Graduation Final-Idaho Argonaut 1937-67

The Idaho Argonaut

FBI Bites Parley Saturday-Soror Sunday by Boddy

For Bryant Kool, football and eating are in his blood. In his childhood, he spent countless hours on the sidelines of his school's football games, cheering on his team and relishing the delicious tailgate meals.

As a football player, Kool was known for his fierce competitive spirit and his love for the game. He always gave his all on the field, leaving everything he had on the gridiron. And when the whistle blew, he was just as likely to be found in the bleachers, savoring the food and soaking up the atmosphere of the game.

Fast forward to present day, and Kool is still deep into the world of football and food. Whether it's tailgate parties, tailgate trips, or even just a weekend spent watching the big game, Kool loves nothing more than combining two of his greatest passions.

So whether you're a die-hard football fan or simply a foodie, you won't want to miss Kool's next big event. Stay tuned for more updates on this exciting football and food adventure!
A Job Well Done

One day last September a new Argonaut editor gave the magazine its first annual edition, and saw it go before the public. He was confident that he could put together a paper that would please the people of the city of Idaho. He was right.

But the paper was not born without some difficulties. It was not easy for the new editor to find a group of people who would be willing to support the publication. He had to overcome a lot of resistance before he was able to start the paper.

Finally, after much effort, the paper was published. It was a great success, and the new editor was able to continue the publication.

He has since had to overcome many other challenges, but he has always been able to find people who were willing to support his work. The Argonaut has been a successful publication, and the new editor has been able to continue the publication to this day.

In summary, the Argonaut has been a successful publication. The new editor has had to overcome many challenges, but he has always been able to find people who were willing to support his work.
