IDAHO'S NEW PRESIDENT HIGHLY ENDORSED BY LEADING EDUCATORS

Dr. E. Stanley Hall, Clark President, Declares Him to Be Ideal Man for Position

STUDIED IN MANY SCHOOLS

Early in July to hold a meeting of the board of trustees, the president-elect, Dr. Hall, had already spent the last college term touring through the state, visiting in colleges throughout the state of Idaho as well as in the cities.

In the opinion of many of these educators, Dr. Hall is one of the most versatile men in the field of education, having been graduated from the University of Idaho in 1892, from Columbia University in 1893, and from the University of Leipsic in 1895.

Comoisioner Bryan Speaks

New Education Department to Be Created

In connection with the new education department to be created by the state legislature, Commissioner Bryan has been called upon by the Governor to take charge of the new department.

"The position of commissioner of education is one of the most important in the state," said Bryan. "The man who fills this position must be one who is thoroughly versed in the educational field, and who has a knowledge of the needs and problems of the state."
The University of Idaho enters this school year under a new administration. The resignation of Dr. Bryan, who for three years directed the affairs, left a vacancy which for a time seemed big. But not long.

Due to the efforts of E. J. mayo and the new understanding, the university began to improve. President Lindley, with his staff, took the position of chief executive. A more enlightened department was made. President lidly's voice was heard in the halls as the Spirit of the School, and his name was on the lips of all.

THE UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO

The beginning of the year, 1315, will go down in the college records and fighting in the history of education. Each institution faces its new responsibilities, and the people of the world look to the leaders of the university. Not only the man of noble spirit, but all who feel the problems of the world, look to the leaders of the university.

President Lindley, with his staff, took the position of chief executive. A more enlightened department was made. President Lindley's voice was heard in the halls as the Spirit of the School, and his name was on the lips of all.

The College of Agriculture in Idaho now is beginning its second year of operation, and it is evident that the administration and faculty have made a good beginning. A recent survey of the college shows that the enrollment is increasing rapidly, and that the faculty is well qualified to handle the increasing numbers.

During the past year, the college has made great strides in the development of its facilities. A new dormitory has been built, and the old one has been modernized. The laboratory facilities have been expanded, and the library has been enlarged.

The college is now preparing to offer a wide range of courses, including agriculture, forestry, and natural resources management. The college is also working on developing programs in sustainable agriculture and rural development.

The college is committed to providing quality education and training to meet the needs of the state and nation. With the support of our community and state leaders, we are confident that the college will continue to grow and excel in the years to come.
CHANGES MADE IN FACULTY

New President, Four Deans, and Staff of Others in Idaho's Betsy

This Fall

Idaho's faculty has undergone a thorough remodelling this coming term. "The old order changes" is true but never has it changed with such a vengeance as this year. Each year's students have returned to find a new president, a new commissioner of education, four new deans, and a new head of the English department, or so it seems to the number of a score or more. This faculty turnover is of each new course is given below, with the appointment of President Lindley, to whom we speak elsewhere.

Of Commissioner Bryan, we can say in that action sparks3 travel the world. And enrollment at Washington State and the results of the four months' work in Idaho speak more strongly for him and his ability as an administrator than any newspaper.

Next, the deans. First comes Dean Elmer, who succeeds Dean Mooney in the head of the college of letters and sciences. Dean Elmer has been the head of the department of history for the past fifteen years during which time he has gained a nation-wide reputation as an historian. As a debate coach, too, he has made an enviable record.

In the new college another position has taken place. Professor Gil is being advanced in the position left vacated by Dean Mooney, and is now acting dean.

Two departments, those of mining and forestry, were this year raised to the dignity of separate colleges, and those account for the other new

The Store That Sells

SOCIETY BRAND AND KUPPENHEIM'S SUITS AND OVERCOATS

For years Idaho varsity men have patronized this store knowing that what they bought was right in style, right in quality and right in price. Our policy demands that these clothes must retain those elements of style tailoring and high quality in all wool fabrics that have made this store the "Students’ Store" for several college generations. They retail in price from $22.50 to $35.00.

For those students who have just come we will state that this is the store that outfits the college in Freshmen’s Caps, the athletic teams in all their outfits, and is head-quarters for Military Uniforms and Supplies.
