Increase Your Culture

Sunday begins Religious Emphasis Week on the Idaho campus. Sponsored annually by the Inter-Church Council, it is a week set aside for the purpose of presenting in terms acceptable to all students an understanding to personal life and the great social issues of this world.

Although the Inter-Church Council is a group at which many students are: the neglect of religion on campus, need of a student council with which to further the teaching of religious life and to comfort the student who is so inclined, and last, but not least, is an attempt to help students to think deeply about the social issues of our day.

One thing that will get into our week is the weekly morning of discussion groups to discuss the problems that we face as Christians and to study the subjects that are important to us. Weather or not you are a "church" goer does not enter this discussion, for it is the effects of social issues which are reflected in our everyday actions, many of which are unconscious and tend to lead to religious or anti-religious philosophies.

The teachings of the Christian religion are reflected in many of our everyday actions, thoughts, and feelings.

During the coming week we do not turn our back on a chance to help ourselves, for there is an opportunity to get a "fireman" group on a high level of standards and help others.

Crime In The Classroom

The occasion is a typical classroom during a quiz. Several students, seated in a number of chairs, behind the doors, are discussing the various matches, with white others are referring to the information in the desks on the walls and the players' "whimsgy."

Oh, yes! There are also a few students scattered throughout the classroom, whispering, giggling, dropping sheets and other objects on the floor with their feet and crying information therefrom.

One little group in the corner is discussing the various matches, with white others are referring to the information in the desks on the walls and the players' "whimsgy."
Finleymen Approaching Season's End; Challenge Washington Huskies Tonight

With four games in North- ern Division play, Idaho looks to the next four contests, which will be played here tonight and tomorrow night, which will be played here tonight and tomorrow night, as the determining factor in the outcome of the season. Both games will be played at 7:30 tonight and Wednesday.
