IDAHO SPIRIT WAS MUCH IN EVIDENCE

IDAHO YELLING WAS A FEATURE OF THE GAME—GEOB SHOW REAL SPIRIT

Friday Night Ball a Real One—"Alumni Day" Was Well Established

Idaho's team and coach have nothing but praise for the loyal manner with which the Idaho student body supported the team, even when defeated by a one-sided score was absolutely certain. Idaho's yell leaders kept the "Idaho Phalanx" in good voice throughout the game with the triumphant "Rah, Rah, Rees" should have completely drowned out any yelling the Idaho boosters possibly could have done. But they didn't. Quite the contrary. Idaho's smaller number of students made just as much noise as their opponents.

"Idaho Spirit" was never more remarkable than it was during the week preceding the game. Every favorable occasion developed a rally, and the Phalanx did themselves proud by their capable manner of handling the crowd, and by the energy of the fuel which it was impossible to waste. The college girls conducted their annual tour of the fraternity houses the evening of the big rally: What with their gay yellow caps and Idaho colors, they were well received by their hosts, and were enthusiastic until the end. Idaho lost the football game, but it wasn't because Idaho's fair representatives of the "Silver and Gold" weren't just as loyal as they could be.

The big rally Friday night was all that could be asked for, except that "SHH!" Lee wasn't present to introduce himself to the throngs of fans who stimulate the team to a greater degree of fighting spirit by pointing out why every Idaho student should have no love for Pullman. The crowd at the game was enormous, making most evident the need of serious facilities for handling and seating the people at such contests. The bleachers and automobile parking space was inadequate for proper accommodation of Idaho's visitors. The size of the crowd was due to no small extent to the efforts of a special committee who handled advertisements and newspaper publicity in a commendably capable manner.

Saturday was Idaho's first "Home Coming Day" and a number of alumni were in the call. He developed this will come to be an established custom and that another year, with more alumni and a larger number of the newly established tradition, that a larger number will return to revisit Boise State University, "Alum-ia," before it is far to become an annual occasion at Idaho.

Bette Bolton, Lorraine Bulby, and Helen Poirier, who are teaching school out of town this year, were here for the game and the Athletic.

JUDGE CORLIS'S LECTURES

As a result of recent emphasis in faculty and board meetings upon the need of good speakers and entertainers of various sorts, Judge C. H. Corlis of Portland, Ore., lectured on Macbeth at the University Auditorium on Monday and Tuesday evening, under the management of the English Club.

Before the lecturer was introduced on Monday evening, Miss Evelyn Cox Prall read a paper on Shakespeare sponsored by the English Club.

The English Club, who is vocally a student organization, has engaged the study of literature. He has had company with "choice spirits" of the present and past," and, with Drake and Hollen and Kresse, is of that class of "literary heretics," which places the tragedy of Macbeth above Hamlet and King Lear.

Altogether Corlis admits that it is a valuable thing in the career of any student to read Shakespeare's tragedymostly of the wild, withered Weird Sisters, the reclamation of the "fairies;" and about Lady Macbeth, delicate, sensitive, triumphant and remorseful, who spurred her husband on, after his recall, to the commission of murder.

Shakespeare did better than he could in Macbeth," said Judge Corlis inspired by Mr. Shakespeare's inspiration for the poet and his master-work. Judges Corlis vividly and intelligently presented his pictures before his audience, accompanying his lectures with interpolated interpretive readings from the tragedy.
ENGLISH CLUB ACTIVITY

At the first meeting of the University English Club, after the election of officers as announced in last week’s Argonaut, suggestions were made by Dr. Moore and Prof. W. N. Collius, which will result in an increased scope of activity for the year. All registered students are now eligible for membership. Talent, other than dramatic ability will be warmly welcomed into the club. There is need for musicians as well as readers, for good listeners as well as for interesting speakers. Stage managers are as essential asabinet performers.

“One of the innovations for which plans are being made will be the practice of having directed discussions upon stated topics. Each member of the club will be expected to contribute some bit of conversation at these open meetings. The new policy is one of inclusion. The club will be for everybody and must be made by everybody.

A new constitution will be drawn up by Henry Deneck, Miss Val ington Kline and Mr. Orin Rindal.

The first verison of Idab’s “Pil tars of Society” was held at the Omega Pi house on Tuesday night. Many of the old members of the cast are back, working enthusiastically.

Due to the postponement of the pro duction from last spring a number of changes were of necessity made.

Mr. William Hunter will carry the heavy role of Mayor Dernick. Other charges will be announced later.

FACULTY RESOLUTION

Recently, the faculty passed a resolu

This statement must include the present financial situation, including funds on hand, and all outstanding accounts, collectable, incollectable and paya

WHAT IS YOUR MAJOR STUDY?

Some Statistics
It will be remembered that last December the Faculty reorganized the E.A. course and the E.E. course. The former has been made more distinct from the latter, and the latter is now more distinctly a science course. This re-arrangement was made, for one thing, because the E.A. course was by no means distinctly a science course. By a skillful choice of studies it could be made into something that only remotely, if at all, resembled a science course. At the same time the faculty provided for a system of major studies. This was intended to make each student do some work in his own department. No professor, so we are informed, was to be allowed to insist upon more than twenty hours work in his department for a major; but, in addition to the twenty hours which he might require for a major, each professor (who was permitted to give a major) was allowed to require certain studies as prerequisites for the major. Here we give a list of the departments in the College of Letters and Science that offer major studies, and we show the number of hours that each of these departments requires for its major, and also the number of hours that it requires as prerequisites for its major. An interesting point is the character of these "prerequisites." Some professors require all the "prerequisites" to be in their own department, while others require only part of the prerequisite studies to be taken in their own departments, and require for the remainder of the prerequisite studies to be taken in other departments.

A study of the above table will reveal the facts that there are great discrepancies between the various departments of the College of Letters and Science with regard to the number of hours that students should be required to take in their departments. One professor requires only twenty-six credits in his department for a major, while two professors require forty-one credits in their own departments for a major.

MINE INSPECTOR WILL SPEAK

Subject to be "Mineral Wealth of Idaho"

An exceedingly valuable Instruction inaugurated last year by Dean Little is the Engineering Lecture period at 11 o'clock on Friday mornings. Whenever possible a lecturer is secured to address Engineering students on some topic of interest to students registered in the department. Last year this lecture period proved very popular; Dean Little was able to secure some very able men, big men, in the Engineering World, to speak.

Mr. Walton was probably the most notable speaker. Mr. Walton is not only a man of extensive engineering experience but is also a man with a broad knowledge of and a variety of interests in other fields than engineering. He is also gifted with a rare felicity of expression. He delivered one of the talks last year, and also the first lecture of this school year.

Mr. George W. Higges of the U. S. Bureau of Mines was to have spoken on October 22, but he was unexpectedly called away by a mining duty in Butte. His subject, "Fire Fighting in the Black Hawk Mine in Utah," should have been a very interesting and instructive one.

On October 28, Mr. Robert N. Bell, Idaho's State Inspector of Mines, was to have lectured on "The Mineral Wealth of Idaho." He was unable to get away from his official duties that time but will be with us next Friday, November 5. The talk promises to be an interesting one and the Department of Engineering invites all who are interested to attend.

A TRIBUTE TO PULLMAN

Well, we lost. W. S. C. simply had the better team. It is no disgrace to lose to such an aggregation of our neighbors have this year. Of course, there are those of us who sincerely wish the score might have been less one-sided; that the Idaho team might have had the punch to put a touchdown across the line when they had such a splendid opportunity. The more credit is due the Pullman line when Idaho failed to gain an inch on repeated try when to have done so meant that W. S. C. would have had a touchdown scored against them for the first time in Coach Dietz' and his team are to be complimented. That team is probably today the equal of any football organization that ever played on a Northwestern field. And Idaho wishes them the best of luck in their future games.

Idaho-W. S. C. games are always marked by hard playing grouped by the keenness of rivalry. It is a real pleasure for us to be able to say that this game was not marred by a single unsportsmanlike action by members of either team, that hard playing and not dirty playing ruled the day, and that the few injuries sustained by players were unavoidable. W. S. C. and Coach Dietz have reason to be proud of the fact that their championship has been won in a clean, sportsmanlike manner, and that, when the season is over, they will have nothing to regret.

ROUSING

"The usual symptoms of college rowdism were evident again Saturday. It was revealed by not a few of the past season's marching regiments which should discourage all rowdies of whatever character. Some Idaho and W. S. C. students are fit to amuse the crowd by some degrading squabbles on the sidelines. So far as observable, there was never a single occasion which demanded conduct of that character; each college was represented by a football team to uphold the dignity of their respective institutions and Idaho students certainly can never hope the reputation of their athletic department, or of their college by conducting themselves in a disgraceful way. And just why Idaho students cannot do else go to the train to see the W. S. C. roosters without disturbing the peace, an evidence of any character whatever must remain a mystery.

The game is a place for manhood, the maturing of character and high ideals. One of the chief impressions prevalent among the American populace is the elevation of the middle classes to whom the colleges and universities must look for support and development, is the continuous and for a particular faculty playing to the audience, of invariably choosing a time when they are most exalted, being proud of the opportunity, will be anything to see the folk of such performances. The only consolation we can gain is by comparing present conditions with those of the past; undoubtedly they are much better. Sometimes, perhaps, Idaho students will realize that Pullman is their best friend as well as their dearest rival, and will be capable of treating her accordingly.

Kathleen Norris, the newfangled domesteck life, recently made the statement that college is no place for girls in thought the world provides the only sane training for them at what sensitive, mysterious age. Statistic, however, fail to offer proof or evidence that our college women are either mental, moral or physical beings.

As to the desirability of placing a girl out of high school directly into the business world we find that there is an increasing demand for college trained women in all lines of business just as there is an increasing demand for college trained men.

College training now a days is making for specialization and there will soon be no place except in the narrower lines of employment for the man or woman with nothing but an elementary education. This seems to offer some evidence that college training is of value. We find the college woman going into the business world with a far more of an idea as to what is expected of her, and more of an idea of what she is to expect; and we find the college woman coming out of the business world with fewer shattered ideals than her sister of the more high-school education.
In order to promote scholarship the Faculty has adopted a system of classified honors with the following designations: (1) First-Year Honors, Second-Year Honors, Third-Year Honors, and Fourth-Year Honors; and (2) Final Honors, based upon the work of the entire course. Yearly Honors are divided into two groups known as Class A and Class B. Final Honors are divided into three groups known as High Honors, Honors, and Highest Honors.

Grades are marked by alphabetical symbols which have the following values:

- A (excellent) = 5.00
- B (good) = 4.66
- C (fair) = 4.33
- D (failed) = 4.00
- F (failure) = below 4

Honors are determined in accordance with the following numerical system:

- Each semester-hour with grade A counts as 1, B counts as 0.66, C counts as 0.33, D counts as 2, and E counts as 3.
- Numerical equivalents are associated to the above honor groups as follows: First-Year, Second-Year, Third-Year, and Fourth-Year Honor Lists—Class A, an average of 5.00 or over; Class B, an average of 4.33 or over; Final Honor List—Honors, an average of 5.00 or over; High Honors, an average of 4.50 or over; Highest Honors, an average of 4.66, or over.

The award of Highest Honors is conferred by the University Faculty only upon candidates who (a) have attained the required grade of 4.66, (b) have performed the work of the Junior and Senior years in residence at the University of Idaho, and (c) have shown capacity for intensive work.

The arrangement of names with each group is alphabetical.

FROM OTHER COLLEGES

Yale Athletes Barred
NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 18—Yale's chances of winning a football and baseball championship this year received a jolt tonight when it was announced by the Yale University Athletic Association that five of the best athletes in the University are ineligible to compete in Yale athletics because the men received board for playing baseball during the last summer from the Greensfield Club of Quogue, L. I.

The men who have become ineligible by their own declaration are: Harry Legare, the star fullback and quarterback; Arthur Millborn, captain of the baseball team for next season and second baseman; Pumpelly, dependable pitcher and a brother of Harold Pumpelly, the former Yale football star; and Rieget and Ketten, both regular outfielders on the baseball team.

That the disqualification of Legare, Millborn and the three other athletes by the Yale authorities will have a far-reaching effect is the opinion of those well versed in the situation in college sports. Now that Yale has taken such drastic action there is little doubt that other schools will scrutinize carefully the status of the men whom the Yale athletes must meet in college contests.

There has been agitation for a long time in the colleges throughout the country to weed out the men who have played unethically on their athletic ability, but in few cases has a college acted with another. It now seems that there is a possibility that Yale will ask for the calling of a conference with that end in view.

Legare, who has been playing fullback on the football team, is considered by many the best quarterback that Yale has ever had. It is said that he refused an offer of $1000 a year salary by Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics. Millborn played second base on the team last year and starred at his position. Rieget played in the outfield and was a back on the football squad.

Basketball Men Return

With the college to return to college on Sunday of Roy Bohler, a member of the basketball team for four years, the prospects for a creditable team were boosted considerably. It was first believed that Bohler would not return this year, but when he made his appearance Sunday and registered the following day, Norman Moss, captain-elect of the team, will be the school the first semester, and the end of the season the semester—W. S. C. Evergreen.

The above summarises W. S. C.'s basketball prospects for the coming season. Of course the season is still a considerable time away but a brief summary of the Idaho prospects may be not entirely. Idaho has practically a quintet of old men returned, Ex-Captains Jardine being the only man who graduated from last year's squad of six letter men. Those who return this fall and who will undoubtedly turn out in the season progression are: Captain-elect Gray, Koons, Martinson,氨基酸和Hyde. Physical Director Begholf will probably coach the indoor gym, with no definite announcement has been made to this effect. Mr. Begholf is, however, well qualified to handle this branch of athletics and with the material hand should make a very creditable showing.

There are a number of new men who have good high-school records who will undoubtedly make some of the first string men get out and battle for their positions. Charley Ankorn has returned, and Blackmer and other freshmen look as if they had something. As in the past, a series of pre-season games, inter-class and inter-fraternity, will be arranged to give the men some early practice and furnishing the coaches a line on the ability of the available material. On paper, Idaho looks good enough to do things up in the conference this year.

AGRICULTURAL NOTES

Professor Prevert, Dairy Manufacturing Specialist, with headquarters at Salt Lake is planning a Northwest Butter Judging Contest in January or February in cooperation with a butter makers convention. He has handed his plans to some Soookane men concerning hopes to get the assistance of the local creameries and the Commercial Club. A students judging contest will be part of the program. This will be the first real Northwest Intercollegiate judging contest.

Prof. E. W. Hamilton is moving to his new office in the Agricultural Engineering building. Professor Hahne, who with Hamilton occupied the third floor room, retains it for his office.

Otto J. Ketzer, 1913 graduate, is Short Dairy course was recently appointed supervisor of the Buhl Controlling association with headquarters at Buhl. This is! the first association of its kind to be formed in this state and is conducted by the U. S. Dairy Division and by the Dairy Department of the U. of I.

The Animal Husbandry Department shipped three Dune Jersey heifer to Charles W. Booth of Newport and also a Dune bear to Mr. W. H. Lowry of Whitewater, Idaho, on Monday last, and on Thursday a fine Shropshire ram was sent to Mr. W. L. M. of Bulldog, Idaho.

THE ATHLETIC BALL

In spite of the strenuous rooting and the discouraging defeat of Saturday afternoon, everybody turned out for the Athlete and made real dancing an elusive dream, interrupted by other people's elbows and heels. The Gym was appropriately decorated in yellow and white bunting and Idaho blankets, and the floor latticed gave a dim, party effect. A good, "pompous" orchestra held forth in the south-east corner of the room on the dance floor, with punch, pie, and noisome mouthfuls that the poring in the southwest corner. The resulting line on the usual seat of honor. It consisted of: Roy Brown, Conners, Radebaugh and Begholf, Liest. Fools, Mrs. Begholf, Miss French, Miss Benton and Miss Stephens. The "I Special" was the feature of the evening, danced only by "I" men. The most of the dances were house and whoever, few seemed to be sad or drowsy, and 11:30 rolled around all too soon for the enthusiastic hoppers.
