Climber tells tale of Pakistan tower

By Laura Bronswik
University of Idaho Argonaut

Climbing to the top of a 3000-foot cliff that is more than a physical challenge, it is about finding yourself and the limitations you put on yourself.

"It is all worthwhile at the top," rock climber Wally Hollinger said of the crowd of 35 people at the University of Idaho Theater. The view from the peak of 20,400 ft. Naran tower is miler, said Hollinger. Naran tower, located in the Kinnikinnick Range of Pakistan was the final peak of the climb Hollinger completed on August 1997 with4 team members Wally Barker, John Kaczmarski, and Brad Keating.

Hollinger, a professional climber and author, and that he started climbing at the age of 26. He showed slides of his early climbs as well as many from the climb up the Naran tower during the presentation which included a brief question-answer session. Hollinger explained that after taking a climbing class to learn the basics, he became interested in climbing. "Initially, it was a hobby," he said. "There was a lot of people I wanted to do, so I just keep looking and bought a van," he said. He has been climbing for 19 years, and described it as his passion.

At the age of 28, Hollinger said he climbed the crus of El Capitan at Yosemite. "I lead a few more, more and more," he said. After a while he said he perfected the technical and mental aspect of climbing. "I began to wonder what was next," he said. The independent mountain climber, in his second attempt, climbed a wall in a remote setting, "to increase the adventure I was looking at Hollinger and his team of climbers decided to go to the advancement each time I scale the 3000- foot peak known as the Naran tower. The reason we wanted to climb the peak was to find the greatest challenge we could," he said.

The route to reach the peak, also known as the Trango Tower, on the north end because it has the highest conditions, he said. "A five year day had two hours of direct sunlight," he added. "Temperature was at about 30 degrees below zero at times with the wind chill factor," he said.

Getting to the top in a great part of Hollinger said. "However, because this was our project, it's kind of where I cried," he said. UI's image as ivy league of worlds remains solid

By Steve Hansen
University of Idaho Agweek

There are 417 University of Idaho students who voluntarily subject themselves to a unique tradition that is a little bit different than other UI customs. It's a hard time to explain, but UI officials call them "honors" students. The program is designed to help each student prepare for what they would like to do in the future. They do this by creating an environment that is unique to the UI Honors Program.

For students who choose an affiliated liberal arts education, the UI honors program is designed to help each student prepare for what they would like to do in the future. They do this by creating an environment that is unique to the UI Honors Program.

The UI Honors Program has broad faculty and administrative support as well as remaining student participation - perhaps this is a record level.

To gain acceptance to the program, students must have an ACT composite of 25, a combined SAT score of 1250 or 52, high school grade point average, those with special talents and community service with an ACT composite of 20.

FINANCIAL FOCUS

French firm to acquire Packet Engines

By Bryan Hansen

Before we invest, we should determine what we want our investments to do for us. When we invest, we're not just using money in the hope of making more money. I seldom see any reward other than this. However, the reward we use to investing should be to make money—money that represents surplus savings or income not used for expenses.

We might choose to invest these funds in mortgages, real estate, life insurance or securities (stocks and bonds). They're all basically different, and no one fits the needs of everyone.

Since we're discussing mainly securities, I'd focus on some of the reasons why we might want to invest in stocks or bonds. Many people prefer them because they can be readily bought and sold. They represent variety and flexibility, as well as absence of ownership or residualism. Securities are obtainable at varying prices, from very low to very high.

If you're interested in owning shares of a company, you might want to check the company's financial records, which could be considered a form of payment. You should know what you're getting, how much you're paying, and what you're going to do next time. You should also consider the company's financial performance and how the company is doing.

Letters to the Editor—

To the Editor:

Congressman Curry of Idaho voted against banning the use of atomic weapons, even though such weapons will destroy the lives of millions of innocent civilians. It is a disgrace that he should be elected to represent the people of Idaho.

Congressman Curry has consistently voted against measures to control nuclear weapons. He has supported the production of nuclear weapons and has opposed measures to reduce the size of the nuclear arsenals of the United States and other countries. He has voted against proposals to ban the use of nuclear weapons and has supported the development of new nuclear weapons.

Congressman Curry's record on nuclear weapons is completely unacceptable. He has failed to stand up for the interests of the people of Idaho and has supported policies that will only harm our country.

Sincerely yours,

[Signature]

P.S. Congressman Curry's vote on this issue is just one example of his continued support for nuclear weapons. He has consistently voted against measures to control nuclear weapons and has supported the production of new nuclear weapons.

Letters to the Editor—

To the Editor:

What does this mean for the future of our country? The nuclear weapons program is a dangerous and unnecessary policy that endangers the lives of millions of innocent civilians. It is time for Congress to act to ban the use of nuclear weapons and to work towards a world without nuclear weapons.

Sincerely yours,

Firewater, from AT&T

Weiss, when we get paid for this.

And on the hot title for the second album put out by Firewater came about.

Some tricky tracks on the album include "Pinto's Theme," "Another Perfect Catastrophe," "El Boracho" (Pinto's Rumpus) and "Knock on Door." "Pinto's Theme," the album's first single, sounds like a cross between classic literate music and the theme from Peter Gunn. Knock's on door is an upbeat gospel sounding song that really gets the listener up.

Anyone hearing it would think it was a revival was about to take place, but a listen to the lyrics should prove otherwise. It's that slyly

Funk rock voice of Ashley says, "Well, I can't believe in God because he doesn't believe in me...and never return any of my calls. It's kind of like an evil version of gospel, not to the cloudy sound of Firewater's voice. Another Perfect Catastrophe is sort of a slippery ungrateful and for the defiant sound of "El Boracho" Firewater lead The St. Ugronian Girls School Marching Band. Like the same, the band sounds very interesting.

Firewater has found the Jesus Lizard, Cometsun, Soul Coughing, Skeleton Key, and the Supers' Pat Zipper and the band seems to pull a little style from each of its interpreters in other words.

Firewater really fits in with those bands. The New York Press seemed to think a little more on the opposite side, saying that "Firewater is pretty kicked Comersun's ass."

This is a rather grand statement, and the only way to pick a side would be to see each band and then make the choice. In the meantime, have a listen to Firewater. It's a New Sounds and decide for yourself whether or not Firewater is just ahead of the curve from the big time.

Moscow's Best Bars

This week's featured bar... CJ's

CJ's, The Place to be.

CJ's is located downtown Moscow. With such amenities as a "black-light room" with neon green pool tables and air hockey, basketball, regular pool tables, and a huge dance floor and three bar statistics-CJ's is truly "the place to be.

CJ's offers the patron premium drinks by the most experienced staff in Moscow. Thursday features "fright night." Ladies get in free with $1.25 drafts and wells. Friday is CJ's famous $6.00 bottomless draft. By a cup for $5.00 and drink by your heart's content. Saturday is $3.00 pitcher night and shot specials with a new "discounted" shot every Saturday. You can always get a Kamikaze or Jell-O shot for $1.00 anytime.

Soon, CJ's "barbar" will open where shots can be purchased and many promotional items will be given away as a "thank you" to the customer. The Assists rock the house every Thursday, Friday, and Saturday nights at 9:30. Come dance to your favorite top 40 tunes on one of the Palouse's largest dance floors. Arrive early for the best seating!

The Moscow Social Club, located above CJ's, is one of Moscow's favorite places to host events such as fraternity and sorority parties, wedding receptions, birthday parties, etc. The capacity of The Social Club is 500 people. Some upcoming events in the Moscow Social Club include "a benefit for Habitat" on October 26th. Hat Trick recently lost all of their equipment in the Capriroom fire. This event requires a $2.00 donation with such local bands playing as, "Nickie", "Postel Joe", "Full Money", and "The Assists."

The entire building will be rocking on Halloween night with "Bump in the Night" sponsored by ZFUN and Budweiser in The Moscow Social Club with "The Clumsy Lovers" playing at 9:00. If you are not fortunate enough to win tickets to "Bump", CJ's main floor will rock with "The Assists" playing at 9:00, and a cash prize of $1000 going out to the person with the best costume. Also, at midnight, the band will announce the winner of the "Budweiser snow board"! To enter in to the drawing for the snowboard, bring in two cans of food in any size CJ's is open. "The Underground" located in CJ's basement, will feature a DJ on Halloween night where you can request your favorite tunes.

November 13th the Moscow Social Club proudly presents, "The Red and the Hot' a great swing band with 2 CD's out in stores now! December 10-12th is Moscow's yearly "Madrigal Feast". Tickets for the dinner show always go quickly. On CJ's main floor "The Clumsy Lovers" will play New Year's Eve. Tickets will go on sale early December.

CJ's is always expanding their entertainment menu to what the customer wants, so early to mid January they will be offering "harakiri night" on Wednesday nights by "The DJ Company". And, YES! CJ's kitchen is rented! This restaurant will open in January with "Chef Todd" at the grill.

Come check out CJ's, The Moscow Social Club, and The Underground all located at 112 N. Main Street in Moscow (208-883-3147) and be sure to check us out on the web at: cdjacks@com. CJ's, "where memories are made."
