N. I. I. meeting when President Jennings announced the formation of a committee to decide upon regulations and procedure. The plan is to root more deeply this great moral virtue in the character of Idaho men and women and to include some definite method of instruction, by word and example, of the underclassmen. For such instruction the committee promised themselves to be more thoroughly possessed and convinced of the inherent truth and beneficence of their teachings as well as with their less experienced younger brothers.

HELLO, BULLDOGS! Greetings, Gonzaga! At this zero hour Idaho passes a milestone in your history; to admire your remarkable football team, which has truly earned the honor, and to assure you that, regardless of the outcome of today's game, you have the highest regard of Idaho's President and most respected rivals.

GOONZA! Neither the fortune of the battle nor the whims of fate affect it. And today, in the name of Idaho, extends the right hand of fellowship, and sincerely hopes that your visit here shall be a memorable one.

FOUR weeks this month will have passed since the start of the semester, and the Pep Band, the orchestra, and the Nampa of Kappa Alpha Psi, have been hard at work preparing for their annual fall concert. This year, the orchestra will present a special section of music under the direction of Dr. Haverford, and the Pep Band will play at the close of the program. A special feature will be the recognition of the ten best students of the University for their outstanding achievements in their respective fields.

Sunday morning, Mr. French outlined the philosophy and necessity of music in education. "Music is the highest form of art," he said, "and it is the duty of every student to learn to appreciate it." The orchestra and Pep Band then performed under the direction of Dr. Haverford, while Mr. French conducted as they played.

Dr. Haverford, in his address, spoke of the importance of music in education. "Music is not only a form of entertainment," he said, "but it is also a means of communication. It is a universal language, and it is the only language that all people can understand." He urged the students to make music an integral part of their lives.

The three students of the University who were selected as the ten best were: John Smith, Elizabeth Johnson, and Robert Brown. They were presented with special medals by Dr. Haverford.

The concert was a great success, and the students were all enthusiastic in their praise of the performers. They were all agreed that the music was of the highest quality, and that it was a pleasure to listen to.

The orchestra and Pep Band will continue their work in preparation for the next concert, which will be held in December.

The above is a true account of the events of the week in the University. The students were all enthusiastic in their praise of the orchestra and Pep Band, and they are all looking forward to the next concert.
