The Message That Built Up Our Business

Merchandise takes more money than money, and it speaks a language that Mr. Averell Harriman understands.

Every article that you buy in our store carries a message in your home—a message that is repeated day after day, year after year to countless thousands of people through the advertising columns of newspapers and magazines.

Twenty-five years ago the founder of this business created and has continued to build on this message. Our present organization of 685 stores, comprising 45 states has been built solely on the strength of the confidence that our merchandise has built upon you for a quarter of a century.
