Senior Back

Getting off one of his high ideals, Bob Brandt, 19, senior back, was described by some of his classmates as "a walking contradiction." He was said to be "always talking about the things he wants to do, but never actually doing anything." Despite this, he was still respected by his peers for his academic achievements and his leadership roles.

Gong Show: "You're a Little Too Old"

Your high school years can be a time of great fun and excitement. You may think that the only way to make the most of these years is to party and spend all day and night with your friends. However, there are other ways to enjoy yourself.

For example, you can take up a new hobby or learn a new skill. You might try painting, dancing, or playing an instrument. This can be a great way to express your creativity and make new friends. You can also join a sports team or a club, which can give you a chance to meet people with similar interests.

Another option is to get involved in your community. You can volunteer at a local charity or help out at a school or church. This can be a rewarding way to give back to your community and learn new skills.

Finally, you can spend some time just relaxing and enjoying yourself. You might try reading a new book, watching a movie, or taking a walk in the park. This can be a great way to unwind and clear your mind.

The choice is yours - how you spend your high school years depends on what you enjoy. So make the most of your time and enjoy all the opportunities that come your way.

Communiqué Comment

President-General Trip's overture Mercury travels today to San Francisco with the Foreign Office dispatched case that he dispatched on the Far Eastern trade.

For the success of the operation in Washington, the State Department's board of trade on the Washington state line will entertain the Secretary of State's order concerned with the shipment of the case. The Secretary of State will be present when the case begins to move.

Opposed by the more belligerent admirals of our navy, the State Department has been subjected to considerable negotiations with Tokyo in the hope that the two countries will reach a compromise on the case.

The Japanese have insisted that the case be sent back to them, but the State Department has refused to comply with their demand. The matter has been referred to the League of Nations for arbitration.

Peace Prayer Held

A prayer for peace was held in the church of the day, which was attended by a large crowd. The service was conducted by the Reverend Dr. Brown, who spoke on the need for peace.

In the Infirmary

Several Americans have warned that peace in the Pacific can be achieved neither by keeping the pressure on Japan, nor by giving in to its demands.

For eastern stability, the United States must be prepared to use force, if necessary, to maintain its place in the Pacific.

Radio Club Speaker

Mr. Blackstone, the new radio club speaker, gave an interesting talk on the history of radio and the different ways it has been used in the past. He emphasized the importance of radio in communication and entertainment.

Vance, a 1st-year student at the University of Idaho, was described by some as a "wild card" in the game. He was said to be "too fast, too quick, and too unpredictable."

"If you don't watch him, he'll beat you," said a player on the opposing team. Vance was a versatile player, able to play both offense and defense. He was a key player for the Idaho team, and his performance was crucial to their success.

"You're a little too old," he told the young girl. "You should be doing something more important with your life." The girl looked at him, her eyes wide with surprise. "You're not much older than me," she replied. "I think you're being a little too hard on me." Vance smiled, his face softening. "I'm just trying to give you some advice. Life is short, you know. You have to make the most of it." The girl nodded, her face serious. "Thank you," she said. "I'll remember that." Vance stepped back, his eyes still on the young girl. He knew he would never forget her. She was a reminder of how quickly time could pass, and how important it was to make the most of every moment. He would always remember her words: "Thank you."
