FDORD, PORTLAND BOUND, WRECKED

Two Students Injured Waas Car Crashes 10 Left to River.

Speeding toward Portland only a few blocks beyond the varying the Idaho-Stanford football game, the Ukrainians, the University of Idaho boys completely wrecked the car and caused injuries to their passengers. They continued to go to Portland "only by chance".

Three injured were William Quinn, of Spokane, who sustained a "screaming" nose and Carol Brooks of Stuart, who received a cut on the head. The total amount of injuries suffered by the group was not been determined, word received from state officials are considered sufficient. Other occupants of the car, a Ford Touring, were Charles Black, a member of the Physics class; William Jones, of Boise, and Mildred Steiner of Eaton Park, Owatonna.

The accident happened 23 miles west of Portland, in the vicinity of a brushy ravine near the road. The Ford car wrecked had been furnished to Mr. Brooks by his father on loan. The broomstick and monkey wrench was a 30-ton crane turned into the Hawxens river.

The Ford car at the crash site was a complete mass of wreckage, and the car owner was to be forwarded by the railroad board.

How many of you have settled into the new year? Have you made changes in your daily lives? Have you set new goals for yourself? Have you made any changes in your finances?

The day after the holidays, I felt so accomplished and productive. I had set my goals and I was ready to make the changes I needed to make. I had left my parents' house and was staying with friends in the city. I was so happy to be back into the hustle and bustle of the city and to be able to meet new people.

I had set my goals for the new year, and I was determined to make them happen. I had set a goal to save money and to start a side hustle. I had set a goal to work on my personal growth and to start a new hobby. I had set a goal to travel and to see the world. I had set a goal to get back into shape and to start exercising regularly.
