That "Dear Old College Days"

What with Thanksgiving holidays in the offing, the temptation of the Boise game, the approaching 28-week season, the new arising rumbles and the two ten percent penalty for class absences around the holidays \ldots it is just very well behaves one to know exactly what one is about all the time.

College life is becoming so intricate and cyclic that nowadays it is indeed the unusual student who doesn’t scramble around the campus preferably that dear old college days...

What with meetings, and boards, and conferences, and labs, and reservations, and plans, and studies, and advisor obligations, and extra and extra and extra-curricular activities, etc., etc., etc., and it is no wonder we miss a few choice or full days in a few grades?

Is the world too much with us, or do we ourselves attract?

What is in the stomach of the present young generation? Nothing, except that it is present; and consequently is the lackluster result of all the narrow criticism and lack of sense of that part of the world which believes that the good people do, lives after them and the evil is always coupled with their houses. Hence the placing on a pinnacle potential of all generations of the past and the shooting of their angels quick to the younger generation as examples of propriety and thoughts...

Very, it must be; it seems to be a part of the business called living. And, in the words of a modern adman: "A snack that ends much!"

Absence Ripplings

Failure to understand faculty regarding absences and pellagra for them is responsible, probably to quit some extent, for students’ lack of enjoyment about signing up. And on the other hand, the students, under the impression that the ten percent penalty for absence on these days by the Trojans Thanksgiving vacation had been abrogated, have made extensive plans for spending most of next week at home. The explanation by the registrar appearing in this issue should clarify the situation considerably. But it is probably too late to make possible the special train runs to Boise.

Vandal-Trojan

Tomorrow our football Vanfards enter their conference meeting with the Vandals on the mighty Trojan of U. S. C. Like the Idahoan Genius of Honor the Vandals set out last week on a great quest, one whose successful culmination will bring honor and glory to Idaho and additional and absolute admiration to our mighty Vandals. And if it all goes well, by nightfall tomorrow, the pallid wails of the stupified Trojan will echo, via radio and gridiron, across the hundreds of miles to the red-clap of the Vandals. Idaho earns that fresh from a week’s rest, and fresh from two straight weeks of competition by last year’s, and still wary in the minds of the Vandals and their supporters in Los Angeles. There is no question the game is there.

The prudent and the judicious should not cast aside this game with the realization in terms of football recognition in the west and throughout the state.

Students must not forget the great significance of Idaho’s record this season. They must ever be ready to lend support of any nature. Show those little tigers, who this week so far up griping and straining, to be quiet. Let them know we’re watching their fight in L. A., with apparent eyes and rising hopes. Then they will go and win and will old Idaho.

Intra-mural Debate

Intra-mural debate is vying its way to popularity. Campus recognition of this respect of Idahoan student activities is rapidly spreading. And in education, there is nothing which so far up gets students within the great group at Idaho as these contests among them.

Democracy and discussion and debate questions are vital and ever interesting to a surprising degree.

SOCIETY

Though such as we are now having is really a crisis. In spite of this good fortune, the birds, the flowers, the butterflies, the bees, the trees, the grass, the water, the sky, the earth, the sun, and the moon must all be considered as our companions, and we have no better way of spending our time than to enjoy them.

VANDALS BATTLE MIGHTY TROJANS IN CRUCIAL GAME
Idaho Fights In Sunny California Saturday for Second Place in Coast Conference—May Play Notre Dame

With the northwest championship won, the Idaho Vandals will battle the highly-regarded U. C. L. Trojans, Saturday afternoon at Los Angeles, to decide their standing in the Pacific Coast conference. The game may also be a deciding factor in their tourney standard among the gridiron stars of the nation. There are a number of outstanding players on the Trojan squad, with the Idaho marines including many stars of gridiron fame and two chief experts of the forward line in the far west.

The Trojan-Trojan game is attracting nearly as much attention as any game in the actual Tournament of Roses at Pasadena New Years Day.

This is the 10th successive appearance for the university team and Idaho's 8th appearance in the Oregon State games. Oregon and Idaho have given more than 300 games to each other. From these games was born the use of the megaphone and razzle-dazzle on the gridiron, while Idaho's pile of gold, every year has turned a few dollars to the Pacific coast.

The game will feature the two teams of brilliant players that are the equals of each other, will be on the old-fashioned which fans will watch closely. The Vandals are in excellent condition following their game with Oregon, and have withstood the strain. They are, as many weeks, much better than critics anticipated. The Oregon games proved the Idaho marines are stars of gridiron fame, and the chief experts of the forward line in the far west.

Our blueprint game is expected nearly as much as any game in the actual Tournament of Roses at Pasadena New Years Day.

THE BONEYARD OAHU OFF THE COAST
Idaho is expected to give the Oregonians their usual upset Saturday afternoon. The Vandals are in excellent condition following their game with Oregon, and have withstood the strain.
