Tye-dye Everything has new location

BOISE — Idaho Gov. Dirk Kempthorne and his wife, Tricia, were among 100 Boiseans on Saturday who attended the grand opening of the Idaho Tye-Dye delegation at the Idaho Capitol. The delegation was organized in reaction to the recent earthquake in the state of Idaho.

A few dozen of the 100 people, many of whom were former residents of Idaho, were present at the dedication ceremony of the Idaho Tye-Dye delegation.

The delegation was created in response to the recent earthquake in Idaho, which killed three people and caused extensive damage. The delegation aims to raise awareness about the need for earthquake preparedness in the state.

The delegation was led by Idaho Gov. Dirk Kempthorne, who spoke about the importance of earthquake preparedness and the need for more awareness about the issue.

Kempthorne also announced that the Idaho Tye-Dye delegation will be the new location for the Idaho Tye-Dye clothing line, which is a popular brand known for its vibrant tye-dye designs.

"The Idaho Tye-Dye delegation is a symbol of our state's resilience and determination," Kempthorne said. "We are proud to have Idaho Tye-Dye as part of our delegation and we hope that it will inspire others to join us in making Idaho a safer place to live."
Clinton vetoes Republican tax bill

President Clinton vetoed the GOP tax bill Thursday. Senator Robert Dole (R-Kan.) in a new ceremony called quietly after the veto, vowed to press on to a vote in an expedited Senate to override the White House veto.

Clinton said in a White House address that the Republican bill "would cut taxes for the richest Americans, and would pull the rug out from under working Americans."

He said, "There is no question that the Republican bill is a tax bill for the rich and the wealthy and the well-connected and not for the average family and not for the middle-class family and not for the working American family."

"That is not the kind of tax bill that lowers taxes for the middle class and the working class," Clinton said. "That is not a tax bill that provides relief for the average American family."

The president vetoed the bill at a wooden desk on a stage before a small audience gathered in the White House Rose Garden. It was the last veto in his presidency.

By vetoing the tax bill, the president said he intended to protect the Social Security system, prevent increasing the national debt and "fight for the future."

The GOP tax bill would have cut taxpayers' income, property and capital-gains taxes by $1.3 trillion over 10 years.

"The American people know that this is necessary," Dole said. "The American people know that it is important. The American people know that it is right."

"The cost of not doing it is $1.3 trillion," he added.

Earthquake tests felt in Seattle

Earthquake tests that awakened some people early today in Seattle may have been the best. A spokesman for the University of Washington seismology department, Bill Steely, says scientists didn't expect test blasts to be felt. There were four blasts in 300 feet, which received calls about 1:15 and 2:00 from people who mistook the quake for the real thing. Staff says the best way to get noticed was to monitor the under-ground rock movements in the Puget Sound area. The information should be available, the area will move in a quakes. Official test results won't be released for months. The three days of blasting are over. The full blast was last night in the Seattle area involved changes using about 25 pounds of explosives, planned 100 feet deep. The testing was conducted by the U.S. Geological Survey, the University of Washington and other universities.

Fifteen years after the abortion debate raged, the issue is coming back to the fore. The debate has shifted from the Roe v. Wade decision to the battle for pro-choice clinics. The debate is now between the pro-choice clinics and the anti-choice clinics. The pro-choice clinics are now trying to win the battle for the hearts and minds of the American people. The anti-choice clinics are trying to win the battle for the money and the resources. The pro-choice clinics are trying to win the battle for the future of the American people. Vandals bully Bulldogs

By Jim Gerberich

University of Idaho-Boise

With a three-set win including the Bulldogs of Gonzaga on Tuesday, the University of Idaho extended their streak to 13 matches and scored the highest point total on the season, defeating the Bulldogs 5-1. The Bulldogs, who entered the match as the only team in the conference with a winning record, were no match for the Vandals, who have won 10 straight matches and are the only team in the conference with a winning conference record.

The Vandals won all three of their singles matches, with William Hatcher, a senior from Moscow, winning 6-4, 6-2. The other two singles matches were won by Alex Morehouse and John Wilson, both of whom won 6-3, 6-1. The doubles team of Hatcher and Wilson also won, 8-2.

Confessions of a closet Cougar

By Ken others

University of Washington-Seattle

In a recent interview with the Seattle Times, Jennifer Johnson, a senior at the university, revealed her secret passion for the Cougars. Johnson, who has always been a fan of the team, admits to secretly attending games and following the team's progress online.

Johnson said, "I've been a fan of the Cougars for years, but I've never really admitted it until now. I used to偷偷地 listen to the radio broadcasts during games and would often join in on the online discussions with other fans. I've always admired their spirit and their dedication to the game."

Johnson's love for the Cougars has not gone unnoticed by her friends and family. Her mother, who is a former Cougar basketball player, said, "I've always known that Jennifer had a special connection to the Cougars, but I never realized it was something more than just a casual interest. I'm so proud of her for finally admitting it."

Johnson hopes that her confession will inspire others to embrace their love for the Cougars and to stop being害羞 about their support of the team. She said, "I want everyone to know that it's okay to love the Cougars. They are a great team and deserve to be celebrated for their hard work and dedication."

Johnson plans to continue attending games and supporting the Cougars in the future. She said, "I'm excited to finally be able to go to games with confidence and not have to hide behind a facade of indifference."
