Censor "College Paper?"

This is a question often asked before administrations. Administrations are given the privilege of what they call "editorial freedom," but the question of publishing material that is harmful to the school's welfare. Much damage can be done, in part as what a "college paper" should and should not print.

All the more, and the following safeguards on campus happenings are the life of a college newspaper. At the University of Idaho, every article is submitted to some sort of annoyance, called "censorship," which is authorized on any sensitive subject, as the student body in charge of handling such subjects. There is no equal position for all students, and features to pass through hands of a censor, for example, his uncertainty of the speed with which he can produce the necessary sheet. Some professionals, well intentioned and all, will have their doubts and comments, so that the worst thing that can happen is to read beyond that of a false name or slightlyOff.-T.

Hijack Method Poses Threat ToMales

A short time ago a group of women employees of a telephone company developed a unique method of hijacking communications in the face of limitations.

We ask all those in the telephone business to report and advise others to report a group of girls, who worked in the telegraph department, who had been hijacking communications with almost, or in their language, to say the company is a bit puzzled by such situations, and intends to throw the book at the girls.

What we would like to know is how long, and what amount of money was hijacked by females, who have been going around the country under the pretense of business travelers.

We would like to know how the company could cope with the so-called "female travelers."

Work Taken

Perhaps the answer to these mysteries will forever be unknowable, but for all money should certainly come about this type of situation. It wouldn't be surprising to hear that a group of women dolled off were stripping the Empire State building to brick, the popular object with their unauthorized, consecrated dressing, and down, probably with the thought of what a good bot of money it would bring and saving her money.

Indeed this is what we have just mentioned, and one of the greatest factors in the steady rise of the female animal. About the only thing more significant would be the rise in the use of women.

Big New Union Building Now A Reality At Idaho

THE OLD—This almost full view of the Student Union Building as it was, gives a good comparison to the extent of the change. Just one year ago this site was familiar to all as it is almost forgotten. The building was changed because it was inadequate to handle increased enrollments.

ENTRANCE—Three students talk things over just inside the main entrance of the old Student Union Building, on the main floor. The students here have already made this their main entrance and the areas are very close to the new Student Union Building. Just behind the desk by which the students are conversing is another entrance to the first floor of the new building.

DOWNSTAIRS LOUNGE—Just inside the first-floor entrance, this spacious lounge is a comfortable place to rest, study, or listen to the radio. Students can even be held here. Wednesday evening a large crowd listened to the Lebo-Charles fight here and it is expected that many away-from-home games will be held in this lounge.

SECOND FLOOR LOUNGE—At the head of the stairs leading to the second floor, just off the main floor, and near the theater entrance is this spacious lounge. Students waiting for shows, dances, or just visiting or studying will find the lounge here very comfortable.

BOOKSTORE—One of the newest modern bookstores in the area, students may buy books, supplies, and other needed books here, as available. Chet Kerr operates the bookstore. In addition to other services, the bookstore here boasts of its labor from the ranks of students and students' wives, as does the rest of the building.

BOARD OF REGENTS—Without the approval and wholehearted support of this group, the long standing dream of a larger and better student union building at the University of Idaho could have never been realized. Left to right are John B. Scotts, St. Regis mining company; Pulitzer Prize winner, Eugene A. White; Norris Bowers, Idaho Falls; Judge W. F. Mulligan, Custer; J. L. McClellan; Fred Schoon; and Allen B. Jones, state superintendent of public instruction, Idaho, ex-officio member.
Argonaut Reporters Describe The Wonders of Student Union

See New Vandal Hide-Out For Ultra-Modern Designing

Argonaut reporters are the new Students Union directors. They wish to take the students on a trip through the union, and give a description of a bird's-eye view of this magnificent structure.

Jerry Mackay
The Student Union is a large structure, long awaited by Idaho students, with its $1,000,000 price tag. Over $900,000 was spent for its construction, and $120,000 for its furnishings. According to the architects, much of the furniture was imported from Europe.

Growing flowers and plants become a major attraction of the Student Union. The central area of the union is an vegetable display, with flowers in the corners. The display is under the supervision of Dr. J. P. Kyser, who has been a display of bowling equipment and uniforms.

Choral Rooms
Directly below the student center is the student's lounge, a large and comfortable room. The lounge is separate from the student center, and is accessible to all.

The Student Union is designed to accommodate a large number of students, and is equipped with many facilities. The union is the largest union in the state, and is expected to be a major attraction for the university.

Student Services
Services are available for students in the union, including counseling, health services, and financial aid. The union is also equipped with a large library, a computer center, and a dining area.

The Student Union is a major addition to the university, and is expected to provide a comfortable and convenient environment for students to study and socialize.
