What's in a Name?

Unquestionably, names do through history have been of great importance and significance. However, the importance of names in culture and society is often overlooked.

In recent years, the study of names has become increasingly popular. Many researchers have explored the significance of names in various cultures and societies. For example, some have examined the role of names in identity and social status. Others have looked at the historical development of names over time.

Names are often associated with culture and society. In many societies, names are used to convey information about a person's background, social status, or even their profession. In other cases, names may be used to express a person's personality or interests.

The importance of names in society is not just limited to personal associations. Names also play a crucial role in the functioning of societies. For example, names are often used to organize and categorize groups of people. This is particularly true in cases where there are significant differences between different groups.

Overall, the importance of names in society cannot be underestimated. Names have a profound impact on our understanding of culture and society, and they continue to evolve and change over time.

Gridmen Return Early
To Begin Practice

Returning to the campus early last week was a 40 University of Idaho football men in socks in football for fall practice. Band members, football players and underclassmen play重要的 role in the success of the band, providing entertainment and morale on the field. The band members are responsible for playing the pre-game and halftime music and for leading the crowd in cheers and chants. The pre-game music is typically played on the drum line, while the halftime performances feature a variety of musical styles and arrangements. The band's presence at games is a significant factor in the overall atmosphere and excitement of the event.
New University Book Store In Student Union Building

Searchingly, Ida State students have been talking about and waiting hopefully to get for the last 20 years—a university bookstore on campus—finally has materialized. Roy Hall, former dean, the venture will open for business this week at the newly completed wing of the student union building, making Ida the last institution in the state to provide a student service which most universities consider an necessary as facilities for football and bricks.

The project originated last summer, with the board of regents. The board, after considerable investigation, decided to open the store as a source of student revenue to make possible more adequate and effective. The lack of publishing the store on an opening basis was turned over to Fred L. Mackay, university purchasing agent.

Other Stores Started

Mr. Parker Therignan, owner of Therignan Drug Co., has been interested in the management of the entire store. He offers to manage the store with a man who has been in the business. He has been given the responsibility of opening the store the first week of January. The store will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Mr. Kibbe’s appointment, of course, is subject to the approval of the board of regents. He will also be responsible for the management of the store. The store will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday.
