Students Will Present Unusual Chinese Play

November 17 and 18 mark the opening of the presentation of the unusual Chinese play, "Lady Precious Stream," by S. Su. Hong, a sophomore. The play will be presented in the original manner of the Chinese author, S. Su. Hong.

In striking contrast to the Western view of Chinese plays, the story is set in China and depicts the life of a peasant girl who is saved from a life of servitude by a rich and generous man. The play is a moving and realistic portrayal of the life of the Chinese people in a small village.

The play opens with the story of a poor peasant girl, who is forced to work in a house to help support her family. She is saved by a wealthy man, who offers her a life of luxury and comfort. However, the play shows the girl's struggle to maintain her independence and her love for her country.
