The Golden Fleece

by Jason

Boldest of the hens, she waddled away from the barn, her feathers fluffed out in the gloomy October air. The other hens were pecking at the ground, their heads down in search of grain. But not this hen. She was proud, her eyes shining with the knowledge that she was special.

"I am the Golden Fleece," she declared, her voice carrying across the barnyard. "I am the most important hen in this place, and I know it."

The other hens looked at her, their beaks still in the dirt, and then they returned to their pecking. But she had made her point. She was the Golden Fleece, and no one could deny it.

When The Vandals Win
How Shall We Thank Them?

With LeRoy Grubich

With the Vandals game set for tomorrow, the question of appreciation arises naturally. "Thank you," is one sentiment that comes to mind, and that is the sentiment that is shared by all persons involved in the game.

Challenge

To show how much appreciation there is, "Thank you" seems the appropriate sentiment. However, the question of how to show that appreciation is also a challenge.
