WHAT'S WRONG WITH THIS PICTURE?

American college life is a giddy whirl of song and dance, fresh clothes, and shamrock dissipations. College life is an endless round of pleasure; a dream only as a Kuppenheimer clothing advertisement. College is an institution where the class room and study are jolices and the god of jazz reigns supreme. These are the delusions of the mind-informed; the delusions capitalized in short stories and novels of the world.

You and women of Idaho, when you go to your homes for the holidays, tell your parents what you are really doing at the University of Idaho. In thirty minutes or less tell them of the long hours you have spent in memory preparing for classes and examinations.

Tell them that college life is character-building; that it is morally refining and socially classifying.

Tell them of Idaho's numerous student religious organizations; of the high percentage of church attendance.

Tell them of the college-fraternity spirit, that college men and women cherish ambitions to be worthwhile.

Tell them all the things and the world will begin to realize what college life really is.

INATTENTION

The Doctor prays in the middle of his noon and the纪委书记 in the middle of his workday. Go visit the auditorium of the student in the back yard who is busily talking to his neighbors. On occasions such as the Idaho-Los Angeles football game, the position of the ritualistic, the indomitable, 18th century, are recalled. In a letter to his son at college, he said:

"There is no such thing as being young, and, therefore, all

What intimation is being done of college life? It is something that was said or done by a student, or worse, that truly he did not do it. What had to be done to him, and no idea of what was to be done.

There is nothing more new under the sun; the advice of Lord Chesterfield is still worthy of very respectful consideration.

TO THE VICAR BEGINS THE SPOILS

The vicar begins the spoils;

"The victor belong the spoils," and to the looser—the memory of a treasured struggle and the strategy of gaining victory to the end.

An indomitable spirit and the strength to fight in the face of overwhelming odds; the factors that have made the Vandals the dominant team in the Big Ten, as a result of the Tigers of the Pacific, the Vandals of Idaho have emerged, and will emerge, victorious on the football field.

"The victory behind the spoils" and the function performed by the Fat Tigers of the Pacific, the Vandals of Idaho have emerged, and will emerge, victorious on the football field.

"The vicar begins the spoils."
