Keep Ad From Disappearing In Smoke

There are designated "No Smoking" signs in the Student Union and in the classroom areas. These signs are there to prevent students from smoking in the rooms. The State University of Idaho campus is not under "No Smoking" signs, Dr. R. L. Schaffer, chairman of the University's Traffic and Safety committee, which consists of departmental heads, said.

"I think it is important that the students be aware of the no smoking areas," Schaffer said. "Even though the University is not under the no smoking areas, it is important that the students be aware of the areas where smoking is prohibited."

"The students are encouraged to smoke in the designated areas," Schaffer said. "However, they should be aware of the areas where smoking is prohibited."
Dear Jason,

I reviewed your report and am pleased to note the excellent work you have accomplished so far on this project. Your attention to detail and thorough research are commendable. Keep up the good work!

Sincerely,

"Christmas Lights" was the theme of former hall's annual program of Christmas music and dance. A successful audience and dancers filled the hall at 9:30 this evening, a large part of the audience being members of the girls of the Idaho A G A M. The music was furnished by the band of the A G A M and the dance was presented by the members. The dance continued until 11 p.m., at which hour the audience adjourned to the dinner which was served at 8 p.m.

Finley Slaps ISC 43-40 And 50-39

Coach Clark Finley's Idaho huskies took two strides forward last week as Idaho pulled even in the 60-51 basketball season by winning games at both the University of Oregon, 43 to 40, Friday eve- ning, and Northern Arizona, 50 to 39, Saturday night at Memorial gymnasium. Finley will now join the Montana State University band with another ball game against the Celts in Missoula Saturday.

As is to be expected, after stopping figu-ring in the pre-conference order and finishing their home game schedule, the huskies have emerged with a stoppage record of 6-0-1. Finley and his men, who have averaged nearly 103 points a game against the West Coast, have rapidly become one of the major powers in the league. They have also shown an improved team defense which has held the opponent's average below 70 points. Finley has not only marked his men for a big season, but also marked them for the tournament and the national championship.

Finley predicted that he was pleased with his team's game against Oregon, saying that it was a typical Idaho game. He also said that the huskies would continue to work on their defense, which has been a strong point in their game against the West Coast. Finley has been impressed with the way his men have handled the pressure of playing against the better teams in the league.

The win over Oregon was a hard-fought battle, and Finley was pleased with the way his men handled the pressure of playing against the better teams in the league. Finley has been impressed with the way his men have handled the pressure of playing against the better teams in the league.

Finley's prediction for the season is that the huskies will finish in the top four or five teams in the league. He also predicts that the team will make a strong showing in the national tournament.
