, Samuel L. Jackson
- Release Date: May 16
- After two installments propounded, "Star Wars" fans should be excited again. Not only will this be the first PG-13 setting, but it also boasts the return of Darth Vader, an appearance by Chewbacca, and lightsaber battles (oh, make Darth Maul look like the bad guy). George is in it, too. Cast includes Ian McDiarmid as a first lightsaber, Anakin and Obi-Wan Kenobi as it is for 12 minutes on a volcano and Samuel L. Jackson's Mace Windu. The final lightsaber match down on villain before going out in a reported "hast of glory."

Unst

War of the Worlds

- Starring: Tom Cruise, Dakota Fanning, Tim Robbins, Steven Spielberg has done almost all right and notably "E.T.," and now it's time to show those powers out there. The beautiful sets, costumes, and special effects are eye-catching. A family taken over by aliens, and the parents fail to notice the state of our great, near-death America. When has Spielberg not delivered? Oh, except "The Mummy." Is it true!"

Batman Begins

- Starring: Christian Bale, Michael Caine, Katie Holmes, Liam Neeson
- Release Date: June 15
- Batman and Robin ruined everything. It appeared Batman was dead and Spider-Man was the king of the world. But even with a corny script that turns Batista into a jock and Robin into a dork, neither will be missed. It is said Bruce Wayne (Bale) doesn't want the suit for quite a bit, and Nolan uses batman to understand that it's better to get used to the idea of him as a guy first. How did Nolan make this Brooks movie?"

June

2005:

- Starring: John Cusack, Catherine Zeta-Jones, Michael Keaton
- Release Date: June 17
- Walking dead people to the glory days in Gotham City.

June 24

Charlie and the Chocolate Factory

- Starring: Johnny Depp, Freddie Highmore
- Release Date: July 9
- Better mark it down on a maybe.

Fantastic Four

- Starring: Michael Chiklis, Jessica Alba, Ioan Gruffudd, Chris Evans.

See MOVIE, Page A8

May 27

The Longest Yard

- It's a remake of 1974 cult classic that looks sets like a time "Waterboy" revisited.

July

Men and Mrs. Smith

- With all the information given about whether or not Brad Pitt and Angelina Jolie hooked up on the set, you can pretty much guarantee the movie lines.

Juno

- Although it's a remake of 2007 cult classic "E.T.", nothing can prepare you for the success.

August

Starstreet

- Starring: Natalie Portman, Christensen, Joe Mantegna, Jennifer Lopez should be on all a favor and take a few years off her.

Unleashed

- Joel and Morgan Freeman.

Se7en

- As the story goes, the scheduling is perfect.

Spider-Man 2

- Starring: Tobey Maguire, Kirsten Dunst, Sam Raimi.

The Legend of Bagger Vance

- Starring: Matt Damon, Will Smith, Denzel Washington.

Batman Begins

- Starring: Christian Bale, Michael Caine, Katie Holmes, Liam Neeson.

Starstreet

- Starring: Steven Spielberg, Tom Cruise, Dakota Fanning, Tim Robbins.

Batman Begins

- Starring: Christian Bale, Michael Caine, Katie Holmes, Liam Neeson.

2005: The Great Movie

- Starring: John Cusack, Catherine Zeta-Jones, Michael Keaton.

*Walking dead people to the glory days in Gotham City.

June 24

Charlie and the Chocolate Factory

- Starring: Johnny Depp, Freddie Highmore.

"Release Date: July 8. It's inevitable. "Gone 4 Men" and "Spider-Man" hit, the superfans started to crank again and sure enough it made $29.7 million. The 'Superman III' Redux at 35 came in at $22.3 million. "Fantastic Four" is at least on people's minds for Marvel, and I'm looking forward for the "Avengers".

"Gone 4 Men" is likely to lead the charge in theaters, followed by what is the least likely candidate. "Pride & Prejudice". I'm looking at the other films, like "The Breakup" and "The Identical" without much interest. "The major thing? It's pretty and flat. This remake of the 30s TV series is the biggest movie in town in August. But with payroll economists Knutsen and Sontag and the average deficit of the "spectacle" Lucas, Spielberg, this is apparently a big movie. It will be a happy surprise to see the Galaxy's kudzu with sequelitis. The "New Pavilion" is the only candidate worth considering. Others will probably not see this as a festive event. Why? It's the biggest movie in August?"

"For anything? It certainly better not be."

Also in August

August 5 "The Pink Panther"

Beyond a surefire with Steve Martin taking on the George Clooney's "Scent of a Woman". Something will be wrong.

August 12 "The Senator Key"

It stars Kevin Bacon and (yep!) it's not a rom-com comedy.

August 25 "The Poseidon Adventure"

Ben Affleck is on fire again.

August 29 "Hollywood"

A goofy action movie Davis Pollak project before the big screen. Hopefully, it's not a very good one. It will fulfill the gap, till it's this August.

"The Dukes of Hazard"

Worth the wait

Argenstau editors and art culture staff members reveal the movies they are most excited about for the summer

"Star Wars III: Revenge of the Sith" sounds promising, Forget about Hayden Christensen - I'm looking forward to this film just to see if it's any better than the last two.

The movie I'm most looking forward to this summer is "Ratman and Bata Jewelery" - I'm intrigued to see how this film will turn out. I can not doubt that with supervision from Robert Duvall's widow Lisa. As executive producer and Burton's inventive vision, this film has the ability to be equally amazing as the book.

I'm counting the days until the premieres of "The Incredibles and "Charlie and the Chocolate Factory" this July. I loved the book and the 1970s film adaptation, but I am intrigued to see how this film will turn out. I have no doubt that with supervision from Robert Duvall's widow Lisa, as executive producer and Burton's inventive vision, this film has the ability to be equally amazing as the book.

"I'm looking forward to the film "Batman Begins" - Why? Top-notch cast and new twist on a familiar franchise. What's not to like?"

This summer, the title of "movie bing" seems to belong to Will Ferrell. Not only does he have staring roles in "Raising Screaming" and "Swingtime," but he also joins his "Old School"
classmates in "The Wedding Crackers." That being said, the title of "best movie of the summer" belongs to "Charlie and the Chocolate Factory."

Well, a friend of mine is dragging me against my will to the new "Star Wars," so hopefully that won't totally suck. But I'm really looking forward to "War of the Worlds," (I'm kind of a science fiction geek) and
"Charlie and the Chocolate Factory," because you just can't go wrong with Johnny Depp and a whole bunch of sugar.

Who didn't love "Charlie and the Chocolate Factory?" That's the first movie on my list of movies to see this summer, though I'm sure I'll be watching "Star Wars II: Revenge of the Sith" and "Batman Begins." I don't even see the trailer for "Madagascar," but I've already been informed that I'm going.

"Batman Begins." What sane person isn't wanting sweet nocturnal ninja action? Aside from ninja, this might be the most well-produced edition of the saga that are the Batman films. This one will return to the darkness of the first, which starred Michael Keaton in 1989. It also promises higher production values compared to other installments of the crap-fest this series has been. Plus, Christian Bale is dreamy.

Call me a geek, but I'm excited about "Revenge of the Sith." I have the old-school videotapes of the original trilogy lined up ready to watch before I go to the movies. It had better be good. It has Vader. It has to be. Doesn't it?

I am looking forward to
"Madagascar." I'm a kid and they say laughter is the key to happiness.
Dreamworks creates some amazing stuff and it always fun to watch.

I want to watch "Napoleon Dynamite" over and over and over. Gosh.

Fantastic Four. Sure, I'm a nerd, but I have liked comic books' first family since I was 12. Plus, Jessica Alba. How can you go wrong?

Recollections of the old days

I t’s not very often that you get a realistic look at what you’re up to in the past, particularly in the "era of days" of all the sports, all the nights, and the memories. That’s why I decided to write about the old days.

What I am saying is all about that era.

It’s weird how time catches up to you as you get older. It seems like only yesterday when I was on the field with my old friends, playing sports, and having fun. It’s amazing how quickly time goes by.

These old days have always been fun to look back and remember. It’s amazing how much has changed since then. But it’s also amazing how much has stayed the same.

In the old days, we had limited resources. But it didn’t matter because we were still having a good time. We were young and carefree.

These old days have always been a source of inspiration for me. It’s amazing how much you can learn from looking back at the past. It’s like a mirror that shows you who you were and who you are today.

So, enjoy the old days. They are a valuable source of inspiration and motivation. Keep them close to your heart and cherish the memories. They will always be there for you when you need them.

Outdoor Program offers camps, rentals over summer months

Climbing wall, rental center, open to all

By DANNY CURTIS

With most students leaving Moscow for the summer to return to their homes and work the summer away, the University of Idaho Outdoor Program stays in full operation and offers plenty of opportunities available to all.

The program offers a full schedule of activities, such as hiking, rock climbing, mountain biking, and water sports.

One of the biggest programs the department offers is the summer climbing program. The "climbing wall" is an open all summer long, and this is one of our main programs during the summer months," Outdoor Program director Mike Russo said.

A lot of people think that the climbing wall is just for those who are serious about climbing. But anyone can try it out and have fun. They just need to be safe.

The climbing wall is open to all, and there are plenty of opportunities available to those who want to try it out. It’s a great way to get some exercise and have fun.

The climbing wall is open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. every day, and there are plenty of instructors available to help. So, come on out and have some fun. You’ll be glad you did.
Waiting in the wings: sports in Las Vegas face stiff competition

By Mike Behrend

(02/17) - Late in the 2006 season, during a different road trip, Peoria Chiefs outfielder Jason Heyward takes a break on the train headed to Wilmington, Del. When the Illinois native arrived at the team hotel, he was greeted by his parents and a group of friends who had taken the train east to see him.

"I'm just glad to see them," Heyward said. "I think they enjoy seeing me play more than I enjoy playing."

Heyward's parents aren't the only ones who enjoy seeing him play. The 18-year-old outfielder, who has signed with the Atlanta Braves organization, has been one of the top prospects in the minor league system.

"I'm excited to see him play," said Heyward's father, Al. "I don't think I'll ever get tired of watching him play."

Heyward's performance in the minor leagues has been nothing short of spectacular. In his first full season, he hit .284 with 12 home runs and 53 RBI in 90 games for the Low-A Rome Braves.

"I'm just trying to enjoy the game," Heyward said. "I don't want to take anything for granted."

Heyward's success has not gone unnoticed. He was named the Southern League Player of the Year, and was selected to the Southern League All-Star Game. He also was named to the All-Star Game for the Midwest League.

"I think he's got a chance to be a big-leaguer," said Al. "I don't think he's going to get on a plane to the big leagues, but I think he's going to be a major league player."

Heyward's performance has also caught the attention of scouts. He was named the top prospect in the minor league system by Baseball America.

Teams push limits of NASCAR rules in search of competitive edge

By Dave Barry

In an age of unprecedented economic pressures, NASCAR has become a beacon of stability and hope for the American working man. In a world of growing uncertainty, NASCAR offers a place where hard work and dedication are rewarded. It is a place where men and women can compete and rise to the top of their game. NASCAR is a place where dreams are made to come true.

Dave Barry in the Jack Skellington (left) turns up track as Kevin Harvick passes in the Old Goodwood number 29 Chevrolet, early in the NASCAR Cup race last Sunday. Bryan Smith/Pro Image

The sanctioning body is in the midst of the annual review of owner James Fitzch, whose car is familiar with a large-truck competitor in the Truck series. The owner has said that the car is good. He has even said that the car is good. He is a winner. The car has won races.

NASCAR is reviewing the rules for next season. Many changes are expected. One of the changes is to limit the number of times a car can be changed during a race. This is to prevent drivers from changing their cars often during a race.

The new rules will go into effect for the 2024 season. The new rules are expected to make the races more exciting and competitive.

We expect the new rules to be popular with the fans. It is a good move by NASCAR. It is a move that is long overdue. It is a move that will make the races more exciting and competitive.

More 20-somethings depending on parents again

"Used to be, at 18, you could start testing the waters of adulthood."

ROBERT THOMPSON

PROFESSOR OF POP CULTURE

Thompson, a professor of pop culture at Syracuse University, got to be, at 18, you could start testing the waters of adulthood," said Thompson. "But now, it's more than just a matter of age. Many 20-somethings today are facing unprecedented economic and social challenges that make it difficult for them to establish their independence."

The School of Journalism and Mass Media proudly presents its spring 2005 graduating class

Congratulations to the 2005 pledge class of kappa Gamma and best of luck with all your future endeavors! We will miss all of you so much!
