Golden Fleece

During Jesus' triumphal entry, he was driven in a golden chariot drawn by seven golden horses, and carrying on a staff of gold, with a golden crown on his head. The chariot was drawn by seven white horses, and the crown was made of gold. The golden chariot was a symbol of Jesus' victory and dominion over all things. It was a fitting representation of his glory and majesty, as he entered Jerusalem in triumph, hailed as the King of kings and Lord of lords. The golden crown on his head was a sign of his sovereignty and authority, as he was anointed with the oil of holiness and set apart for his divine mission. The golden staff in his hand was a symbol of his power and dominion, as he had been given the keys of the kingdom of heaven and was able to open and shut, to bind and loose. The golden chariot was a fitting representation of Jesus' triumph and victory, as he entered Jerusalem in glory, hailed as the Messiah and King of Israel. The golden crown and staff were symbols of his sovereignty and authority, as he was anointed with the holy oil and set apart for his divine mission. The golden chariot was a fitting representation of Jesus' triumph and victory, as he entered Jerusalem in glory, hailed as the Messiah and King of Israel.
We've Never Had It So Good

The Chicago Tribune released the news yesterday that the United States was going to stop making the most of the United States of America. The President, in his first State of the Union message, declared that our country had reached a new level in prosperity and peace.

"We are no longer a nation of businessmen," he said. "We are now a nation of consumers."

Prices have been rising, sure. The limit is the limit, but we wouldn't have to worry about them if we weren't so damned lazy.

"We have to work hard to make money," the President said. "But we can't afford to work too hard."

"We have to have a nice time," he continued. "We have to have a good time."

So, let's all have a good time. Let's all have a good evening. Let's all have a good evening and a good night.
