Preps. Take Four out of Six at Kellogg.

The Prep basket ball team arrived in Moscow last Saturday after a weeks trip in the Case of Home counties. Series of six games were played the Preps winning four out of the six. The first game was played at the Kellogg High School at Kellogg Monday night, resulting in a walkover for the Preps. The score was 45 to 7.

On Tuesday night the Preps met the Wallace Athletic Club, which was the strongest aggregation meet on the trip. The score at the end of the first half was 10 to 4 in favor of the Preps. At the beginning of the second half the Wallace team fearing used to resume playing unless a change in officials was made. This change was at last made and the empire who was a Wallace man get in his work as can be seen from the fact that he called eighteen fouls on the Preps to one on Wallace and thus enabled the Preps to win the game. Freshman Class Meeting,

Last Thursday afternoon the freshmen had a class meeting to see about having there pictures taken for the Junior Annual. The class had a picture taken some time ago but one of the girls smiled at the critical moment and ruined the negative. They decided to have another one taken at Stetson's Studio Saturday afternoon. After some fruitless attempts to make suitable arrangements for a sleigh-ride and dance the meeting adjourned.

Dear Professor Huimle:

Doobtless you have come, long be- fore this, to the conclusion that I am a very poor correspondent, and there is even less doubt as to the celerity of that conclusion. But now I am going to try what Guy Holman calls my semi-annual, and make it as much as I can.

Your letter reached me in London about the time I was hearing a song about the music of which you spoke. I went to Covent Garden twice. The first time it was Melba's anniversary, and Madame Destin sang in one of "Madoine Rambles" and Melba herself as Violetta in "La Travi- ata." I didn't note the names of the men in the parts. This was quite a society affair, the king and queen were present though I could not see them, and I derived a certain amount of enter- tainment from standing on the corner, eating strawberries at the tinned pound, and watching the array of hats and gowns.

This singing was very wonderful, but I had more of a treat two days later when I heard Tetrazzini in "The Feast Fisher." It is by Bizet I think, and gives what I would call a magnificent opportunity to the prima donna, and surely she made glorious use of that opportunity. You know how fee I am from being musical, and yet this thrilled me through and through.

After London I cycled north through Banbury, Stratford, Warwick, Kenil- worth and Coventry to Lichfield, I enjoyed the Cathedral very much but think its charm is largely due to its situation above the old fish pool, as well as to the wonderful coloring of the stones. Then I went through the Der- wents Peak and stopped all night, on the foot of the hill on which stands Pe- truis Castle. After trampling across the Black Country I experienced a sound打ち・renching in the English Lake District, of which the memory a few days later that I rode ninety-four miles over the Border to Howick by event-

Letter From '07 Rhodes Scholar

The last day of June was a day of great excitement for me. I was ready to leave for England, but the last few days were occupied with the final examination. The examination was a real test of my knowledge and skills. I was eager to prove myself and show my intellectual capabilities.

The journey to England was a long one, but it was filled with anticipation. I was excited to see the new places and meet new people. The public transport was reliable, and I enjoyed the views of the countryside.

London was the first destination on my itinerary. I was fascinated by the city's history and culture. The museums and art galleries were a treasure trove of knowledge. I spent many hours exploring the city and taking in the sights.

The most memorable experience was visiting the Tower of London. It was an ancient and imposing structure, and I was struck by the sense of history that permeated every corner. The Crown jewels were particularly impressive, and I was awestruck by their sheer beauty.

The weather was pleasant, and I enjoyed walking around the city and taking in the sights. I found the people to be friendly and welcoming, and I felt at home in the city. The food was also excellent, and I enjoyed trying new dishes.

My stay in London was too short, but it was a great start to my adventure. I was looking forward to the next leg of my journey, and I was eager to explore more of the country.

Sincerely,
