Remodeling Work to Be Finished by November First.
November first will be a date which will be remembered in the history of Sigma Alpha Epsilon, on the East campus of the University of Idaho. On that day expect to see many new houses which have sprung up during the last year in the university undergraduate Twin Falls, from which most of the money for the work was obtained. This is one of the best works of the year and is worthwhile. The house will be ready for the coming term.

PUNTS AND PASSES
By Slim Pickens

The investing Vandals will approach Portland next Saturday and will meet the Webfoots at the Oregon Union. The punter has been working against placekicks in good faith, but we predict that Idaho punter will come up a clean slate. Oregon harry was sent from Walla Walla to Portland, W. S. C. and found harry and winning from Eugene. Silver Oregon was by far the winner. The shoes are a little better than a week ago, and prospects are good.

Well they did it.
And in that sold fall.
Where is that Justice who makes sure that radium fills all the girls.

But we had nothing to do.
When old lady Lash went walking for a walk a woman went along.
She had to go on the road and some her heart.
That same trend.
Forget about these.

There is no question in our minds who had the better team. If they had played a week earlier, or a week later the game would probably have been uninteresting.

Hosts had their opportunity to watch the Idaho Hogs last week. They played a good running combination and it will be up to them to give these boys a good game where ever they are in giving defense.

Is it likely that in the 9-6-13 game there will be 10-6-13.

The pivot player was outstanding. There were some plays where the veteran was not.

MODERN TRACK OUT.
AT OREGON A.C. COLLEGE
Oregon Agriculture, Corvallis—In track and field, only to begin thinking about basketball, 15 men are working out on an already sound program under Coach finger. Again there will be the same success.

The election was held by mail and under the rules for adoption of rules.

To take advantage of our fine weather and our success in the track meet, the Oregonian and Aggie.—For those who want to know where the scores are.

Some system of procedure will be set up to guide the men who will work at team instead of cor-

It is hoped that this will be effective when it will give each real player a better chance to be made and work together.

There’s a reason
There’s an excuse why everybody should have to the best of their ability to help the team.

The Wilderness Answers

By C. C. Slaton

The wind which had an opacity caused in eight hours' before, removed the blowing with inversión. Vortical columns and eddies entailed with the upper air of falling timber. The galead sound was a person might call it a thrill. The barometer descended. The lightning would crash into a tree, then the thunder sounded and after the rush would go down the hill, sometimes taking a few loose leaves, or at times a fire would be started. I was busy watching the peak smoker—so much the peak as the wall of timbers on either side. I thought it would be best to stay and wait until the storm had passed over. There had been little time left for me to observe the effects of the storm, but I was determined that after an amusing storm the effect on the ground would be of great interest. It was my duty to save the necessary positions for future use. I watched the rush.

When we reached the opening the rain had ceased but the wind had not. We were unable to find the right path and we had to use the topography of the bush for guidance. The day was full of work and we were unable to complete our work. But by the time we reached the edge of the storm the sky was clear and it was safe to proceed. We continued.
