U of I's ITS is comparatively cool

By Laura Brustock
University of Idaho Argonaut

Wonders what computing is like at Idaho universities? How do you access the Internet, print your paper, and keep your computer running smoothly? Do you know how to register for classes, how to obtain your university transcript, and where to get computer-oriented assistance? If you don't, you are not alone; most students at U of I feel the same way. One of the main reasons students have difficulty with the computer is that it differs from their previous experiences. For example, at some universities, students can make a selection of classes by telephone; at U of I, students access the computer and select their classes online. Computer assistance is available from the computer help desk.

The TAAC keeps student achievement high

Visitors to the Argonaut have complained at length about the university's failure to improve the computer help desk situation. But visitors to the Argonaut have also complained about the professional competence of the computer help desk personnel. According to visitors to the Argonaut, the computer help desk personnel are not able to answer their questions accurately or provide helpful answers. Visitors to the Argonaut have also complained about the computer help desk's inability to keep up with the demand for assistance.

Greetings from the University of Idaho! It’s great to be in Boise for this annual tradition. The UI-Boise State football weekend is a big deal for the city, no doubt — it’s played, but it has a special energy that only this place can give.

You may think the UI only comes to the capital city once a year, for football. But, actually, it’s very much a vital and growing UI Center at Boise. We’re currently housed in the Van Andel Building on Park Boulevard, but we’re working on finding a location where we’re more visible and more accessible to the public. As far as what services UI provides in Boise, it runs the gamut. There are graduate and undergraduate education and research centers, as well as technological access to other UI programs. Architecture students and faculty are working right downtown in Boise with professional architects and planners for the betterment of the city.

The faculty and staff in those programs work closely with other local entities, such as Boise State University and Micron, on research and development projects, and the UI College of Agriculture has a district office in Boise with staff working on a variety of agricultural, family and youth, and natural issues in the Treasure Valley.

As the state’s land-grant institution, we find a strong commitment to serve all Idahoans. Established in 1889 as the first state-funded institution, the UI has been here to serve you and your communities. As Cabinet members or legislators with a wide range of educational services for the state, go Vandals!

HOSI, Idaho — The Boise Police Department has added a search team and is working to improve its ability to keep up with the sheer volume of students who are firmware engineers.

Boise Police Chief Steve Smith.

The city’s need for a rapid response to legitimate and credible threats has continued to mount in recent years, as the demand for digital and computer security professionals has increased.

"We have a high volume of students who are firmware engineers," Smith said.

"I pay them to work for us, and we’re always working to improve the safety and security of our students," he said.

Gov. Cwis, Boise President

The city could be forced to pay millions to spread its efforts on 225 city-owned public places and maintain rather than relaxing it into the crease.

"Give us a chance," City Councilor Dave Lawrence said.

"The projects we already budgeted have got go-getter. We can’t do what we’ve already budgeted for," Lawrence said.

City Councilor Gary Roedler said the transport’s interest in 13 million dollars was too high for the city's political concerns.

"It’s a long road trip— from $15 to $17 per month — for us to pay. But, for the current public, we can’t do it," Lawrence said.

"This thing could last the growth of Moscow," Roedler said.

CASH IN ON GREAT CDs.

If you’re a freshman or sophomore with good grades, apply now for a three-year or two-year scholarship from Army ROTC.

Army ROTC scholarships pay tuition, most books and a stipend of $100 per academic year. Students are enlisted as officers or most of them become officers after graduation and are required to complete a five-year tour of active duty. The scholarships are free to the student.

For more information, call Peter King, (208) 885-7128 or e-mail pking@uidaho.edu or stop by the Department of Military Science at the University of Idaho. CASH IN ON GREAT CD.
I appreciate your asking me to comment on the big game this weekend, however, I must offer my two-cents worth on one of your recent "Commentary" editorials.

First, I personally think that Elizabeth Zienow was an invaluable asset to the University of Idaho. She single-handedly ran that place and has been a tremendous success. In fact, the President’s Office is currently without her and I believe that her departure will be felt acutely by the university.

Did you really challenge the students of BSU in a drinking contest? There is something extremely wrong with a school that has lost its sense of propriety and that no longer is an example to the students of the nation’s premier educational institution. Don’t worry, I’m sure it’s the case. I’m glad that the BSU students will be on this team for your unavailability. Is it possible for you to have a drink with alcohol at all? I’ve been told that the BSU students are a much more mature team. I believe they will have the Big West Conference in at least two offensive categories. These categories are:

1. Suspension of players
2. Crewed boxing their own teams

These are the real reasons for BSU’s superiority, in fact no other team has been able to compete with these categories. If you really want to, I could also be offended by these alliances.

I am glad that you finally got the college license plates issued. I got my "BSU" license plates, do you have yours? You should be more interested in changing the plates into something the school couldn’t afford to change. Any myth in the name that BSU is BSU? I know they could not decide which end of the bank in for use.

It will be like Old Home Week coming to Boise. Your students will play the same as old Boise, especially the students from Idaho. Coach Smith is a traditional football guy — I wonder what you think of the Boise State superiors?

The other great coach in BSU, JIB, is also a great man. Krapp and these one school couldn’t decide on the logo. Any myth in the name that BSU is BSU? I know they could not decide which end of the bank in for use.

We have an advantage here in Boise. The Boise State football team is more experienced and has more of a fighting chance. But overall, the Boise State football team is more experienced and has a fighting chance.
Brian and Depeche Mode

Two reasons to dance like a furry monkey while in Boise.

By Ben Mosewicz
University of Idaho Argonaut

Big economic events are the deal, but the hot spot is Boise, home of the big整形.

Not only is the big整形 of Depeche Mode playing, but the very first time at Boise. They have come to make the town this.

This is a terrific, special event for those who plan to be in Boise around the time of the show.

Depeche Mode will play the Idaho Central NatWest's 11th annual concert on Oct. 2. The doors will open at 7 p.m., and the concert starts at 8.

The concert is currently sold out. In fact, the concert is set to break its own attendance record.

This is a very event, but with the quality of music that will put the band on the map, it is sure to be a sold-out event.

Depeche Mode started 17 years ago in Essex, England, with an original line-up of five members: Vince Clarke on keyboards (who were on tour with the likes of Erasure and Soft Cell), Dave Gahan on vocals, Martin Gore on the guitar, and Andrew Fletch on tour keyboards. Over the years, the lineup has changed and it's become quite a stable line-up, but basically, the song remains the same. Depeche Mode has sold over 45 million albums worldwide and has sold 1 million copies of the band's third album, which the地下 had time for. But they had to leave.

Gore says that the band is not only a six-time hit act, but it also has an incredible fan base.

The shows are always sold out, and the band has even returned a dollar

The featured song is called "No More," which is a pure, emotional song. The band's music is really a life's work. They have created it in collaboration with each other and every fan, and it continues to connect with its ever-growing fan base.

Mesmerizing tapesisters overhelm the viewer

An art review

University of Idaho Argonaut

The Third Street Gallery is more than a place to display art; it is also a place to meet and nurture the mind. The current gallery display by artist Pate-Kuu Hill is entitled "playlist." This group consists of 40 works of art, all surrounding the area which are talented in the area of music, photography, and poetry.

This particular show is a new trend that is expanding in the world of art and music. The goal is to encourage the audience to see the beauty in music and art, and to share this message with others.

What is it about tapesisters that makes them so appealing?

First of all, they are incredibly beautiful; they are all smiles, and their music is captivating. The audience can easily connect with their music and art, and this is the main purpose of the show.

The music is always changing, and this is what makes it so unique. The audience can listen to the music and see the art, and this is what makes the show so special.

An interesting thing about the show is that it is not just about music and art, but also about people and their relationship to the environment. The tapesisters are using their music and art to show the importance of staying connected to the environment.

"Playlist," the current gallery display by artist Pate-Kuu Hill

The show is open to the public and will be on display until Oct. 27.
Get caught in the Squirrel Nut Zippers

An article by
Marilyn Manson
University of Idaho Argonaut

It is 1995 and a group of pals found themselves grasping, gawking, and gasping at the metropolitan scene in Chicago's L.O.C.K. They didn't know where they were off to, but the bills in the back of the singles of the group, a poolside party where people later long forgot bonging pots to listen to music and play music. Between seeing the garden and feeding the fish at the front of the quadrangle, Katherina, the group's only musician, packed up the car, and drove to the airport. They adopt the name of an old-time breed of mice that produce such an odd sound each time they eat (made in Massachusetts) for their band members' sake. From that day on, they were the Dillah dogs. Coffee house. Not a single music magazine, but leaving the house has little been that fun. Five years and five albums later, the Squared Nut Zippers are not blazing the spooky edges of their other articles of clothing off of their edgy-increasing fan base. If their last album, "Honeymoon in Oblivion" was their ticket to national recognition, then their new CD, "Pound advertisement," is their ticket to the big leagues. The rise of the swing fad probably had a lot to do with the growth of the Zippers, via the mainstream. There were two old men who never seemed to have a new one. But is their appeal limited to the swing dance audience? The Zippers are far more complex and universal than that. Swing is an integral part of their sound, but it becomes apparent as they get to it that the Zippers have brought it to a new kind of mainstream success. Bluegrass, Dixieland glows with chicken footed filter烟草 and amped up, spiced up, and amplified. The sounds are from deep in the heart of the South, but it's all neatly tied together. Their sound comes from the Appalachian Mountains. The Zippers are a perfect fit in the roots and the swing, and they give us something new here too, turning clogging into a dance on skids, the clog moves into the drinking and the style. It is Southern rock and roll, it is the kind of music that is much like Southern food much of which is tied to a certain way of living as well as coffee cups out drums never die.

2 Live Crew returns with The Real One

By Sergio Brown
The Argonaut

It has been a while, but the hitmakers of the Miami bass scene, 2 Live Crew, are back with their latest album "The Real One." The album has been anticipated by their fans and with their new lineup that includes their latest hit "The Real One." The group brought a new look and a new sound that was unlike anything they had done before. The album features a mix of classic and modern hip-hop styles that appealed to both old and new fans.

The Real One features a number of special guests including Big Gipp, Ill Grimm, Lil Jon, and Uglie Brown. The album also features a collaboration with Snoop Dogg on the song "Nasty By Myself," which was a hit for the group.

"Featuring other artists on The Real One was a positive thing for us," said Lil Jon. "It allowed us to showcase our talent and reach a wider audience."

The lead single on the album is "Nasty By Myself." The song features a hard-hitting beat and a catchy chorus that will have you dancing and singing along. The lyrics are powerful and meaningful, addressing issues such as drug addiction and personal struggles.

The album is a must-listen for fans of hip-hop music. Whatever your taste in music, there is something for everyone on "The Real One." It is a testament to the group's musical talent and their ability to create a sound that is both classic and modern. So, if you're a fan of hip-hop, you won't want to miss out on "The Real One."

Marilyn Manson still better than Hanson

An article by
Marilyn Manson
University of Idaho Argonaut

Marilyn Manson is sporting a new image with his latest album, "Mechanical Animals," released in 1998. The album has a darker, more experimental sound compared to his previous releases, "The Spooky\nStriped Pussy Cat" and "Ant Car全く。” One reviewer even called it "the most influential album of the year," and it is no surprise that the first Marilyn Manson CD that has gone gold. The album is a departure from the band's earlier, more experimental sound, and it is definitely a change for fans.

Idaho and BSU square off with Big West crown on the line

By Matt McGaw
University of Idaho Argument

University of Idaho versus Boise State University. The mention of the game sends drivers of automobiles through alumni, students and fans alike. Even though UI is playing for the Big West Conference championship, motivation is not something that they will lack for the contest. Or at least that’s what they should be thinking, considering the magnitude of this game.

BSU has a long-running tradition of dominance in the Big West and currently holds the championship trophy. Both teams have a history of success in the conference, with Boise State having won numerous titles, and Idaho setting a new record for consecutive conference championships in 2018.

The biggest rivalry that’s on display is not the one between UI and BSU, but that of the University of Idaho and the Idaho State University. This game is the final big test for both teams, as they prepare for the upcoming season.

The key players for both teams will be Joel Thomas and Alex Thomas, who have been instrumental in Idaho’s success in recent years. Thomas is expected to make a significant impact on the game, and his performance will be crucial.

Other players in the importance of the rivalry. Not only will this be the last big game for the Idaho Vandal football team, but it will also be the last big game for the Idaho State football team. The game will be a huge opportunity for both teams to prove their dominance in the conference.

Looking past the season, the biggest question is whether the Boise State Broncos will be able to maintain their dominance in the Big West Conference. The Broncos have been a dominant force in the conference for years, but they have been challenged by the Idaho Vandals, who have shown that they are capable of competing with the best in the conference.

The game will be a huge opportunity for both teams to prove their worth, and it will be a test of their ability to compete against the best in the conference. The Idaho Vandals and the Boise State Broncos will be looking to prove that they are the best in the conference, and the game will be a testament to their ability to compete against the best.

Laid by head coach Chris Tormey, the Idaho football team takes the field last Saturday against New Mexico State.

Vandals done with Dome, for now

The Vandals made a big leap in the Kibbie Dome a memorable one, in they beat New Mexico State 36-12 last Saturday. Idaho will begin playing in Washington State's Martin Stadium in order to fulfill Division I membership requirements.

The Dome, a permanent fixture, was the site of football games for the past 22 years. The facility is also used for track, basketball, home, and other special events, like the Idaho Hampton Jazz Festival.

The Dome had the first completely retractable artificial turf in the nation. The American Society of Civil Engineers awarded the University of Idaho a Outstanding Architectural Engineering Achievement of 1976.

The Kibbie Dome was ideal for Idaho football, but as the Vandals move up, the facility has become outdated, at least for football. As a Division I team, Idaho is required to play its home games in a stadium that holds 20,000 people, a standard that is not met by the Dome. The Dome seats about 16,500 for football, which means compliance to most Division I requirements would be a major undertaking. Idaho's departure from the Kibbie Dome was necessary. University of Idaho football is the sport that pays the bills and tuition.

The Vandals received a temporary waiver, giving them Division I eligibility this year, providing they meet requirements over the course of time. Idaho will play in Pullman, Washington for the 1999 season. Martin Stadium in Pullman is one of the University of Idaho's facilities, but it is in the middle of the Washington State campus.

Some students are disappointed with the decision, but University Athletic Director Mike Slusm said the move gives Idaho time to weigh their options.

The Vandals and Martin Stadium will have some slight alterations to help make Vandals home at home.

The success of this year's football team should help build support for next year. The home crowd played a major role in the New Mexico State victory and helped football Coach Chris Tormey and the Vandals become a team playing in a dome stadium.

The Mountain Home Boosters would like to wish the Vandals the best of luck against Boise State.
I'm running out of superlatives to describe Joel. He never ceases to amaze me. The way he plays the game with so much enthusiasm and toughness, Joel continues to be the inspiration for work ethic and toughness.

THOMAS 1998 GAME-BY-GAME STATISTICS

By Matt McGee
University of Idaho Argus-Observer

Team captain, leader, hard working, inspirational, and tough. All of these words have been used to describe one of the most honored student-athletes to play for the University of Idaho.

Senior running back Joel Thomas has gained the respect and recognition of his teammates, coaches, local media, and fellow students. This six-year player, one year of which were medically redshirted because of injury, has battled through it all to play for the football team this year.

Thomas’s first redshirt was from a broken foot in the 1992 season. The second medical redshirt occurred last year in the first game against Air Force when he fractured his leg. Since then, Thomas has overcome every obstacle to come back and give it one final go for the Vandals.

Thomas’s career at U of I has been an exceptional one, so much so that he is closing in on 3 school records held by former back Sherridan May. Thomas is currently 74 yards behind the career rushing record for the Vandals. He is 24 rushing attempts away from setting the career attempts record and 1 touchdown behind May for career touchdowns.

"Career rushing statistics don’t really mean anything to me right now. I think that when my time is done at this university, I will look back and be proud of what I accomplished," Thomas said.

"I’m not going to worry about it, the career rushing record if I break it or I don’t break it. Records are made to be broken and if it happens, then it happens," Thomas said.

The last thing Thomas seems to talk about is himself however. When his personal statistics are brought up in conversation, he will revert back to how great the team was that he played on, and how each year has made him hungrier since Idaho has not won a championship to date, but has attended 18.

Idaho head football coach Chris Tormey believes in Thomas and his abilities.

"He has tremendous dedication, great physical skills, excellent strength and toughness. But I think what makes him a special player is his mental toughness. He has come back from two really bad injuries. Both times he has come back just as strong if not stronger than before the injury. He is the leader of our football team, and don’t think there is a coach or player on this team that doesn’t respect him. He is probably the toughest player in our program," Tormey said.

What does this future hold for Joel Thomas, a student athlete that graduated last spring?

"Well right now I’m going to try have the season goes. If my body feels good after the season is over, that I would like to stay in Moscow and train next semester. I have looked into possible jobs as far as a graduate assistant, and hoping into coaching, two years ago I helped coach some team and was not going to coach football again," said Thomas. "I really go with the opportunity that is given to me now why our coaches do what they do," said Thomas.

Many students who graduate with a specific major can only get a job within that field, but for Joel, he feels comfortable with his three career options.

"Right now I have a lot more options than many students have, and it makes me feel good to have those options," said Thomas.

His future is something that Thomas dwells on either. All he can think about is the rest of the season and the Vandals are going to be.

"Right now we have nine more weeks of football, and hopefully they will produce nine more wins for our team. My main goal right now is to have twelve weeks of football and have the opportunity to play for a championship," said Thomas.

Through adversity, graduation, and team disappointments, Joel Thomas has seen it all. All he wants is to have the chance to contribute to a championship team at the University of Idaho.
A FEW GOOD I-MEN

Kevin Hill — Jack of all trades

By Todd Nerdsburg
University of Idaho Aggie

Senior Kevin Hill does a lot on the field for the UID football team, but he also does a lot off the field, too. Hill is trying to be a leader on and off the field for his fellow seniors.

Hill says he's feeling much better than he was after his knee surgery last year. "I'm feeling a lot better than last year," Hill said. "I've been feeling good and I've been practicing a lot, so I'm hoping to come back stronger this year." Hill said he's been working hard in the weight room and on the field this summer and is confident he can help the team improve.

Hill is a versatile player who can play both on offense and defense. "I'm excited to see how I can contribute this year," Hill said. "I think I can play both sides and I'm looking forward to playing a lot of different positions." Hill said he's been working on his pass blocking and run blocking and is hoping to contribute on both sides of the ball.

Hill said he's been working on his leadership role with the seniors and is trying to help guide the team. "I want to be a leader on the team," Hill said. "I think I can help the team improve and lead them to a better season." Hill said he's been working with the younger players and is trying to help them improve.

Hill said he's excited to see how the season plays out and is looking forward to playing against some tough opponents. "I'm excited to see how we can perform against some of the best teams in the conference," Hill said. "I think we have a good chance to do well this year and I'm looking forward to playing against some tough opponents." Hill said he's been working hard in the weight room and on the field and is confident he can help the team improve.

He has been an Aggie student, a radio analyst at KUID, and is active in the advertising club on campus. Hill is known for his public appearances on campus as a DJ, and has ambitions of being in a theater production this spring. Last year Hill was the delegate from Idaho at the NCAA leadership conference in Atlanta, Georgia. The group discussed issues the NCAA needs to address and Hill was part of a committee designed to help student-athletes.

“Kevin has really set an example in the college fall,” one people, “I wish I could play football for him, but lots of times they just don’t do it. Kevin is always looking forward to seeing, “what can I do next” said.

While Hill has had great success on the football field, he knows there is more to life. He is an excellent student and an involved citizen.

“It’s more than just football for me. I want to make an impact beyond the field,” Hill said. “I want to show that you can be successful, because he’s very well-rounded and just a good person to be around,” Mills said.

Hill said he could graduate this spring, but he will probably choose to stay another semester to gain experience with the advertising club. He hopes to land an internship for the summer and graduate next December.

Kevin Hill does what on his game during practice in mid-October.

O’Neal steady for Idaho

By Todd Nerdsburg
University of Idaho Aggie

Iowa senior Mike O’Neal has not been very handy on the football field this spring, but he’s a good sign for Vandals fans. No, he is not an athletic trainer, he is the punter and kickoff specialist for the Vandal football team.

O’Neal is enjoying Idaho’s success, despite the fact that when the defense is rolling, he doesn’t get to play. O’Neal explained he would rather see the team win, than put up a sorry performance.

“Were winning and that’s the most important thing. I like to kick, but I’d rather win,” O’Neal said.

O’Neal first began punting at Magnuson High School in San Diego. He was a running back at the school and had a punt average of 37 yards per kick in his senior year.

After spending a year in Grossmont Junior College in San Diego, O’Neal heard Idaho wanted a punter and came to visit. He was impressed with what he saw and decided to become a full contributor for the team.

O’Neal’s current average of 47.2 yards per kick is among the Big West’s best. He earned second-team All-Big West honors last year and is an important weapon for the Vandals.

“This team has good chemistry, everybody agrees on everything and everyone has their own role,” O’Neal said. “I come to practice ready and want to make sure I’m as prepared as possible for whatever I have to do to get better.”

In 1999, O’Neal averaged 45.3 yards per kick, which was the highest average in the conference. This year, he is averaging 47.2 yards per kick.

O’Neal has been working hard in the off season. He has been working on his technique and leg strength. “I’m working on my leg strength and trying to stay strong all over,” he said.

O’Neal’s punting style is unique and has helped the Vandals to become one of the best teams in the conference.

WINERY
Like so many other great rivers, the Snake River creates a micro-climate, ideal for grape growing. Carmela's elevation (2,500 feet) makes it one of the highest vineyards in the Northwest. Add to that the long hours of daylight during grape ripening (characteristic of northern latitudes), cool nights and volcanic ash soils, and you have a combination of factors that contributes to producing grapes with concentrated flavors and naturally high acidities. Not only does the river provide irrigation water for otherwise dry lands, but the air currents created by the moving mass of water temper the extreme temperatures of winter and summer. Carmela wines are estate grown and bottled. Our varieties include a popular Blush, a Riesling, a Chardonnay, a Merlot, a Cabernet Franc and a Cabernet Sauvignon. Grapes are crafted into award winning vintages by winemaker Stephanie Martin. Our tasting room is open daily.

Our wines can be found at the following Treasure Valley fine restaurants and wine merchants:

- Café Jacques, Louise's & Aged to Perfection

CARMELA WINERY, RESTAURANT, BAR & GOLF COURSE

GLENNS FERRY, IDAHO

Idaho Wine Pack
Two bottles of Idaho wine from (or imported by) Carmela Winery. Bottles are packed in an insulated box to insure proper handling and safe delivery. Satisfaction guaranteed. If you are not completely satisfied we will replace them or refund your money. We will compute and add all applicable state and local taxes. We will not ship to several states because of alcohol laws. See list at bottom of next column.

Chardonnay, Idaho Barrel Fermented - 1997, $11.00
