In Memory

She graduated in 1939, when the world was dark for young college women in search of a job. She was faced with a choice, and she chose to work as a nurse during the war effort. She lived through four years of bombing and Allied victories, and she never lost her sense of humor. Her stories live on through the stories of the children she cared for and the friends she made during her career.

“Thanks You Never”...with its slightly re-invented title of “39 Steps” falta desituo the comic, but the entire comedy is still intact. Without a doubt, the picture is one of the best of the year.

Cavemen Gone From Earth; Last Vestige in Hungary

The last remains of cavemen have been found in Hungary, but the last vestige in Hungary has disappeared.

Until recently, in a certain district of the Hungarian mountains, a cave was inhabited by the last vestige of the Neanderthal man, together with a group of modern man who were called 'Mikszatfalva' by the local people.

During the summer the area was utilized by tourists, with a small inn and a campground. It was constructed in 1960, and it was closed in 1986.

It was named 'Mikszatfalva' or 'Mikszalva's Valley', after the local people who, by digging the plots of the cave dwellers, had greatly contributed to the tourism.

Today, every vestige of the former chasmanal situation, the last vestige, has been blown up by dynamite.
